ILLEGIT LIQUOR CASE.

Sheriff Layne went out to Huntsville Saturday afternoon and arrested Hokon Olsen, who was put on bail, pending an appeal to the Supreme court, and brought him to Ogden. By request of the county attorney, Olsen was released until next Thursday, when he will again be brought before the court to be sentenced. He had been convicted of selling liquor without a license and sentenced to pay a fine of $100 and be imprisoned in the county jail for 100 days. From this sentence he appealed.

SCHOOL FINANCES.

The committee on finances of the board of education estimate that the amount of money which will be required for the support and maintenance of the Ogden City schools for the school year ending July 1, 1899, and ending June 30, 1900, will be $67,500; interest on bonds, $4,750; for building purposes, $7,150; total for all purposes, $64,400. Deducting $15,000, the amount to be realized by apportionment of state school funds, leaves the sum of $49,400 to be raised by local taxation. The estimated total assessed valuation of all taxable property in the district is $7,000,000. The extreme limit of taxation allowed by law for the support and maintenance of the Lakeside building purposes and interest on bonds will produce on the estimated assessed valuation of the district, but $45,500, or $3,900 less than is required.

On Saturday B. T. Hume was appointed administrator of the estate of A. F. Ash, deceased, and filed his bond of $12,000, with Fred J. Kiesel and T. A. Wilmsen as sureties. Judge Hiles, Patrick Martin and T. G. Hart were appointed appraisers.

The report of County Auditor Hollingsworth of the financial condition of Weber county for the quarter ended March 31, 1899, shows the assets of the county to be $293,016.22, an excess over liabilities of $19,422.36.

PROVO.

Body of W. H. Callahan Sent East—Legal Business—Notes.

Special Correspondence.

Provo, May 1.—Mr. J. L. Callahan came down from Helena, Mont., Saturday, to view the body of the man who came to his death from being struck by a D. & R. G. engine on the track near Provo last Tuesday. Mr. Callahan recognized the body as that of his brother, W. H. Callahan, whose home was in Waseca, Minn., where he had a wife. Provo met Tuesday. Mr. Callahan had the body embalmed and started with it for Waseca this morning, over the D. & R. G. He was greatly affected over the sad death of his brother; he informed the "News" representative that his brother was an architect and building contractor, and was once sent by his firm a scaffold and received injuries from which he never fully recovered, and which affected his brain. About two months ago he left home, thinking that traveling would prove beneficial to him, and Mr. Callahan supposed his mental trouble has increased until he found himself without means and far away from friends and gave way to despondency. He does not, however, think his brother committed suicide, and the circumstances do not seem to indicate that he did.

All the members of the present faculty were reengaged, and Prof. Alex Lewis, the leader of our Tabernacle choir, was added to the new faculty, as instructor in vocal music.

The president of the college was authorized to arrange and make appointments for the conducting of farmers' institutes with some of the proceeds arising from the $2,000 appropriation. The salary was raised from $1,500 to $1,600 per annum, and several other employes received more or less of an increase of salary. The treasurer was instructed to draw upon the State auditor for warrants due the college.

It was decided to have the mechanical department make an exhibit at the Los Angeles fair.

The president of the college was empowered to advertise for bids for painting the high buildings of the college, with the understanding that the students perform that work on the smaller structures. The board then adjourned until June.

CASTLE GATE.

Tribute to Dead and Wounded Volunteers—Roadside Building.

Special Correspondence.

Castle Gate, Carb. Co., April 27.—The death of Max Madison and the wounding of Mr. Jensen came upon us with a shock to their many friends in this town. It is true Max Madison enlisted from Salt Lake, and that he was employed there, leaving the Majestic out, and it was only after careful consideration on the part of his intimate friends that the shocking news of the people here were convinced of the fact.

Your correspondent was very intimate with both young men when they lived here, and it is with pride that he recalls the fact that on one occasion young Jensen fired from that Madison and Jensen, and when the news of the wounding of Corporal Jensen gave to the ears of a certain young girl now in Salt Lake City, there will be one heart bowed down with sadness and despair.

Quite a large number of families are having letter from different parts of the country and State, among whom are the families of E. Wilcox, W. Evans and B. Davis.

W. Cook and Miss Maggie Jenkins were married last evening. A dance was held in the K. of P. hall, after the ceremony was performed, in honor of the event.

BUILDING A RESERVOIR.

A large water tank is in course of erection at this place and of town; it is under the supervision of Master Mechanic S. H. Pierce; it is a much needed improvement to this place, inasmuch as a reservoir of good drinking water. There are quite a number of wells sunk but the water is brackish in the most of them. It has been customary with the company of late years to haul water from the Spring Canyon, but this year it was considered too expensive and was discarded last year.

The Sanitarium Bros. of Mount pleasant have been in town for a few weeks. When not engaged otherwise they have been painting scenery for the K. of P. hall. They have also painted several pieces of scenery for the Price opera house. Just now they have a contract to paint the interior of the Magnolia Hall, owned by Mr. R. F. Cadley.

HOLDEN.

Welcome Rain—Suspicion the School Teacher—Schools Closing.

Special Correspondence.

Holden, Millard County, April 26.—At last we are blessed with rain to settle the dust. For some time we have been threatened with some of the worst windstorms ever fell here. It began raining yesterday afternoon and continued almost steady ever since. Yesterday was a very agreeable change, as the dry winds were parching the earth. Some fear it will be too much to show we are somewhat alarmed lest the frost shall deprive us of this crop.

