STILL ON THE WRONG TRACK.

Notwithstanding the light shed upon the subject recently, the attempt to befog the people upon the important subject of the President's amnesty proclamation continues. In a recent issue of the News was given in a few words what we conceived Mr. Harrison's intentions to be and what we were and are assured the effect to this conclusion being supported by legal propositions, by logic and by common sense, leaving the question of common justice out of the count altogether as an abstract quantity. Additional light does not make that position plainer and more secure; but some there be who, perhaps through the mistaken notion that a wrong course once taken must be continued in order to be consistent, persist in placing the people affected at as great a disadvantage in the premises as the ability and influence brought to bear will permit. This is altogether discreditable.

In the former article we admitted that some prominent lawyers had given an opinion the other way, but while understanding that such gentlemen are not altogether infallible, we were and are willing to concede that, not having the document before them and therefore dealing with a more or less hypothetical question, they might thus have decided properly enough as to the view then presented. But with the case fully made up, with all the circumstances involved before them; with the power, the plain meaning and object of the Executive laid bare; with the philosophy of the situation fully considered; with a ruling from the United States Supreme bench and the opinions of lawyers of eminence and respectability against them, the hope was entertained if not expressed that merely political, personal or prejudicial considerations would no longer control. This may, in fact, be the case in individual instances, but as a whole it is not. There is no sacrifice of manhood, honesty or dignity involved in admitting an error and departing from it, although some people seem to think otherwise.

THE BEGINNING IS GOOD.

The interest that has been awakened in the Chamber of Commerce during the last few weeks is one of the most hopeful signs, as it is also one of the surest guarantees, that the business men of Salt Lake City are sanguine of the future and are getting ready to pull together as they never did before for the advancement of all our vast material interests. This interest is manifested not only in the new membership but also in the quickening of the old that has come to some who had grown lukewarm and indifferent. And in no particular is the sincerity of the revival more clearly indicated than in the universally expressed desire that in the choice of officers and directors the only qualifications sought shall be energy, public spirit, willingness to commit and labor for the public good and general fitness for the important duties on hand. As already announced, the election, in which all members in good standing are requested to take part, occurs on Thursday evening next, and the officers to be elected are a president, two vice-presidents and eight directors.

The announcement is also made that the members and their friends will meet in the dance on the evening of the 13th inst., the Salt Lake Theater being the place where, and a large number of leading citizens being the persons under whose direction, the grand affair will take place. Socially it gives every promise of being one of the greatest successes of the season; and financially it can scarcely fail to be all that its promoters desire.

OF INTEREST TO WARRIORS.

The New York Sun of recent date, quoting from the Scientific American, gives a long description of the new magazine rifle adopted for use in the United States service, speaking also of several of the models exhibited at the trials conducted by the army board, and a number of illustrations being employed to render more clear the distinctive points of the various weapons exhibited. The object sought was not only a rapid magazine arm but also an efficient single loader; and it may be supposed that in finally receiving the award of superiority the successful gun had to undergo the most severe tests as to its perfection on both the lines indicated.

The principal interest locally felt in the subject is that a Utah firm, Browning Brothers of Ogden and Salt Lake, are the inventors of one of the most marvelous specimens of light ordnance that the whole history of gunmaking discloses. They ironically call their weapon "the Peace-maker"—if it were spelled "piece-maker" the title would seem to be quite as appropriate. It has a firing capacity of sixteen shots per second and the cartridges are conveyed to the breech by a continuous belt, the only limit to the number of shots before reloading, depends on the length of the belt. The almost incredible rapidity of fire, which would enable it by a slight lateral motion to mow down a whole line, or at closer range to cut across a plank as with a saw, is not its only merit; it is an effective single loader as well, and the mechanism throughout is simple and strong.

It would take an expert to describe the workings of this wonderful arm, and then an expert to understand the description. We lay no claim to that distinction, but we cannot suppress wonder that the owners of the patent—who are easily in the front rank of American gun inventors—should have failed to compete in the case above stated to, or, if they did compete, that they should have failed to receive any mention at all where it is clear that numerous inferior weapons received honored and detailed description.

