BALMACEDA.

How He Escaped the Revenge of His Enemies.

NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—A Herald cablegram from Valparaiso, September 14th, says:

Balmaceda has escaped from the clutches of his enemies and is now safe on the high seas under the protection of the United States. All the time the soldiers of the Junta were guarding the passes of the Andes to prevent his getting into the Argentine Republic, and the police of the new provisional government were searching the monasteries in and around Santiago for the fugitive ex-President, he was in hiding in the city. He was more apt to escape detection here than anywhere else, for his opponents never dreamed that he would dare return to Valparaiso, they being assured that he had fled from it.

Balmaceda chose his refuge wisely, for he was enabled to throw himself upon the mercy of Admiral Brown of the United States flagship "San Francisco," and beg to be saved from the revenge he feared from his foes. Admiral Brown did what other foreign Admirals would have done under similar circumstances.

He stepped in to save possibly a human life. In the name of humanity he consented to afford Balmaceda the shelter of his ship and the protection of the Stars and Stripes.

To effect the ex-President's escape it was decided to have Balmaceda disguise himself as a drunken United States sailor. Clothing was sent ashore in a market boat last night, by order of Admiral Brown. It was smuggled by one of Balmaceda's faithful adherents into the house where the ex-President was in hiding. He carefully donned it and after a close inspection of his new and strange attire to see that there was nothing about his get-up which would arouse suspicion, he stole out by the rear entrance into the streets. Nightfall favored his disguise and he had studied his part so well that he feigned the drunken tar to perfection. In his way toward the water front he rubbed by many men who would have been delighted to have had a chance to seize and turn him over to the police authorities.

In time he reached the spot in the harbor arranged upon. There he found a boat awaiting him, manned by sturdy United States men-of-war's men. Balmaceda, still maintaining his disguise, made a final drunken stumble and fell into the boat. It pushed off at once, and in a short time the ex-President, all signs of inebriety at an end, climbed swiftly up the ropes and was saved. He went at once to one of the cabins of the "San Francisco," and did not again show himself above. This part of the vessel was reserved solely for its prominent guest. Nobody was allowed inside the cabin. The officers of the "San Francisco" were questioned about the matter, but resolutely refused to discuss it. The "San Francisco" left Valparaiso this evening for Callao, thence it will sail for California. Balmaceda may elect to land at Callao, where many of his leading partisans have already been taken by foreign ships, on board which they sought refuge after the fall of Valparaiso. Admiral Brown's action will undoubtedly, for a time at least, increase the bitter feeling here toward the United States government, although admirals of other foreign vessels have taken prominent Balmacedists aboard.

The Case of R. D. Albertson.

TACOMA, Wash., Sept. 14.—The case of R. D. Albertson, the Seattle attorney, accused of concealing stolen property in connection with the Fidelity Bank robbery, commenced this afternoon. Albertson is a cousin of Edward Albertson, the defaulter, who has not yet been caught. The hearing lasted all afternoon and will be continued tomorrow. The first witness was President Wallace of the Fidelity Bank. He testified in detail as to the letter received from Edward Albertson, in which the latter confessed the crime and the manner in which the securities were covered from Chandler. The latter was produced in court. It is a lengthy epistle, describing in detail all the actions of its writer prior to his flight, and gives minute directions as to the procedure for the recovery of the securities. Wallace also testified as to the conversation with R. D. Albertson some days after Edward's flight, in which he (Wallace) asserts that Albertson told him that he assisted in the preparation of the document received from Edward. It is the purpose of the prosecution to show that R. D. Albertson prepared such documents and was cognizant of and party to the whole affair.

RECORDS BROKEN.

Four Hundred and Thirty Miles in 440 Minutes.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Sept. 14.—The New York Central today broke all records of fast time for long runs of passenger trains on either side of the Atlantic. A special train, composed of one of the company's new standard passenger engines, weighing 200,000 pounds, and three private cars, weighing 250,000 pounds conveying Vice-President Webb and party, made the run of 436 miles from New York to East Buffalo in 440 minutes, including three stops, one of which occupied 7½ minutes. The eclipse of the previous efforts of the kind is complete. Nothing approaching such a feat has ever before been accomplished, in America or Europe, as speeding along for over seven consecutive hours at more than a mile-a-minute gait.

THE ENGLISH OCCUPATION.

All Sorts of Rumors—What it Signifies.

LONDON, Sept. 14.—Late this evening another and more startling dispatch comes by telegraph from Athens. It is that the Greek consuls at Mitylene and at Smyrna have wired the Greek government that thirteen British men-of-war landed troops and guns at Sigri on Friday, and that they have already strongly fortified the place.

Lord Salisbury's Chief Private Secretary, has returned unexpectedly to London and is busy at the foreign office.

The St. James Gazette this evening says: "The startling news concerning the island of Mitylene obviously possesses political significance of the first importance." Continuing, it says that the island of Mitylene has a position of considerable strategic importance, although presenting little in the way of fortification.

LONDON EXCITED.

As soon as the report of the occupation of Mitylene by the British fleet was received here there was considerable excitement. Up to 2:30 p. m. there was no official utterance upon the subject. Reporters and correspondents by the score have called at the foreign office and at the admiralty, but officials on duty declined to confirm the report that Great Britain had taken action in the Dardanelles question. A dispatch was received from Constantinople stating the occupation of the island of Mitylene was an accomplished fact, and it has found echo on all continental bourses today. ...

Religious services were held at the Tabernacle, Salt Lake City, Sunday, September 13, 1891, commencing at 2 p. m., President Angus M. Cannon presiding.

The choir sang:

Behold the Saviour.

Prayer was offered by Elder H. P. Richards.

The choir sang:

Rise in the brightness of Zion's glad morning.

The Priesthood of the Twentieth ward officiated in the administration of the Sacrament.

ELDER JOHN NICHOLSON

addressed the congregation. Following is a brief synopsis of his discourse. It falls to my lot to address the large assembly convened in this house to engage in the worship of God. I desire the faith and prayers of those present that I may speak in unison with the Spirit of God. It is a little over three months since I had the privilege of meeting with the Saints in this building, having just returned from a visit to Great Britain. It is customary for Elders who have been abroad on returning to give an account of their experiences in the world.

One of the objects that took me abroad was to obtain genealogical information that would enable me to do a work pertaining to the salvation of my progenitors. The journey of the party with whom I traveled overland was without special interest, with one exception. On the way to New York we stayed a short time at Kansas City, which is only a short distance from a spot of historic interest to the Latter-day Saints. We took occasion to visit it. I speak of Independence, Jackson county, Missouri. In that town is situated the spot of ground which was pointed out by the finger of revelation as a place on which a holy temple is to be erected in the due time of the Lord. The servants of God, in accordance with divine commandment, dedicated the ground for that sacred purpose. The temple lot, which occupies an elevated position in a lovely region, ...
