TRANSVAAL AFFAIRS

No Intention on the Part of Germany to Go to War.

ALL PARTIES DESIRE PEACE.

The Plot of the Uitlanders the Blackest in the History of the Little Republic.

LONDON, Jan. 12.—The Berlin correspondent of the Times says: The political gloom given to the exchange of telegrams between the queen and emperor is very unwelcome here. It is regarded as an indirect attempt to make political capital in the English interest out of the family relations of the two courts.

President Kruger's attitude may be a fair test of Germany's real attitude in the profession of amity. If President Kruger proves obstinate it would be difficult to resist the conclusion that he has been allowed to count upon Germany's support. It must not be forgotten that, before Dr. Jameson's raid, the organs of the German foreign office urged President Kruger to ignore the menaces of the National Union of Johannesburg. Dr. Jameson's ill-starred enterprise simply gave Germany an opportunity to exhibit her friend to a plausible condemnation of a breach of international law.

The Standard says: We are enabled to state that President Kruger has not demanded any concessions in return for his telegram. It was thought, England would resist. We are authorized to believe that the emperor's telegram to President Kruger was almost an expression of a feeling of momentary irritation, which has passed away, leaving Germany and England as amicably as previously.

The Standard, it should be remembered, stands nearer to the government than any paper in England.

A dispatch to the Standard from Berlin says: It is rumored that the Empress Frederick has written to Queen Victoria and the Princess of Wales explaining the emperor's policy, with the assurance that he had not the slightest intention to jeopardize the evening of the queen's life by an Anglo-German war.

The Prince of Wales on Saturday caused all the prominent members of the colonial office staff to be presented to him, and he congratulated them in kindly terms upon the work they have achieved in the last fortnight.

The Berlin correspondent of the Daily News says: The crisis is less acute, and as President Kruger is making peace with England over Germany's head, Germany has won at England without gaining anything by the encounter. Everybody is getting tired of the whole question.

KRUGER ISSUES A PROCLAMATION.

PRETORIA, Jan. 12.—A proclamation issued by President Kruger on Friday, a brief mention of which was made in a dispatch from here on that day, said that he had long meditated an alteration of the constitution, but that he could not accede to unwarrantable demands. He had intended to submit to the next session of the Volksraad a law granting a municipality to Johannesburg.

"Date I do so," continued the proclamation, "after what has happened? I will give the answer myself. I know there are thousands in Johannesburg to whom I can with confidence intrust this. Let the Johannesburgers make it possible for the government to appear before the Volksraad with the words 'forgiveness and forgive.'"

The proclamation has created a profound impression.

THREAT OF THE FUTURE.

It is keenly perceived by the public that the sentiment displayed by the German government has a far wider bearing than the present dispute in Transvaal, and there are visions of future complications on questions of conflicting interests.

Yesterday's cabinet council and the meetings at the colonial office remain largely a subject of speculation, and whatever decisions may have been taken are definitely guarded as state secrets and the greatest care taken to avoid publicity.

It is understood the difficulty over the manner of the disposal of Dr. Jameson's followers was settled on Saturday, the Transvaal government simply stipulating that the rank and file of the Jameson expedition should be deported from South Africa. According to the Transvaal law, the punishment for treason is banishment and a large fine.

THE RAID.

A dispatch received from sources sympathetic with the Transvaal government in Johannesburg tonight asserts that the plot for Jameson's raid and the subsequent uprising of the Uitlanders was the most atrocious in history. The highest rank of the plot, the dispatch asserts, was the initiation of the agents of the Chartered South Africa company to set loose the savages to invade the Transvaal from all points and to kill every white man. It has been alleged that all over South Africa provisional stations should be erected on the lines of the route, and the points had been fixed. The object was to destroy Pretoria and to present England with a fait accompli before any aid could reach them. Sketches of Pretoria and of the Rand made by military men have, it is said, been seized.

The story is denounced in London as a gross exaggeration.

GERMAN PAPERS CHANGE THEIR TONE.

BERLIN, Jan. 12.—(Copyrighted, 1896, by the Associated Press.)—There is decidedly less stress of feeling today in regard to the international complication growing out of the Transvaal crisis, and the german press as a rule devotes less space to it than for some time. The tone of the comment of the newspapers, which means so much in this land of press censorship and muzzled expression to newspapers, is rather more pacific, and there is less talk of active hostilities and more have expressed of an enforced settlement of the question at issue. Expressions of irritation at the British government and of rancor against the english people are still more or less bitter, however.

