LOCAL AND OTHER MATTERS.

THEATRE.—All present at the Theatre last night, who have a taste for and can appreciate the highest class of dramatic art and impersonation, must have been intensely pleased and gratified with the performance of Mr. Couldock as Farmer Allen, in the beautiful domestic drama of "Dora." Such mental monstrosities as the Farmer, combining in one individual the extremes of savage vindictiveness and childlike tenderness and sympathy, may no doubt be met with occasionally in real life; but happily they are rare, for as the development of evil rather than good seems the most natural and easy in this world, they, by giving way to their excessive vindictiveness are far more likely, as in the case of Farmer Allen, to make their presence and influence felt by the misery and woe they create for themselves and all around them, than by developing the better impulses of their nature and yielding to that deep undercurrent of sympathy which they once in a while exhibit, relieving the savagery of their character like a sunbeam suddenly bursting forth in pitch darkness.

The playing of Mr. Couldock last night was beyond criticism, and such as can emanate from genius and the highest cultivation only; and when he leaves us, we may not expect to see his equal again in a hurry, if ever, for his peers, in his line of characters, we are satisfied are few indeed!

Miss Couldock, as Dora, has not near the chance for the exhibition of her powers as in some other plays, such as the "Willow Copse," but she was charming and natural. Miss Adams and Mr. Waldron created their respective roles with ability; we regret that we can not say the same of Mr. Graham as Duke Bloomfield, and the more so, because, having the ability, he failed to give evidence of it last evening.

Tonight the beautiful home story of "Dot, or the Cricket on the Hearth," will be presented, in which Mr. Couldock will personate Caleb Plummer, Miss Couldock, "Dot," Mr. Waldron "John Perrybingle;" other characters by Mr. Thorne, Miss Adams, and Mesdames Clawson and Bowring.

The farce "Your Life's in Danger," will close the entertainment.

To-morrow night is for the benefit of Mr. Couldock, on which occasion one of his great specialties will be given, when we hope to see a crowded house, in appreciation of his great ability as an actor.

RICH COUNTY.—Brother L. B. Hunt, under date of the 16th inst., sends us the following items from St. Charles:

Grasshoppers were never more numerous in this vicinity than at present. They have done little damage to the crops yet.

Yesterday, a fire destroyed the stables, sheds, grain, etc., owned by John Barker and Mrs. Lars Jensen, of this place. Loss 150 to 300 dollars. How the fire originated is unknown, but was probably caused by the carelessness of boys.

The specimens of lead and silver, found in the mountains near this valley have the appearance of being very rich. Some of the citizens of this county take much interest in the discovery and development of the mineral resources of the country.

There is a circular saw-mill in contemplation by the brethren of this place, to be put in running condition the present season; also a meeting house, forty by sixty feet, which will be a frame building. The boat recently built for pleasure sailing on the lake is thirty feet long and very substantial.

NEW STORES.—Six large new stores which are to be erected on East Temple St.; south of the Constitution buildings, have been contracted for by builders, and the work of putting them up will soon be commenced. We understand that Messrs. Taylor & Cutler purpose building a warehouse at the rear of their present premises. It will extend back 100 feet, and will be two stories high. The new store of Mr. George Goddard is approaching completion, the front of which, when finished, will present a very fine appearance.

NARROW ESCAPE FROM FAMISHING.—The following was received by Western Union Telegraph to-day:

STOCKTON, 25.

The six men who left Cortlane ten days since in a boat, with a pile driver, to build a wharf at the south-east end of the Great Salt Lake, and were lost in the gale of Monday, were found, last evening, by Rydalch's boy, who was hunting stock, nearly famished, on Kimball's island, having drifted to the west from their course. They are now at their destination and the wharf will be ready for the reception of the steamer when she arrives, next week.

LIVERPOOL.—We were pleased to receive a letter, yesterday, from Elder John Jaques, now in the Liverpool Office. Brother Jaques is in good spirits, and has had a splendid time on his mission. His health, as also that of President and Mrs. Eldredge, is good. Brother Jaques is looking forward with very pleasurable anticipations to his speedy return home.

Speaking of his labors in England he says:

"I have labored with much pleasure in this country, and whenever it has been my privilege to visit any of the conferences I have been received with great kindness by the Saints. I have found President Eldredge a considerate, kind, liberal-minded gentleman, under whose direction anybody could labor with the greatest pleasure and the most perfect satisfaction. I shall ever recur to my association with him and his good lady, Sister Eldredge, as "one" of the most agreeable experiences of my life."

FROM ST. GEORGE.—Elder Richard Bentley, who arrived from St. George last evening, called to-day, and from him we learn that the health of Hon. Erastus Snow has improved considerably lately. The season thus far has been very dry in the south, which has had a bad effect on the stock range. There is, however, plenty of water in the streams, therefore the crops have not suffered from that cause. Grain around St. George looks well, and the general prospects for a plentiful harvest there are good. Fruit will be unusually abundant this season. It is a a general time of health among the people.

A NOVEL SIGHT.—There is on exhibition, at the Deseret Museum and Menagerie, a number of sea lions which were captured some time since on the beach of one of the Pacific islands. The movements and antics of these peculiar looking creatures, as they dive and flounder in the water, are very amusing, and when lolling around in the sun they appear the very essence of laziness. They have quite an intelligent look, and the sight of them well repays a visit to the Menagerie. There is also a young seal on exhibition there.

A DANGEROUS PRACTICE.—We have heard of instances lately of transients traveling on the State Road stopping at dwelling houses along there, knocking at the doors and windows, endeavoring to gain forcible admittance and otherwise alarming and disturbing the inmates. An instance of this kind occurred on Tuesday evening at a house adjacent to the road, south of the city. Luckily for these contemptible disturbers of the peace the male head of the family happened to be absent from home at the time. As it was they succeeded in frightening the other members of the family. If such characters do not stop this kind of game they may get hurt, as they might come across some one who will teach them a salutary lesson.

A CAUTION TO MOTHERS.—The following is from the Ogden Junction of Yesterday:

"On Saturday last Mrs. Douglass, wife of Richard Douglass, of this city went to a neighbor's house on some business, taking with her her child, a little girl about eighteen months old. An open box of concentrated lye was on the neighbor's table, and while the mother's attention was drawn in another direction the child took up and drank a part of the lye, which seriously injured, and endangered the little one's life. Proper remedies were administered, and the patient is now progressing favorably."

THE AMERICAN
SUPERSEDES THE SUMMER PUMP
BEING an Agent for the sale of this most valuable article, having seen them tried in different deep wells, and finding them give universal satisfaction, I offer them to the public as the best means of raising water for culinary use, irrigating, washing carriages, extinguishing fires, or any other use for which a force pump may be applied. From the tests I have put them to, more water can be raised than with any other pump now offered to the public with the same power. As some objections have been made to these pumps for deep wells, I have tested them in one 204 feet deep, from which I raised twelve gallons per minute. They are positively non-freezing, and will not get out of order. If references are wanted or instructions in relation to them, call at my store on Emigration Street, one block east from State Road.
