New Herald Incorporation.

The Herald company filed articles of incorporation with the county clerk late yesterday afternoon with a capital stock of $100,000 divided into shares of $100 each, taken as follows by the incorporators: R. C. Chambers, 300 shares; A. W. McCune, Joseph L. Rawlins, Charles L. Wood and Hiskiah W. Young take five shares each. R. C. Chambers is president, A. W. McCune vice president, Joseph L. Rawlins secretary, and Charles L. Wood treasurer.

The new company succeeds the Herald Publishing company. The purpose is to conduct the business of printing and publishing newspapers, periodicals and books, and all kinds of job printing and binding and manufacture blank books, etc.

Sunday School Conference.

The annual conference of the Sunday schools of this Stake will be held on Saturday, May 9th, at 10 a. m. and 2 p. m. in the Assembly Hall, and in the Tabernacle on Sunday, May 10, at 10 a. m. and 2 p. m. The public are cordially invited to attend all the meetings, and each school of the Stake is expected to be represented at each meeting.

On Saturday representative class exercises of the Kindergarten, Primary and Intermediate departments will be given under the direction of efficient teachers. On Sunday morning all the city schools are requested to attend the conference in a body, first meeting at their respective school houses. The schools will occupy the lower part of the house, and the gallery will be reserved for the general public.

The children are expected to be prepared to recite in concert the Lord's Prayer and the Articles of Faith.

Prof. E. K. Russell will have charge of the singing exercises on Saturday and Sunday morning. He will conduct a special singing practice on Monday next at 7:30 p.m. in the Assembly Hall. The choirs of the city schools are invited to attend this practice.

THE CHAZAL TRUNK.

Detective Rhodes Says He Has Further Who Can Identify It.

HE IS VERY POSITIVE ABOUT IT.

Out Says That Money Is Necessary to Clear the Murder Mystery Up—What He Knows.

A News man met ex-Detective Matt Rhodes, who is now doing duty as a Salt Lake South street patrolman today and earnestly asked, with little expectation of an important reply, "What, if anything, is there new in the Prosper Chazal case on which you are said to be still quietly working?"

"Well, I have at last found parties in this city who are able to identify the trunk in which Chazal's body was shipped to Chicago," was the response that followed a partially successful effort at evasion.

"You then feel sure that the body found in Chicago was not Pike and it was Chazal?"

"Yes, more than that, I know it."

"You think there is no possibility of mistake in the claim you make that certain parties here can identify the trunk?"

"Absolutely none. They can tell all about it."

"Have you also located the persons who made the trunk and was it made in this city?" was the double barreled interrogation next put to the detective by the newspaper man.

Only one part of the question was answered but that was emphatic and in the following language: "The trunk was not made in Salt Lake."

"Where then?" was the further query.

"Not in this city."

As to whether the ghastly box was shipped in on the railroad from some distant point or was hauled in by wagon or other conveyance from a subject of more remotely located district, Rhodes would not say. On that point he maintained as well a silence as he is known to maintain on some other matters of vital concern on which it is certain he has important information. He said he preferred to solve his trunk, that the mystery to his opinion would yet be cleared up entirely; that the matter could be hurried along with the aid of a little money; but that he couldn't afford to spend his own hard-earned dollars unrewarding the facts in the case. After saying this more he spoke into that inscrutable mood which long experience in him being very apparently assumed the "black patch-man."

Their inquiries were made at the Deseret Savings bank as to Chazal's money—whether or not his reputed visitor or relatives had written concerning it, since the announcement of the discovery of his body, a couple of months ago. The reply was that they had not and that it now began to look very much as though the "sister" was none other than the Frenchman's mistress who was so much distressed over his disappearance in 1892.

So with all this the case is as mysterious as ever as far as the public is concerned. Of course should Officer Rhodes's story prove to be true, that he has certainly located parties who can, as he says, positively identify the trunk and who know "all about it," then it should not be so difficult to unravel the whole web hastily tangled though it may be. But then it is claimed that money is necessary to start the unravelling process.

Priesthood Meeting.

The monthly Priesthood meeting of the Salt Lake Stake of Zion was held at the Assembly Hall today, commencing at 11 a. m., Elders Joseph E. Taylor and Charles W. Penrose, counselors to the Stake president, presiding. After the usual opening exercises the roll was called, showing the following wire drawn: Three Patriarchs, Elders Elias Morris, Wm. C. Dunbar and George H. Wallace of the great army of the High Priests' quorum, twenty presidents of Seventies, three home missionaries; all the wards of the Stake were represented except the Twenty-third city ward and Mountain Dell of the country. The First, Second, Third, Fifth, Ninth, Tenth, Twelfth, Thirteenth, Sixteenth, Eighteenth, Nineteenth, Twentieth and Twenty-fourth quorums of Elders were represented by their presiding officers. Representatives of the lesser Priesthood were present from most of the wards of the Stake. On the recommendation of their respective Bishops, eighty brethren received certificates authorizing their ordination to the office of Elder.

The address promulgated by the presiding officers of the Church at the last General Conference, was read by Elder C. W. Penrose, who, in answer to inquiries, made some explanatory remarks.

It was moved and seconded from the body of the house that the address be sustained. Adopted unanimously.

Elder Joseph E. Taylor advised the placing of the routine business of the ward meetings before the administration of the Sacrament, and the urging of the people to a more general interest in temple work. Wisdom and kindness were urged in the administration of affairs over which the brethren have jurisdiction. Elder Penrose advised the avoidance of too general exhibition of the bodies of the dead at funerals.

The conference of the Sabbath schools of the Stake was announced for Saturday and Sunday, May 9th and 10th, the Sunday school officers and pupils of the city schools being requested to meet on Monday morning in the Tabernacle, instead of holding regular Ward sessions.

Adjourned to Saturday, June 7th, to meet at 10 a. m. in Stake conference.

TEACHERS' INSTITUTE.

Interesting Meeting Held at the University This Forenoon.

The regular meeting of the Salt Lake County Teachers' Institute was held at the University this morning. The program commenced with a song by six pupils from Sandy under the direction of Prof. Quay, the pupils doing finely. Prof. Whiting was then introduced and spoke briefly upon the "Dandelion and Six Elms."

The two named were chosen by reason of being very common, and also because they represent two very distinct kinds of blossoms. Taking these as examples, the speaker gave a very interesting account of the growth, methods of blossoming, and reproduction of species, the time given being intensely profitable. Mr. Whiting was followed by Miss Brotherhood who spoke upon Correlation in Drawing. Miss Brotherhood dwelt especially upon the underlying principles that should be observed in teaching the subjects that must be considered as immutable, and when properly taught, correlation will be an inevitable result. In closing, attention was called to some nicely executed drawings done by students in the University, and which well illustrated the lady's system of teaching drawing. Prof. Quay then reviewed the association with a song by the pupils from Sandy, the little folks again appearing in a manner very creditable to both teacher and pupils.
