"Young Utah."

Plans a prospectus forwarded to us we learn that a monthly paper will shortly be published at Payson devoted to the interests of the young people of the Territory. It is to be called Young Utah, will be edited by J. Clark Pickering and is endorsed by the leading men of Utah County, including the ecclesiastical and educational authorities. The subscription price will be one dollar a year and it will contain eight pages with four columns each, each printed on good paper. We wish Young Utah full success.

Y. M. M. I. A.

An interesting and instructive meeting of the Y. M. M. I. A. of the Twenty-first Ward was held last evening. An address on "Missionary experiences" was given by Brother Dunn, who related many incidents in his travels. A lecture on the "Hugenots" was delivered by Brother W. D. Owen, who reviewed at some length the history of the French Protestants and their persecution, including the fearful massacre of St. Bartholomew.

The Y. M. M. I. A. of this ward hold their meetings every Wednesday evening, and a cordial invitation is extended to all.

Utah County Items.

Albert Smith, of Springville, and Miss Persis Babcock, of Spanish Fork, were married by Judge J. D. Jones, at 11:30 yesterday.

The Mammoth mine at Tintic will return its regular force of workmen in a few days, now that the machinery is all repaired.

A tramp stole a boiled ham from Professor Brigham Young's office, and then went and peeped in at the jail door. The fellow wanted to be locked up awfully bad.

Repairs from various parts of Millard County have come in so fast that eighteen inches, and in some places two feet of snow have already fallen, and it is now snowing. Several flocks of sheep are covered in, but no material losses are sustained.

M. A. Jensen, who had the thumb of his right hand cut off, about a year and a half ago, by a circular saw in Joe F. L. Jones & Co. yard, today had the first joint of the little finger of his left hand almost cut off by a circular saw machine. It hung by a shred. Mr. Jensen immediately secured the services of Dr. Stevenson, who joined the bleeding ends together. The doctor is of the opinion that the ends will unite and the finger be saved. It is stated that almost every employee of the company has some mark or scar caused by this planer.

The Provo chamber of commerce committee on railroads, consisting of Messrs. W. D. Dunsdale, A. A. Noon, William Probert, Oliver B. Young and Don Carlos Corey, went to Payson yesterday, and held a lively Utah railroad meeting with the people of that town, at their meeting house. Speeches both for and against the railroad were made by Payson citizens. Some of them were afraid that Provo would take away their little trade, but the majority were more liberal-minded and favored the scheme.—Enquirer.

ARRESTED FOR EMBEZZLEMENT

An Ogden Postoffice Clerk Charged with Stealing $5000.

An Associated Press dispatch that appears in another column of this paper announces the arrest, at Ogden, of Westfield Breckinridge, Utah Postal Railway clerk, charged with embezzling a $5000 registered package, sent on January 1st from Sacramento, California, to Omaha, Nebraska. This morning's Standard says:

Arrangements were made at the postoffice, but the inquiries on city streets were brought to a close and would divulge no reliable information. By a great deal of questioning it was finally ascertained that a party by the name of George had been employed in the office, but he had not been working for a few days past. This is all the information obtainable, and it is not worth much, consequently it is impossible to draw any conclusion from their remarks.

The officers were equally reticent, and to all questions gave an evasive answer. General Kimball could not be seen.

The Work of Pickpockets.

Pickpockets have evidently made their appearance in the city, as a theft which was perpetrated in the waiting room of the depot clearly indicates their presence. Among the emigrants who arrived in this city from the East Tuesday morning last were two foreigners.

They each possessed a silver watch and chain, of which they were very fond. The men were compelled to lay over in this city several hours after their arrival, as the east and west bound trains do not make through connections for several days passengers. They were tired from their long journey, and lay down in the emigrant waiting room.

It did not require any rocking to put them to sleep and in a very short space of time they were both in the land of dreams. One of them had taken off the shoes and placed them under his head. While they were slumbering some light fingered individual relieved them of their watches. The thief also appropriated the shoes, but was considerable enough to leave his old ones. The consternation of the men when they awoke can be better imagined than described. They were perfectly frantic over the loss of their timepieces, but the man who had stolen them was unmovable. There is no clue to the perpetrator of this petty theft.—Standard.

