FRAGMENTS.

Look at Dr. Grove's grape vines.

GERMAN COOK was in the audience at the Theatre last night.

A GENTLEMAN'S scarf pin was found on Fifth South Street, near Third West, on Sunday afternoon. The owner can get it at this office.

GEORGE J. NEWNHAM, Esq., who has been with the Union Pacific office in this city for a long time, has been appointed Northwestern Traveling Freight Agent of the company.

PARTIES who have been allowing their stock to roam the streets will have to take better care of their animals in future, as the mounted police have orders to impound all stray horses, cattle, etc.

CONDUCTOR JOHN ADAMS desires to return thanks to all who extended to his comrades and manifested sympathy and kindness towards himself and family during the sickness and at the death of his wife.

J. S. HOWARD, of Lincoln, Neb., the general agent of the Union Hydraulic Drain, Tile and Sewer Pipe Company, of Omaha, is in the city, contemplating the establishment of a plant here. A machine will arrive in a few days.

YESTERDAY the fact that a man named Richard Smith was placed in the lock-up for imbibing intoxicants was noted. Some people have queried as to whether it was a gentleman of that name who lives in the Twentieth Ward. Emphatically it was not.

CHAS. BROUGHER was fined $5 in the Police Court today, for drunkenness. For a similar offence John Lee was asked to contribute $5. The extra dollar was because Lee had to be hauled in a job wagon. It was at first thought he had taken poison, but after working with him for some time, it was ascertained that it was only Second South Street whisky. Rudolph Myer left $5 for his appearance on a charge of drunkenness, but failing to respond his bail was forfeited.

Davis Stake Primary Conference.

The Primary Associations of Davis Stake will hold their conference in Centerville, Saturday, April 28th, 1888, commencing at 10 a.m.

THE RAILWAY ACCIDENT.

The Engineer and Fireman Badly Hurt.

A little after 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon the D. & R. G. W. train bearing the east brought in the fireman and engineer from the scene of the accident above P. V. Junction. The name of the unfortunate engineer is Ben. Estes, and he has been residing with his wife and two young children at No. 55 w., Fifth South Street. The fireman is named Webb, and these are the only persons who met with serious injury.

The exact cause of the accident cannot be ascertained, but in some way the locomotive became derailed and turned over. Engineer Estes was caught about the upper part of his body, and to all appearances fatally injured. His head and face were badly battered, the skull being fractured and the nose crushed; his breast and shoulders also suffered severely and internal injuries are feared. The doctors, however, are giving him every attention, and hope that he will have strength to pull through. Last evening the bones of the nose were removed, that organ being injured so badly that it was impossible to save it.

Fireman Webb is not fatally hurt, though his injuries are very serious. He has a leg and arm broken, and was badly scalded. With the attention he is receiving he will recover in time.

Mrs. Estes is greatly affected by the strain upon her system. She has one child about two years old, and another five months. Yesterday she received word that her husband had been slightly injured, but knowing well that the whole truth was not told, she feared the worst, and as a consequence her mental agony was intense. Later she learned that he was in a dangerous condition, and was partially prepared for the awful sight which met her gaze when she met her husband at the depot. Mr. Estes is a quiet, temperate man, and bears a very high reputation as a careful and skillful engineer. He has three of four brothers engaged in the same line of business on Pennsylvania roads. This afternoon a message from St. Mary's Hospital stated that he was resting quietly, and that his condition was unchanged.

Accidentally Shot.

A dispatch from Albuquerque, New Mexico, April 7th, says: While walking on the street this morning Mrs. O. Reynolds was instantly killed by the accidental discharge of a pistol which fell from the overcoat pocket of Mr. J. J. Reynolds. The statement of Mr. Reynolds at the inquest was that they arrived here last evening from Kansas City, and while walking on Railroad Avenue they turned to go down First Street. He stepped behind his wife to take the outside of the walk, and at the same time changed the coat he was carrying on his left arm to his right, when the pistol dropped from the pocket, the hammer striking the sidewalk and exploding a cartridge. The ball took effect in the left side of the lady, ranging upward through the heart and out at the top of the right shoulder, landing in the ceiling of the door in Hopf's clothing room. The unfortunate lady gave one scream and spoke but three words, "Oh, my darling." The coroner's jury rendered the following verdict: "We, the jury, sitting on the case of Ora Reynolds, deceased, find that she came to her death by the accidental discharge of a pistol falling from the overcoat pocket of J. J. Reynolds, the husband of the deceased." The jury exonerated Reynolds from blame. Mr. and Mrs. Reynolds had been married but three months. The lady was 20 years old.

THE GRAND JURY.

It Is Impaneled and Gets to Work.

This morning, in the Third District Court, the work of obtaining a grand jury for the April term was completed. E. R. Schoppe, L. S. Baumgarten, W. T. Barnes, Ed L. Rice, Wm Stevens and E. H. Parsons, brought in on open venire, were called. All answered the preliminary questions satisfactorily and were passed.

E. R. Schoppe asked to be excused on the ground that his business required his personal attention. The Court remarked that he would not be detained a great while on the grand jury, and declined to excuse him.

E. H. Parsons was sworn as the foreman of the grand jury.

The administering of the oath made by the Court under the Edmunds law was then proceeded with, each of the grand jurors coming forward in turn to subscribe thereto. The jury stands as follows:

E. H. Parsons, Foreman.
W. H. Smith.	Louis A. Sayler,
Oliver Sowell,	John Duke,
R. W. Berry,	Hyrum Smith,
James Murdock,	S. S. Baumgarten,
George J. Emery,	F. V. Burbidge,
Henry Procter,	Ed L. Price,
E. R. Schoppe.	Wm. Stevens.

The Court then charged the jury that it was their duty to investigate the accusations brought against persons held by the magistrates, or against others charged with having committed crime by violating the laws of the United States or of the Territory. It is not necessary to investigate trivial or apparently unfounded charges. There must be some ground for the accusation. Only legal evidence should be considered by them, and they should be careful to ascertain the truth. They should not be actuated by prejudice, or be influenced by fear, favor or affection. Each case should be investigated fairly and impartially. The various crimes are defined by the laws of the United State and Territory. There are two crimes which a large class of the people believe are sanctioned by divine revelation, and they believe it right to commit those offenses, under the sanction of a higher law. The grand jury cannot pay attention to this feeling, but must act under the law of the land. If there is sufficient evidence for a trial jury to convict the grand jury should find an indictment. If there is testimony that would explain away a charge, it is the duty of the grand jury, as impartial men, to hear that testimony, that no one may be unjustly indicted. All the proceedings of the grand jury should be kept secret, unless required by law to be divulged in court. There is a law punishing violation of this secrecy. The prosecuting attorney will give such advice as is necessary, or further instructions may be obtained from the court.

The jury retired in charge of a bailiff.

"The Western Galaxy."

We have received the second number of Tuttle's Monthly Magazine—The Western Galaxy. It is freighted with matter in which the reading public will doubtless take much interest. Some of the illustrations are of a high order. It is a publication that is a credit to the west.
