
HOME.

No other word brings to our minds more pleasing reflections than the little word HOME. Forest Dale is intended to consist only of homes. It has attractions that no other addition in Salt Lake City possesses.

In times like the present people look for homes where their taxes are likely to be as low as possible, and their other expenses in proportion. Forest Dale, a subdivision of the old farm of the late President Young, is just far enough from Salt Lake City to be free from city taxes. Vegetables and fruit are cheaper; and for building purposes brick can be bought for at least one dollar per thousand less than in Salt Lake City. While it is wise to consider the question of economy, other matters are of even greater importance. Forest Dale has its own water system; the springs from which the supply is obtained producing over 1,300,000 gallons of pure, clear water in 24 hours. The pipes are laid all through the addition and those who purchase a home own the water piped to their door as well as the land their house stands on. One electric car system passes right through the addition; while another runs within a short distance of it and will also eventually pass through. Good school facilities exist; two teachers being employed in the Forest Dale School; with a high school for more advanced pupils near by. The social enjoyment of the neighborhood is also attended to; the Forest Dale Pleasant Hour Club being formed for the express purpose of furnishing at home plenty of harmless yet pleasant recreation. The old farm house furnishes quarters for concerts, dances and socials. These, with the Sunday Schools and kindred meetings giving the young a field for the development of their talents, without which no people can progress. For those who desire a home whether large or small we have property unexcelled anywhere. We desire to sell only to home makers. If you want a home, my agents will be pleased to take you to the property, and let you select that which suits you best. Lots of any size can be obtained. Call at room 502 Constitution Building; see plat of the ground and obtain any particulars you wish. No trouble to show property.

DESERET EVENING NEWS.

FRAGMENTS.

The Eighth quorum of Elders will meet in the Thirteenth ward this evening at 7:30.

County Selectman Morris returned yesterday from his trip to Chicago, having been absent about a month.

The Thirteenth quorum of Seventies meets this evening in the Twentieth ward vestry at 7:30. A full attendance is desired.

The gathering of wild maple, oak and other leaves, from the canyons and mountain gorges, tinged with the frost of autumn, seems to have become a regular fad with many people just now.

Four deer were killed up Payson canyon last week by Paysonites, says the Payson Globe. They are reported quite plentiful, the storm having driven them down from the mountains. Several mountain lions are said to be prowling around in the mountains.

The following was handed in for publication today: The first council of the Seventies will meet this evening at 7:30 with the Thirtieth quorum in the Nineteenth ward meeting house. It is earnestly requested that all members be present, as business of importance will be transacted.

THE COAL COMBINE.

Coalville Board of Trade After It in High Style.

ADDRESS TO SALT LAKE PEOPLE.

Summit County Coal Mine Owners on Their Mettle in the "Freeze Out" Scheme.

The executive committee of the Coalville board of trade on Saturday evening formulated an address to the people of Salt Lake on the momentous coal question. The full text of the document makes interesting reading, and is as follows:

COALVILLE, Oct. 6, 1893.

To the People of Salt Lake City:

During the last year Salt Lake City has been held within the grasp of a merciless and soulless monopoly, the coal combine of Salt Lake City. This monopoly is formed of the combination of the Union Pacific and Rio Grande Western coal companies. These coal companies are merely an organization of the officers of the respective railroad companies for the purpose of handling coal; and controlling as they do the rates of their respective roads, they make the railroads subserve their private interests, and thus increase their personal revenue to the detriment of the patrons and stockholders of the road and the coal mines that are being opened in various parts of the Territory, which it would seem that they should encourage rather than discourage. This combination in Salt Lake City is represented by the firm of Wolstenholme and Morris, with an office on Second South street. Last winter this firm set the price of coal for Salt Lake City, and priced as they might, the people could not obtain an iota rebate.

Nearly all the small coal dealers went out of the business, but afterward, through the influence of mine owners in different parts of the Territory, agencies sprung up in various parts of the city. Two agencies were opened for the purpose of handling the product of our mines.

What did the combinede when these mushroom agencies sprung up around them, some with the avowed intention of lowering the price of coal and giving the combine good, healthy competition? They went around quietly to the managers of the different agencies and told them that as long as they sold coal at the figures set by the combine, it would be all right, but as soon as they lowered the price of coal or did not dance to their music, they would be closed out of the market. This had the desired effect, and no coal was sold in Salt Lake City last winter below the combine prices.

But with these figures Coalville sent into the market, in competition with the product of Rock Springs and Castle Gate, 13,000 tons of coal, which was more than we had sent into that market for many years. Last spring Superintendent McGeath, of the Union Pacific coal company, looking over the record of shipments, saw the number of tons we had shipped into your market, and plainly told one of our mine owners that it would not do, they must have that trade from Rock Springs next year; and they take this means of getting it.

And the Union Pacific coal company, under the direction of McGeath at Rock Springs and Wolstenholme in Salt Lake City, have gone systematically to work to close Coalville out of the Salt Lake City market, and tighten its merciless grasp on the people of Salt Lake City.

September 29th, under the direction of the sovereign coal king at Rock Springs, McGeath, the rate on coal from Coalville to Salt Lake City and intermediate points was raised from $1.75 to $2 per ton, and from Grass Creek to Salt Lake City from $1.25 to $2. As the coal mined at Grass Creek has to be hauled several miles to the cars (the Union Pacific several years ago having taken up its spur), the raise will entirely shut them out of the market, and the mines will be compelled to shut down. Coal can be still shipped from Coalville at the new rate by the cutting the profits at this end.