The Tageblatt today replies to the assertions made yesterday in the Westminster Gazette that Germany's attitude on the American question had alienated Great Britain and had driven it to accept a rapprochement with France. The Westminster Gazette added that there was absolutely no intention on the part of Great Britain to enter the Franco-Russian alliance, say more than the contrary, but Great Britain had become, it was hoped, better friends with both France and Russia, to which the Tageblatt replies: "As England has sought hitherto a pillot dappui in the dreibund, Germany would not have noticed that had it not been for Englands's ceaseless colonial intrigues. The indefatigable abuse in the English press of Germany is proof of such an intimacy. If this be so, Germany rejoices that England henceforth will steal the ruddiest of her favor on the zweibund." (Russia and France.)

The Hamburger correspondent declares that there is no question of the abrogation of the treaty of Great Britain over the Transvaal, because the Transvaal has not renounced the British suzerainty at any time since 1884.

INSURGENTS NEAR HAVANA.

Money Offered for the Assassination of the Rebel General.

TAMPA, Fla., Jan. 12.—Passengers arriving from Cuba tonight report that Boloff's band has passed over Puentes Grande (the big bridge near Havana). The Spaniards had strengthened heavy chains across the bridge to prevent the passage of cavalry. This did not deter the insurgents.

The Havana theaters have suspended, and the Italian opera, which has just arrived, will not play.

The Prunes Exchange is forming five battalions for the defense of the city. A double guard now surrounds all the government buildings.

General Gomez has sent a proclamation to the colonels of volunteers in Havana not to commit outrages on any citizens, and threatens to blow up the city if the edict is disregarded.

Agusto Salano, chief of police of the part of Havana, was sent to Spain under arrest on January 10th, and was replaced by Trujillo Monago. Salano was relieved for permitting ammunition to enter Havana, and overlooking the passage of several insurgent agents.

General Weily is soon to arrive with 25,000 troops from Pinar del Rio.

Fernandino Castro, who gave $5,000 for the killing of Gaceda, offers more for the killing of Gomez.

GENERAL CHIEF'S PLANS.

NEW YORK, Jan. 13.—A dispatch to the World from Havana, Cuba, says: Gen. Maximo Gomez sends the following to the World:

"My purpose in entering the three western provinces was to place them in active rebellion against the Spanish authorities and to prevent the making of sugar during the present year. In both objects I have been successful.

"I move my army from Camaguey with the substance of my able lieutenants, and my progress to Pinar del Rio has virtually been uninterrupted. I moved over Mantanzas, and when the greater portion of the cane was destroyed I carried on the same work in portions of Havana. The destruction of cane in Pinar del Rio ended my principal object of my prearranged plans.

"Everywhere the people have welcomed our army. A large number of men have followed by column, several thousand at a time, who would have gladly carried arms could I have provided them.

"It is not my policy to have a general engagement with the Spanish troops. I cannot afford to risk the loss of arms and ammunition that a battle may cause.

Killed By a Mob.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Jan. 12.—Patrick Morris, a white railroad hand, and his colored wife met a terrible fate at midnight last night. They lived in a flatboat near the Westwego wharf of the Texas & Pacific, a few miles above the city, on the opposite bank of the river.

On account of their difference in color, as well as the charge that they kept a disorderly place for negroes, there has been a growing sentiment against them. They were sitting up in their boat when a body of men came down and set fire to the hull. They sought refuge on shore, and as soon as they made their appearance they were riddled with bullets. The women was killed outright, but the man fell crippled and the two were burned to ashes with the boat.

The Russian Minister.

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—M. Kotesky, the Russian minister to the United States, arrived on La Champagne today and left for Washington tonight.

Trains Held for Taxes.

ATCHISON, Kan., Jan. 12.—An Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe freight train was in charge of Sheriff Larkin of Atchison county for a few hours last night. The company refused to pay its 1895 taxes assessed by Atchison county, or at least that portion levied for the new courthouse and Atchison street purposes, claiming such levies were excessive and illegal. Late yesterday afternoon County Treasurer McCully turned the collection of the Santa Fe taxes, about $700 in all, over to Sheriff Larkin. Yesterday was Larkin's last day in office and he wanted the tax, and went to work to gain it. He learned of the freight train that would reach the Atchison yards last night, and going there, he attached it. The legal department of the road at Topeka, telegraphed Larkin that the company would pay the taxes under protest within five days. This was sufficient and he released the train. It was delayed five hours.