A CONTEMPTIBLE ACT.

A Salt Lake Photographer Receives Two Threatening Letters.

Yesterday a local photographer received the following letter through the post, dated Salt Lake City, February 9, and headed "Timely Warning:"

"Take advantage of this and consider yourself warned that if you do not leave this city one hour after March 1, 1891, and do not not go to Ogden that day, you will be killed. If you do not do everything that will be demanded of you, you will be shot. You are no more a part of the Anti Polygamy party, perhaps worse than that. We have given you ample time to get out, and we find you still good and well. You will be watched from now until that time, but will not be molested if you do not be the cause of your own death. If you are not gone March 1st, you will feel trouble. We are not without duty and conscience.

"Signed, Mary Magdalene,
"Who needs business and nothing else."

The recipient of the communication had no time to lose in taking to police headquarters, and his office was offered $25 for the discovery of the cowards by whom the letter was sent.

This morning the same gentleman received another letter from the same source warning him that unless he left the city forthwith he would be visited with all manner of punishments.

The chief of police and the prosecuting attorney say they are confident that the letters do not emanate from "Mormons," but are the missions of a rival photographer, who it is believed has been "spoiled."

Father Jenkins Released.

(Correspondence of the DESERET NEWS.)

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 7, 1891.

On Thursday last three of our Saints wended their way to the penitentiary to speak comforting words to the brethren there. They were informed that Father Jenkins, from Goshen, was in a lying condition. They visited him in the hospital room and found him very low. His relatives were at once notified, not having been apprised of his condition before.

On the arrival of his son immediate steps were taken to secure his release. The doctor's certificate and statement of facts were telegraphed to Delegate Caine on Monday last, and he must have received prompt attention, inasmuch as today an order for his release was received, and your correspondent accompanied his son and others to assist in bringing him to the city. We found him still very feeble, lying on a couch and receiving all the attention possible under the circumstances. He was carefully conveyed to a carriage in waiting and taken to a friend's home, where loving hands and faithful brethren were waiting to minister to his necessities.

Brother John L. Jenkins, will endeavor to remove him to his home in Goshen, Utah County, at once, and desires to express his thanks to all for their kindly assistance.

The earnest work of Brother James Jack is worthy of special mention, as he ministered unstintingly to secure Father Jenkins' release.

As stated in a recent issue of the News Father Jenkins was feeble and sick when sentenced to two years' imprisonment in the penitentiary. Only a few months have elapsed and he now seems to be in the "valley of the shadow of death."

Much of the suffering and anxiety caused by deserted wives and children have been avoided if a little mercy had been mingled with that sort of justice which has been dealt out in the courts.

A Good Time for the Little Ones.

Monday last was a gala day for the scholars of School District No. 23 (Union Ward), Salt Lake County. At the appointed hour all the members of the school, which is carried on in three separate buildings, met at the Union Coop. Hall, where one branch of the school is conducted, and found a number of sleighs, which had been provided by the school trustees, waiting for them. It did not take long to get the little ones comfortably seated and warmly wrapped up in robes, blankets and quilts and, with the band in the lead, to set out for a long ride in the carriages without wheels. The entire one route was taken. Starting from the hall the Central Seminary building, on Big Cottonwood, was made a stopping place. Here the band discoursed some lively airs and, "all aboard!" and the merry party were on their way again. The positioning was another stopping place, thence west to the State Road and then south and home. Some twelve or fifteen miles were thus traveled over without a hitch. It was one of the best times the little ones of Union have ever had.

Literary Notes.

Table Talk for February has an attractive list of contents. A regular reader of this practical magazine might expect to find each number would exhaust the practical topics that interest the progressive housewife. Not so, however, for the February number probably contains more than any previous issue, as, in addition from perplexed housewives, and answers by the editor, Mrs. S. T. Rorer, she gives a "Menu for an Evening Wedding," "Menu for a Tea Reception," "Hints for a Tea Reception," "Hints for Tea Receptions, etc." "A List of Necessary Kitchen Utensils," "Hints to Young Housekeepers." The general reading matter is most entertaining. Table Talk Publishing Co., Philadelphia, Pa.