THE COUNTY COURT MUDDLE.

If there is room for a legal controversy as to the status of the two amusing but rather undignified bodies calling themselves respectively "the County Court" and "The County Court," by all means the matter should be inquired into by a competent tribunal and determined in accordance with the law in the case. We confess that to us the technical points in the issue have seemed too trivial and absurd, and the whole contest too ridiculous, to be received by sensible people with other than a feeling of gentle disgust. So long as the respective performances furnished pleasure to their participants and did no harm to the public service, there was no very pronounced opposition to the continuance of the holiday diversion. But there is danger that if not now checked the conflict will lead to costly if not serious difficulties, the full effect of which may not be apparent at present. There is a general desire, therefore, that there be a truce to all further child-tactics, a speedy recognition of the legal to by, and on its part an earnest beginning upon the weighty and responsible duties entrusted to it.

GENEROUS MILLIONAIRES.

All rich men are not close-handed, nor do all of them confine their generosity to members of their own family, as was the case with the late Jay Gould. Philip D. Armour's magnificent gift of $1,500,000 to our sister Chicago is an example to the contrary, and Isaac Hinch, presumably the wealthiest man on earth, is exceedingly benevolent. But we far as heard from none of them equals or at all approaches Mr. John D. Rockefeller, the coal oil magnate, in open-handed generosity; his donations to one institution alone—the Chicago University—up to date are:

June 1, 1891, $600,000 in cash.
September, 1891, $1,000,000 in cash.
Feb. 23, 1892, $1,000,000 in 5 per cent gold bonds.
Dec. 23, 1892, $1,000,000 in 5 per cent gold bonds.

Making a total of $3,600,000. This is "doing the grand" truly; and who shall say he will not be just as well off by reason of it, if not a little better, when his final accounts are made up?

RENDER CESAR'S THINGS TO CESAR.

Not a little scream is indulged in at the expense of the nimble-fingered, neatly pompadoured, immaculately clothed bank teller, whose vocation implies a scornful disdain of the glint of gold and greenbacks in which he revels, yet whose occasional festiveness as indicated in the tour to Canada comes in for its full share of pharisaical taunt and oracular criticism. A good word now and then in his behalf is received therefore with considerable relish and a recent plea for him, put forth in connection with that mysterious account known as the "conscience fund," is given publicity with pleasure.

The "conscience fund," as most readers are aware, consists of contributions received at the treasury department from parties, usually anonymous, who are moved to remit amounts which at some previous time they had unjustly received or had withheld from the national strong-box. The length of time which they permit themselves to enjoy the ill-gotten means varies presumably according to the moral activity of the conscience involved. It is needless to say that some of the greatest fraudsare not even tardily rectified in this manner; while on the other hand there are doubtless many cases where no fraud whatever has been committed or profited by, and yet a reimbursement for an imaginary wrong is determined upon. How much less this tend is than it ought to be, and how much of it ought in justice to be returned to the contributors, cannot for obvious reasons be determined; it is enough for all ordinary purposes to know that it has assumed vast proportions, and is being steadily augmented all the time.

The plea for the bank-teller, after this much of introduction, may now be presented. It is a theory advanced by an officer of the cash room of the United States treasury, and is referred to by the American Banker in a late issue. He says he has no doubt that a large portion of the money returned to the treasury, on the ground that it was not rightly the property of the sender, is due to overpayments by tellers. He thinks it right that the public generally should be informed that all mistakes made by government clerks and bank tellers in the way of overpayments, result in a corresponding loss in their compensation and in no wise affects the resources of their employers. He gives many instances where government clerks had been recently paid out more than was called for and had been compelled to restore the mistake out of their own pockets. And he mentions all this solely in the interest of the tellers, in the hope that it will be remembered by all persons whose conscience troubles them concerning money received in this way, so that it may be returned to the officer who has been compelled to pay for his own carelessness, rather than to the government or bank which has been already reimbursed for the error.

RAILWAY CONSTRUCTION LAST YEAR.

