OVER $20,000 IN— GOLD FOUND

The greatest find in the history of Utah, by which over seven hundred people are made to rejoice, and the end is not yet.

When we look into the past for a few months it seems impossible to dig up this much gold; but on the other hand, when you see how it is done you will not wonder, or be surprised, although times are hard. For the past few months we have only been doing that which we thought few, and have secured for those interested the above amount, one of the best records ever known.

And when we consider that there is now $10,000 to be divided among the people, we can only say to the public, come early and get your share. There will be no partiality shown, as we have made arrangements for plenty of help, who will make it pleasant for you.

Now, the above $10,000 consists of Dry Goods, Notions, Boots, Shoes, Clothing and Gents' Furnishings, Plush Capes and Wraps, which we must get rid of at your own prices. So we say once more, and especially to the stockholders, that you cannot afford to miss these great reduced prices without investigating. Sale now on at the

DESERET EVENING NEWS.

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 7, 1893.

FRAGMENTS.

CITY TREASURER PUCKETT left Salt Lake last evening.

THERE was no session of the Probate court today.

ASSISTANT DISTRICT ATTORNEY BOGARDUS has returned from Nephi.

THOMAS P. THOMAS, a native of Wales, now residing in the city, was today admitted to citizenship by Judge Zane.

THE morning's rainstorm was "quite English, you know," in the manner of its heavy downpour.

THE members of the Tabernacle choir are requested to meet for practice tomorrow (Friday) evening at 7:30.

THE Twenty-first quorum of Elders will meet in the Nineteenth ward meeting house tomorrow evening at 7:30.

THE board of public works held a meeting of considerable interest last night, though the business transacted was not important.

THE Attorney-men were out in force at their regular meeting last evening. W. J. Trayner, a leading spirit of the parent organization, was present and addressed the members on the day of the "force."

UMBRELLAS, rubbers, gossamers and mackintoshes were in great demand yesterday morning and for many days and nights, and there was an unusual overflowing hopper of these articles by movements from basements, boxes and storerooms, where they had been placed for the summer.

THE promoters of the Cherokee excursion have the prospect of carrying a goodly number of people in the newly-opened strip. Long-time residents in Utah are not, however, included among those who desire to seek home and fortune elsewhere than in this favored locality.

A MAN under the influence of liquor was ejected from a street car on Fourth South street, between Second and Third West, last evening, and in going from the car to the ground fell against a child that was about to get on the car, severely knocking the little one. Parties who witnessed the affair were strong in their condemnation of the rough manner in which the conductor handled the intoxicated individual.

Did Not Get Him.

Wm. Pauter, in search of whom Deputy Sheriff O'Brien went to South Cottonwood yesterday afternoon, was not to be found. He is a sheepherder and that is the reason he is away in other pastures. So the deputy brought back the warrant which he held for his arrest.

Abstract of Judgment.

An abstract of judgment was filed in the Third district court this morning in the case of C. Ewing, M. D., vs. D. N. Witzel. The trial took place in Justice Kesler's court on July 28th, 1893, the finding being in favor of plaintiff for the sum of $56.25 and costs.

Before Judge Zane.

In the case of the White River Valley Land and Live Stock Company, vs. D. J. Burrows, the defendant was today allowed until October 1st to prepare and file statement on motion for a new trial and exception to report of referee. Stay of execution was granted in the meantime.

CITIZENS' ADDRESS.

Carefully Discussed and Adopted at the Meeting Last Night.

MISRULE AND EXTRAVAGANCE.

The Reckless and Unprincipled Course of the Ruin and Rule Gang Plainly Portrayed.

The small parlor on the second floor of the Walker House was filled to overflowing last night by business and professional men who attended the citizens' meeting to hear and act upon the address prepared by the special committee setting forth the financial condition of the city and the malad-ministration of its affairs by the Liliental rule and ruin gang. Many gentlemen stood in the corridors and upon the stairway while others went away on account of not being able to gain admission.

At 8:30 o'clock Chairman Dooly called the meeting to order and Secretary Heber M. Wells read the address, which is as follows:

THE ADDRESS.

To the Citizens of Salt Lake City:

In view of the near approach of the municipal election and the present condition of municipal affairs, the undersigned respectfully invite your attention to the following statement of facts, submitting the same for your careful and candid consideration, and trusting such action may be taken by the electors as will best serve their interests, and correct the evils which now exist in the city government. We view the matter of municipal government as properly belonging within the range of the administration of business affairs, rather than in the domain of party politics.

It is well understood by every citizen that a municipality is not constituted for the purpose of advancing or promoting theories of government or dealing with political questions. The powers being defined by the Legislature, and presuming none not affirmatively granted, we submit that the function of administering to affairs is upon the most right principles and purely as a business matter, that efficient and satisfactory government of a city can only be expected when placed in the hands of honest and capable men. Instead of the idea of providing positions of honor and profit for political partisans and seeking to multiply places for such, the true function, as aside from the mere preservation of the peace, is here performed by taking a comprehensive and enlightened view of the business and amount of revenues that may be raised, consistent with the ready requirements of the taxpayer, and administering the municipal government within a reasonable limit.

To these general principles all will readily assent. A glance at the present administration of city affairs will show how completely all these accepted maxims of government have been disregarded, and an examination of the revenues and expenditures in detail is well calculated to startle the citizens by the inequality and extravagance everywhere apparent.