But we are assured that the end is not yet. Before making this raise Wolstenholme came out from Salt Lake City and tried to get control of our product that he might more effectually work the thumb screws on Salt Lake. But while here he gave his secret away and the mine owners would not let him have a pound of coal. He wanted to handle our coal exclusively in the Salt Lake market. He stated his intention was to put the price of our coal down to actual cost to the consumers until he had driven all small dealers out of the field, when he would raise the coal back to its old price. This course could have no other result than to drive our product out of your market.

The mine owners reasoned that if that if they were to be "frozen out" it might as well be now as a little later, and, although Mr. Wolstenholme came two trips out here, he received no satisfaction whatever, and in a few days came the announcement of the raise in the freight rate. Were this the ultimatum, Coalville would not be so deeply affected by the present rate, but the mine owners are given to understand that if the present raise is not effective in working its dastardly purpose they will be given another dose of the same medicine.

This is a direct blow at the vitals of our main industry. Large sums of money have been spent in our mines here and Salt Lake capital has helped to develop our properties. The mines are in a better condition to ship coal to Salt Lake this winter than ever before. A tyrannical monopoly, backed by a railroad whose policy has always been to throttle every enterprise that did not contribute its entire earnings into their treasury, aims a death blow at the coal industry of Summit county, and like a snake winds its coils tighter around the capital city of the Territory as its rightful prey. Will the people affected sit quietly down and see its inhumane end accomplished without any attempt to thwart it?

Who are the sufferers by this? The poor, the laboring classes. Scores of laborers in Coalville are depending for their living upon digging the coal. In Salt Lake City there are hundreds of families who will find it difficult this coming winter to obtain the food and fuel necessary for comfort. These are the people who are paying $1.50 more than they ought for every ton of coal they buy. Where does this money go? Into the pockets of a grinding monopoly. And who subsidized this monopoly, built its roads and by its patronage enabled it to get this "immortal clinch?" The people. Who supports these small-souled men, whom we have mentioned, who are leading out in this movement? The people, by their compulsory patronage.

And it is the people of our two cities who ought to rise in indignation and, if there are any available agencies, crush these men and their monopolies back into their rightful places, completely boycott their organizations and free themselves from their crafty grasp.

There must be and there is a solution to this problem, and the people of our two cities must find it.

Sixty-five thousand dollars will make connection with the Utah Central at Park City, and we can supply your city with every pound of coal you need at a saving of at least $1.50 per ton from what you are now paying. How much would this saving for one year loan in paying for the connection?

We will not in this article attempt to outline a solution of the problem, but we appeal to the people of Salt Lake City, who are as deeply affected by this movement as we, to unite in crushing this blockader. If another road will give us an outlet for our products we will so completely boycott the Union Pacific that they will not have traffic enough to pay them to run a hand car through this valley, no matter what rates they may give. Should patronage be given a road that pursues such a pernicious policy? Would not the people in the Territory be justified in encouraging a freeze out, even though they had to go back to their ox-cart transfer? We think so.

We are aware that we are not the only ones that have suffered from its unjust discrimination. Every town where it did not meet competition it has served in the same way. Its rates are not based on equity and the cost of transportation with fair profit, but they figure on just the maximum they can exact. It is a "high license," not a "rate."

We invite discussion on the subject. With unity of action on the part of the people, aided by a staunch support of the press, a solution of the problem can be found.

(Signed) EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE,
Members of the Coalville Board of Trade.

From Norway.

Elder Nephi Anderson, of Ogden, was in Salt Lake today and made a pleasant call on the NEWS. He returned on Thursday last from a mission to Scandinavia, on which he left August 29, 1891. His field of labor was Norway, where he met with good treatment and success. He enjoyed excellent health and spirits in his missionary labors. In company with Elder E. A. Stratford, also of Ogden, who was returning from a two years' mission to Great Britain, Elder Anderson stopped over at Chicago for a few days' visit to the World's Fair.

NEATLY NABBED.

A Tale of Tough Characters Cleverly Captured by Three Tenth Ward Boys.

The cleverest capture of would-be burglars of recent date was planned last night by Asam Proctor, an invoice clerk, employed at Z. C. M. I. He lives close by the Tenth ward store at No. 424 Eighth East street, and about 10 o'clock observed three suspicious characters lurking about the place. He soon satisfied himself that they meant mischief and quietly slipped away to the residence of Adam Spiers and informed the latter's son, Earnest, of his discovery. The two young men called to their aid another, Will Proctor, a brother of Adam. Spiers armed himself with a double barrelled shotgun and the Proctors, in the absence of shooting irons, seized a couple of formidable baseball bats and in a remarkably short time they had surrounded the store and bagged their men, who were placed on board a street car and taken to police headquarters, where they gave their names as Joe Hamden, J. T. Mitchell and Ed. Lewis.

An examination of the store resulted in the discovery that a panel had been taken from a rear door through which an opening was made large enough to insert an arm to unlock the door with the key on the inside. A slung shot was also picked up near the rear of the building.

This morning at 10 o'clock the accused were taken before Justice Dee for arraignment, but were given until the same hour tomorrow to plead.