The past year was marked with such a palpable quietude in trade all along the line—amounting to nearly stagnation in places—that the impression prevails that inaction existed in every department, that railway building, for instance, was at a complete standstill. This is a case in which the appearance and the reality are widely at variance. Notwithstanding the falling off in activity in commercial circles, upon which of course the railways largely if not principally rely, it is a fact that over 4000 miles of track were laid in the United States last year, while grading was completed for the greater part of 4000 more. This does not relate to new or to grand trunk lines, but to extensions and feeders. The routes surveyed, and upon many of which work has been done to some extent, number many thousands more, but these need not at present be counted.

The Railway Age announces that in forty-three states and territories of the Union the grader and tracklayer found work last year, and as there are but five more this would seem to be a very good showing after all; some of these avenues of employment were necessarily very limited, others not so much so, and the demand for more roads is as great now as at any time in our history. The total mileage of 1892 is embodied in the following table:

States.	Miles.	States.	Miles.
Maine	14.00	Nebraska	20.00
New Hampshire	18.80	South Dakota	12.00
Massachusetts	18.00	Wyoming	12.00
New York	12.00	Utah	12.00
New Jersey	12.00	Nevada	12.00
New Mexico	12.00	Washington	12.00
Pennsylvania	18.00	Oregon	12.00
Maryland	24.00	Minnesota	107.00
West Virginia	30.00	Indian Territory	18.00
Virginia	12.00	Alabama	12.00
North Carolina	42.00	Texas	12.00
South Carolina	12.00	Arkansas	12.00
Georgia	12.00	Kentucky	12.00
Florida	18.00	Tennessee	12.00
Alabama	12.00	Ohio	12.00
Mississippi	12.00	Indiana	12.00
Louisiana	12.00	Illinois	12.00
Missouri	12.00	Michigan	12.00
Kansas	12.00	Wisconsin	12.00
Nebraska	12.00	Iowa	12.00
Montana	12.00	California	12.00
Idaho	12.00	Arizona	12.00
Dakota	12.00	New Mexico	12.00
Total	4,000.00

It will be observed that our Territory is neither at the top nor bottom of the list, but is doing very well. It should be considered that the figures relate to main line track only, not to the hundreds of miles of second, third and other tracks laid alongside the main line, and switches, spurs, etc., with private lines for logging and other purposes; nor has the little any reference whatever to the hundreds of miles for which grading and bridging are under way or have been completed.

The states in which no track of any kind was laid are Connecticut, Delaware, Nevada and Rhode Island; the one territory, Oklahoma. Kansas had one mile only constructed and Mississippi, where there has not been much in this line done for years, built a short road to a lumber camp. The construction for the past ten years, as shown by Poor's Manual, is as follows:

Year.	Miles.	Year.	Miles.
1882	6,742.00	1887	5,202
1883	6,741.00	1888	7,083
1884	4,523.00	1889	5,670
1885	2,454.00	1890	4,737
1886	4,615.00	1891	4,060
1887	5,202.00	1892	4,000
1888	7,083.00
1889	5,670.00
1890	4,737.00
1891	4,060.00
1892	4,000.00

And the following is the comparison of last year with previous years:

Total in 100—Increase in ten years, 59,500 miles; yearly average, 5,950 miles.

Total in 1891—Increase in nine years, 49,200 miles; yearly average, 5,466 miles.

Total in 1890—Increase in eight years, 44,530 miles; yearly average, 5,566 miles.

Total in 1889—Increase in seven years, 38,860 miles; yearly average, 5,551 miles.

Total in 1888—Increase in six years, 33,190 miles; yearly average, 5,531 miles.

Total in 1887—Increase in five years, 27,520 miles; yearly average, 5,504 miles.

As illustrative of the rapid march of time the circumstance may be mentioned that Abraham Lincoln and William E. Gladstone were both born in the same year. The former is enshrined in what to many people is almost ancient history; while the latter is discussed and held only in such esteem as belongs to contemporary statesmanship.

An Exchange novelist calls attention to the pleasing fact that women no longer faint in books; from which he is led to inquire if they no longer faint in real life. They do not, dear boy; the swooning heroine used to be credited with extreme sensibility; now she is scarcely regarded as a conscious sufferer from indigestion—with perhaps a too lively appetite for pie.