Presented herewith as a part of this address is a statement of the ordinary receipts, and the disbursements of the city government for the year of 1892, showing:

Total receipts from taxes, licenses, etc	$ [illegible]
Total disbursements	[illegible]
Excess expenditures for 1892	$ [illegible]
For work months of 1891, ending [illegible] 1892, being the difference in the revenue to cover street work, the school taxes, licenses, etc., which do not come in [illegible]	$ [illegible]
Expenditures for the same period	[illegible]
Excess of expenditures for two years ending 1892	$ [illegible]
Total bonded indebtedness at the present time	$1,925,000
Warrants outstanding and unpaid July 31, 1893	[illegible]
Water indebtedness due to the people	[illegible]
Total indebtedness	$[illegible]

Add to this amount the liabilities undertaken on the contracts for the gravity sewer and the city and county building, which are estimated to be not less than $300,000.

These figures simply show that since the present administration has been in power the city is expending an amount fully double its receipts from all ordinary sources. From the above it is apparent that the debt-contracting power under the act of Congress is very nearly, if not quite, reached, and the obtaining of means by the issue of bonds for further improvements is prohibited by the laws of the United States.

Without charging bad motives to the present municipal council or heads of departments, there seems to have been a most reckless extravagance. Its appearance everywhere in the affairs of the municipal government makes it difficult to select instances. In the department of waterworks, street sprinkling sections of the country, practically monopolized have been established with water pipes, for periods of one to two years, representing in expenditure many thousands of dollars, and resulting without any connection with any source of supply of water whatever, thus burdening the people not only with the original cost but the interest on the indebtedness thereby incurred, while there is absolutely no necessity for it whatever, and results to the present time wholly wanted.

This phase of municipal extravagance and mismanagement at real estate becoming at the public expense is exhibited in what is known as the North bench of this city, being between Eighth and Twelfth streets.

The figures appended will show the enormous amount expended for street improvements, aggregating in the year 1892, $[illegible], and for the first seven months of the present year, $[illegible], and when it is remembered that the greater proportion of the cost of all paving and laying of sidewalks is provided for by local assessments upon the abutting property owners (and which sums so raised are not included in the receipts shown in the appended statements), the inquiry naturally arises, how can it be possible to expend so large an amount of money with so small a result? It simply illustrates how reckless has been the expenditure, and how indifferent has been the conduct of the city government in so applying its revenues as to enable it to present to the citizens improvements commensurate with the burdens laid upon them.

The engineering department of the city is also lightly chargeable with most extravagant expenditures, not only to the amount exacted of the city directly in maintaining it, but also the citizens in the numerous other exactions, in proportion to the work actually done in making surveys of private property, in carrying out street theories, in staking and fixing locations where the natural grades are more serviceable, as well as more beautiful, and many other ways that might be mentioned, and in some instances in destroying a large proportion of the shade trees which now adorn one of the most beautiful features of our city, adding greatly to the comfort and health of the citizens, and which have been protected by years of labor and care.

All progressive citizens advocate that we continue the county march of improvements. We desire the completion of our sewer system, the completion of the city hall, the extension of our paving district, the construction of sidewalks as well as all other classes of improvements which are provided for by special taxes, but we think that all assessments made for such improvements shall not exceed their approximate cost.

But in the matter of these local assessments for sidewalks, paving and the extension of sewers, it has become notorious that the valuables made and payments exacted are frequently nearly double the amount of the work ordered to be made, and that the payments thus made have been retained money outside from the overburdened citizens could obtain even a report as to the excess, and no effort is apparently being made in columns them for these unjustifiable exactions. Instances of this character from the citizens large sums of money in excess of the reasonable requirements for the purposes for which exacted, and instead of being reserved as a surplus of that particular fund has been squandered or wasted in other ways until under the present condition of an exhausted treasury, there is no prospect of the year being reached before there is a change in the management of public affairs, the sinking fund will be complete.

These instances are cited as illustrative merely of the methods that are universally pursued. The taxpayers should awake to a realization of the fact that the extreme burden of indebtedness is accompanied by a large and mortgage upon their property and for years to come will be a burden upon their efforts and toil and trying to a continuation of anything approaching the present methods of extravagance and recklessness will inevitably bankrupt the city and thus involve in financial ruin the citizens as well, for without public credit nothing substantial it will be impossible for private credit to be sustained.

Under existing circumstances we submit that the only rational and business-like view of the situation that can be taken is to at once correct the evils complained of. To do this imposes upon the next municipal administration the most satisfactory, patriotic and economical conduct of its affairs. Satisfied of effective officers should be refused; expenditures in every department established most rigidly and reduced to a minimum. The work of administering the affairs of the municipality will be a serious one upon the patience, intelligence and persistent effort of those who may be selected to perform those duties.

It is a condition to which every citizen is intensely interested as they must provide the means for carrying on the city government, paying the annual interest charges, which for the year 1893 amounts to at least one-fifth (1-5) of the entire revenue, as well as providing for the extinction of the principal debt, each in proportion to what we have; and every laboring man is no less interested in having the public credit maintained and will appreciate the fact that when employed for the public, he will for an honest day's labor get an honest day's pay in cash, instead of warrants that must be sacrificed at a present, to enable him to procure the necessaries of life.

Owing to the general depression in all business enterprises and the consequent reduction of salaries, we respectfully recommend (and request) the present City Council to pass an ordinance reducing the salaries of all elective officers of the incoming administration 25 per cent.

To remedy these evils, we respectfully recommend to your favorable consideration, the following named citizens selected from the different precincts, irrespective of party, to serve as a committee of fifty, with authority to meet at 10 a. m., Sept. 23, 1893, and place in nomination a Citizens' ticket for the municipal and precinct officers, for Salt Lake City, to be elected on November 7th next.

We recommend that all nominees must be for the enforcement of at least a majority of the committee.