The numbers of The Living Age for January 31st and February 7th contain Shakespeare's Ghosts, Witches and Fairies, Alexander Vinet, and Home Rule and Home Rules, Ride, Velasquez and the King, and Stout up in the African Forest, A Bequest Society, The Ghosts of the Jubilee, and The Republic of San Marino, Lord Melbourne, Bear of Hardwich, Fleet and Fog, and Mr. Kinglake, The Origin of the Great Lakes of North America, with installments of "Eight Days," "Christmas Eve at Warwhigh," and poetry.

HINTS TO WRITERS.

(USE AND ABUSE OF COMMON WORDS—THE STUDY OF SYNONYMS.

There are now, we think, 120,000 words in the English language, we are assured, the possibilities of the use of synonyms are remarkable, and we should say that to the study of synonyms the writer should devote a little time daily, if he would make any of himself diligently. To the newspaper writers we are looking with solicitude for the time when, after the rush of the columns of the press, our literature does not appear to be making any progress at all. Our literature of the present, on the other hand, constantly improving, and in the last ten years that improvement has been marked.

Still there is a chance for improvement, and it occurs to us that the besetting sin of our newspaper writers is the use of words in a wrong sense. For example, the ex-commonness of that expression "like" for "as if"—"It looks like it was going to rain." This absurdity is met in quite each of Mason and Dixon's line, and one cough across the line here in the West to appear in quite a popular appearance in our diurnal publications.

There is no such word as "seemed" the part of "seem" is "seem." A man seemed he said, to have wounded his wife. He either went his way or he has gone his way.

Never use "where" as an adjective. "The above extract" is a tautology. Nor should you ever use "then" as an adjective—e. g. "the then king"—awful!

Do not confound "try" with "make." You make—not try—an experiment.

A reporter stated the use of "exceedingly" when "exceedingly" is intended.

Do not confound "never" and "ever;" "never" is an adverb of three. "Ever" may be an adverb of degree.

The sun "sets" and a hen "sits."

A preposition and a preposition are different things.

Be careful not to confound "shade" with "refer" or "adverb" with "ab."

"Ab" is an adverb of degree and "ward" is and adjective of kind.

There is no such word as "jeopardize" and "jeopardy" is a noun.

"Woman" is Anglo-Saxon, "lady" is Anglo-Saxon and "female" is French.

"Lard" means gaudy pale, gloomy or dismal.

"Graveyard," Anglo-Saxon; "burying ground," Anglo-Saxon; "cemetery" Latin.

"Bestive" must not be confounded with "restless."

"Say," "speak," "tell," "answer"—all Anglo-Saxon; "state," "recite," "narrate," "allege," "declare," "tell," "respond," "reply," "consult"—all French.

"Indices" are algebraic signs; "indexes" are tables of contents.

Never say "in this connection" when you mean "in connection with this."

That is complete which has all its parts; entire which has not been divided; whole means nothing has been taken. Total refers to the aggregate of the parts.

"Wife" denotes an instrument and "rig" a person; "armed with a sword; he died by an arrow."

"Dead," Anglo-Saxon; "deceased," of English; "demised," French; "defunct," Latin.

Never separate the infinitive; example, "He promised to specially compliment."

"Compliment" is French, "go out" is Anglo-Saxon.

Be not suffer Mr. Addison or anybody else to tuff you out of the use of that noble word, "that."

Never use, except in a humorous way, these slackered phrases and hoary words of which notorious specimens are: "right fantastic toe," "nine foot," "the good lady," "beautiful and accomplished," "rave some more," "groaned with the delicacies of the season," "speckled beauties," "cream de la creme," "dull, sickening thud" and "recherche."

There is no solitude so miserable as that of the man alone in a noisy city unless it be that of a man alone with a noisy lady.

Highest of all in Leavening Power.—U. S. Gov't Report, Aug. 17, 1889.