One prominent official, the county superintendent of District Schools, H. P. Brown, was agreeably surprised today when he visited the school room from the school room Miss Hillhouse, teacher of the primary department, with the assistance of the other teachers Lurvidity set tables and loaded them with a great variety of delicacies. Everything being in readiness on the corner, he was greeted with a song from the pupils as he was ascending the stairs and on entering the school room and finding such a display he was dumfounded. The friends had to help him all for the mark of respect shown him.

A very agreeable time was had.

The primary department of our town closed tonight, the higher departments Wednesday, May 3rd. Our schools have been very fair for the past season, the teachers giving satisfaction generally.

The farmers have mostly turned their cattle out on the summer range. The grass having got a very good start.

MORONI.

Farewell Surprise Party—Snow, Wind and Rain.

Special Correspondence.

Moroni, April 29.—James W. Christensen, one of Moroni's respected citizens, is starting for Salt Lake City, and about fifty of his relations and friends gave him and his good lady a friendly surprise party last night, which included a sumptuous repast.

It has been terribly cold here for several days, and snow on the afternoon and evening of the 27th, also the same yesterday, the 28th, a little cloudy this morning, looks like more storms yet.

OUR NEIGHBORS.

WESTON, IDAHO.

Little Child Meets a Painful Accident—News Notes.

Special Correspondence.

Weston, Oneida Co., Idaho, April 29.—On Wednesday last a little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Wass was playing about the meeting house just before going to her religion class meeting. While running around the house, she fell and the child, striking against the steps, bruising her face and cutting her upper lip badly. It was thought necessary to sew the lip, but under proper care she is getting along nicely.

Last Thursday Elder James Stoker returned from his mission to the Northern States. He has been gone a year and has enjoyed good health. Brother says his health has generally been very good, and he has enjoyed his labors and feels satisfied with his efforts. The mission is prospering, he says, and he has many warm friends, and some are seeking after the truth and are willing to accept it when presented.

Last night there was a dance in the meeting house; the proceeds are to be used in behalf of our religious class. The teachers anticipate having an outing with the class, which numbers nearly one hundred, in the near future, as the days are warm. The money obtained will go for presents, prizes and treats, and to pay the expenses of a full day of enjoyment for the little people and their parents.

MILLIONAIRES IN EUROPE.

Wealth of Rockfellers and Vanderbilts Pale in Comparison.

The death of the Russian general, Alexander Bodlewski, serves to recall how very little is heard in this country of the existence in the old world of millionaires, beside whose wealth even that of the Rockfellers, the Vanderbilts, the Astors and the Rockefellers sink into comparative insignificance. True, it is not a wealth that is so extensively advertised in the public press as that of the great American multimillionaires, and hence it is little heard of outside their own country. Yet I doubt if there is any American or English millionaire whose wealth is comparable to those, for instance, of the late M. Bischoffsheim, little fortune was simply incalculable, and his gold mines in Siberia, which have been in his family for generations and which are fabulous for the richness of their ore, for their splendid organization, and which are practically nonhostile, constitute only a portion of the estate which he leaves, divided among his four sisters, nothing being left to his divorced wife, who was the cause of such a sensational law suit at St. Petersburg and at Paris some twenty years ago. Most of the large storgans fisheries in Russia belonged to him, and his estate in Orenburg and Siberia are the size of kingdoms.

He came to Paris shortly after the Crimean war, in which he distinguished himself, and from that time forth made his home in the French capital. It was his friend, Prince Metternich, who first turned his attention to art, and who inspired him with the passion of his life.

To house his treasures he built the palace which formerly bore his name, which is now known as Rue de Faisanderie, at Passy, in the Avenue Kleber, and which is today the Parisian residence of Queen Natalie of Servia.

At the time of his divorce from his wife he determined to get rid both of his wife and his palace in Paris. The art collection he presented to Emperor Alexander II., and it now constitutes the principal attraction of the imperial museum of the Hermitage palace at St. Petersburg. At the same time he sold the palace itself to Queen Natalie, who is its present owner.

Equally inexhaustible is the wealth of the Demidoffs, who also consider a great part of mining property, this house adopting almost the monopoly of malachite and lapislazuli, besides producing gold and silver mines in Russia of great richness. Then, too, there are the Yussoupoffs, who rivaled almost the entire output of turquoise in the world. This, however, being merely a family jewel, it is not the resource of the revenue of the Princess Yussoupoff, who is now the sole heiress to the immense fortune of her husband (who was permitted by the late czar to assume her name and title) is descended in the third generation from an American of the name of Elam, who entered the service of the Czar Paul at the close of the last century.

Similarly inexhaustible is the fortune of the emperor of Russia, the income from which is estimated at some $50,000,000 per annum. But this is probably below the actual figure. For it must be borne in mind that the personal estates of the czar are several huge empires, such as that on the Volga, the Hoofs of New York, and abounding in mineral wealth, only in the early stage of development.

Little is known in this country, the, of the extent of the colonial wealth of the late Alexander Albert of Austria, whose estates constituted a goodly portion of the entire empire, and comprise immense tracts of land in Bohemia, the Adriatic made on consignments at low or rates.