"Neither will attempt to occupy and hold a town. In that case the Spaniards would survive it with a superior force. I avoid towns generally to my marches. The destruction of Gabrio and Guisa were warnings to all communities not to resist my progress. My people were fired on at both places and they retaliated by conflagration.

"I destroyed portions of the western railway in order to prevent the Spaniards from transporting troops.

"I cannot reveal my future plans, but I will state that all my movements are prearranged, with some few exceptions, and I expect to carry them out successfully. The war is being conducted on a much broader scale than the ten years' revolution.

Semi-Civil Fight in Kentucky.

CINCINNATI, Jan. 12.—The Commercial-Gazette special from Frankfort, Ky., says: "Since the nomination of Senator Blackburn by the Democratic caucus and of Congressman Godfrey Hunter by the Republican caucus, there is a bitter political fight for election as senator. Blackburn and his friends are shouting the burial of Representative Wilson. Hunter has had an all-day reception and received hundreds of congratulatory telegrams.

The lawn provide for balloting the second Tuesday after the assemblage of the legislature. Blackburn's friends say there will be no joint ballot Tuesday, January 21st, if filibustering will prevent it. The special election for Wilson's successor will be January 28th. Blackburn's men will have the new Democratic member here Tuesday, January 21st. They insist no ballot will be taken till he qualifies.

ALASKA BOUNDARY DISPUTE.

Senator Davis Has Found Nothing to Arbitrate.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 12.—Senator Davis, of the committee on foreign relations, has been giving considerable attention to the Alaskan boundary dispute. He has found nothing in his investigations which would cause him to change the lines which have always been understood as the boundary, and upon which both countries have been proceeding for many years. He says that the only question in dispute is whether the ten marine leagues from the ocean mount from the mainland or from the adjacent islands. Mr. Davis says this does not even present a case for arbitration, because it is manifestly plain that the shore of the mainland of the continent is the basis of the true line. It is also evident from the selection of the mountain range as a line that the men who drew the boundary agreement meant that the line should be ten leagues from the ocean where it touched the mainland. Islands, he said, always go with the shore, and when a question arises as to whether an island, no matter at what time settled or claimed, belongs to one country or another, it goes always to the country owning the mainland, if the mainland is adjacent. So it is with the island of the Alaskan archipelago. They become the property of Russia, because Russia owned the mainland of the shore, and became the property of the United States when Alaska was sold to this country.

Will Publish Venezuelan Papers.

LONDON, Jan. 12.—The Standard, the Conservative government organ, says editorially this morning: "The Cabinet this morning decided to publish the Venezuelan papers at the earliest possible moment. We gladly take this opportunity to bear testimony to the magnanimous attitude of the American nation to us at a time when countries less generous thought a favorable opportunity had arisen for stooping forward as a tout of theft, if not of murder. This conduct was worthy of the Americans, and has materially improved Lord Salisbury's decision.

"The maintenance of friendship with America is a way of fame, and of benefit to England. We say this to the American people with the absolute candor of despassionate rationality."

Arizona's Governor.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 11.—For a number of months Secretary Hoke Smith has been making an investigation of charges preferred against Governor Hughes, of Arizona. The charges were filed mainly by Arizona Democrats, who began forwarding complaints more than two years ago. The allegations were that Governor Hughes misused his office in various ways; that he had taken wrongful procedure in disposing of certain suits in the courts; that he had made unwarranted payments of $50 a month salary to a relative, and, among other things, failed to support the Democratic candidate or candidates in use of the recent local elections. The investigation has been made by representatives of the department, and the report is a voluminous one, containing conflicting statements by the parties to the contention.

Secretary Smith thus far has not determined upon the course he will pursue, but will decide within a short time. No charges have been filed in the department recently, and the statement from Arizona that the grand jury had impeached Governor Hughes and the territorial board as well, is thought here to be based on action taken several months ago.

SENATE REORGANIZATION.

Will Be Accomplished When Utah Comes.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 11.—It is now the intention of the Republican senators to hold their caucus immediately after the completion of the organization of the senate on Republican day next Monday. It is the general belief among senators that the caucus will result in immediate action, but whatever course may be decided upon will not be undertaken until the Utah senators shall take their seats. The Republicans will then be one short of a majority, but the senators of this faith are now very confident that the votes will be secured from among the Populists.
