CHARGED WITH MURDER.

The Defendant Now on Trial in the First District Court at Provo.

THE CASE AN INTERESTING ONE.

A Large Number of Witnesses to Be Examined.

In the Probe division of the First district court yesterday, Donald McPherson, the slayer of L. C. Palmer, was placed on trial before Judge Blackburn.

The defendant is thirty-seven years of age, of fine and steady deportment, dark complexion, heavy set and muscular. He maintained an easy bearing as he was brought before the bar. There was a large array of witnesses and a considerable number of spectators in the court room, who manifested a great amount of interest in the case.

The indictment charges the defendant with having committed the murder on Sunday, March 15, 1891, at Bluebell, Summit county, Utah, by shooting the deceased, Mr. Palmer. A full narrative of the case was given publicly at the time of the murder and the public is familiar with what are reported to be the facts. J. M. Zane appears for the prosecution and A. G. Sutherland for the defendant. After a statement of the case was made by Mr. Zane, the witnesses for the prosecution, numbering fourteen, were sworn. There were no witnesses for the defense, except Mrs. Jones, who was not present.

Dr. Henry Nell took the stand and testified—Had been a physician thirteen years, and have had experience with gunshot wounds. Knew L. C. Palmer. Was called to see him on the evening of March 15, at Mr. Jones' house. Palmer was suffering from a gunshot wound. There was a wound in the epigastric region. I observed the bullet hole penetrated through the body just below the breast bone. I made a thorough examination of the patient, who was suffering a great deal of pain, the next day. The bullet was not in the body just below the shoulder bone. The river was injured, as was the upper portion of the bowels. Palmer lived seven hours and two hours after the shot, and died at Jones' house in Bothfield, on March 22.

Cross-examined by Sutherland—I probed for the bullet, but did not find it. I found the course of the bullet. Twenty eight hours elapsed between the time I made the first examination and the time I made a second examination and discovered the place where the bullet came out of the body.

Case in progress.

Amusements.

Milton Nobles' early professional training was in the West. In 1866, then a mere lad, he was a member of a little band of strolling Thespians playing in the mining camps of Colorado, Nevada and California. There are scenes, incidents and character studies in his play "From Sire to Son" little calling unmistakably that even at that early period he was a close student of men. In 1869 Nobles met Mr. Morgan, a handsome fellow of about thirty-five, tall, graceful and polished. He was a son of a New England clergyman and a Harvard graduate. He was a great reader, a recluse out of "business" hours, and a woman-hater. In the first act of "From Sire to Son" Mr. Nobles wears a counterpart of the suit in which the famous gambler Morgan could have been seen during the sixties on the streets of Carson, Reno and Virginia city.

At "Wonderland" tomorrow will be seventy day. Each lady will be presented with a handsome souvenir. The bill as issued is varied and entertaining.

UNEXPECTED DEMISE.

Major Byron Died Suddenly at His Residence This Morning.

Major E. M. Byron, died suddenly and unexpectedly at his residence, 555 east Third South street this morning. The immediate cause of his demise was apoplexy, with which he was stricken on Tuesday evening. He took into unconsciousness shortly afterward and died without regaining sensibility.

His family consists of two sons, John J., his private secretary, and William H., an employe in the United States marshal's office.

The deceased was a native of Pennsylvania. He served as a Union soldier in the War of the Rebellion and was promoted to the rank of major.

Shortly after the close of the war he became engaged in the liquor business in his native state, where he edited the Cedar Tribune at Pittsburg. He subsequently came west and finally settled in Utah, where he resided until the time of his death. Mr. Byron was also connected with the liquor business in this Territory and was a member of the Federated Trades Union.

The funeral service will be held on Sunday next, under the auspices of the G. A. R., of which the deceased was a member.

SERIOUS RAILWAY WRECK.

Several Travelers Badly Injured on the Park City Passenger Train.

Shortly after 5 o'clock last evening, a serious accident occurred on the Utah Central railway, about one mile east of the summit over which the road passes to Park City. No lives were lost, but a number of passengers had a narrow escape from a fearful death. Several of them, however, were seriously hurt.

The accident was caused by the rear coach and baggage car jumping from the rough and unevenly-graded track. The passenger car was hurled with violent force against a bank adjoining the track. The passengers were thrown into a heap in the lower end of the car. All escaped injury except through the rear door, excepting Major J. H. Dailey, master mechanic of the Rio Grande Western in this city, who was badly bruised and shocked by the accident.

Within half an hour the wreck was cleared and the unhurt passengers placed in another car and brought to this city. Mr. Dailey was taken to his room at the Valley House, where he will probably be confined for a few days.

Miss Knowles, his stenographer, received a severe abrasion over the left eye, and is now suffering from serious nervous shock. Her physician did not hand, however, and the unfortunate sufferer will undoubtedly recover in a few days.

C. S. Cowell, of Chickadee, Minn., was badly bruised about the lower limbs.

E. E. and K. O. Neder, two other travelers from Minnesota, received slight injuries.

All Sunday school workers are invited to be present.

THIRD DISTRICT COURT.

Fifty Dollars for the Loss of a Bare.—A Quarrel Between Sheepherders.

Judge Anderson sat for three-quarters of an hour this morning and then adjourned till 2 p.m.

A SEALED VERDICT.

In the case of J. D. Shaffer vs. F. A. Mitchell et al., heard yesterday, in which the plaintiff sued to recover the sum of $250 on account of the death of a mare, alleged to have been caused through the negligence of the defendants' servants during the time she was pastured on the Church farm, the jury this morning handed in a sealed verdict, assessing the damages at $50.

THE JURY SHOWS MERCY.

John H. Jackli, a Swiss, about 20 years of age—indicted for shooting at a young man named Mulliner, with intent to murder—was brought into court for trial, but the witnesses for the defense not having arrived, Attorney Barlow Ferguson asked for a continuance, and that the defendant be released on his own recognizance, as he had been in jail, awaiting trial, three months.

U. S. Assistant District Attorney Stephens objected to the defendant being set at liberty on the terms mentioned by Mr. Ferguson, when, a little later, allowed the defendant to withdraw his former plea and now plead guilty to the charge of assault, waived time, and stood up for sentence.

Mr. Ferguson said that the defendant and Mulliner were both sheepherders in the employ of the Union Pacific, and a quarrel arose between them over their respective herds. The defendant took up a gun and fired in the direction of the other man, simply with the intention of scaring him, but unfortunately the charge struck his arm, which he has, in consequence, lost. The defendant, who is at present in a very sickly condition and counsel, had borne a good character up to this occurrence, and he asked the court to exercise clemency.

Mr. Stephens stated he did not think this was a case calling for the enforcement of the other penalty prescribed by law. He did not regard the defendant as an abandoned criminal by any means, though he certainly needed a lesson of some kind, in order that he might understand that what he had done was wrong.

In answer to the Court, Jackli (who seems to be somewhat mentally as well as physically weak) stated that he had no intention of hurting Mulliner when he fired. He had "worried" him time after time, and he wanted to scare him off.

Judge Anderson pointed out the serious nature of the offense, and taking all the circumstances into consideration, he imposed the lightest sentence allowed by law—one year in the penitentiary.

Thomas Verward vs. Frank Hoffman et al.; hearing on order to show cause why an injunction continued by consent until May 5th, and same time allowed to answer.

Owen H. Pettit vs. E. H. Parsons; defendant was allowed to file an amended answer.

Several civil cases were on the docket for hearing, but as the parties were not ready in any of them, a recess was taken at 11:50 until 2 p. m.

Before Judge Zane yesterday afternoon, in the case of J. H. Linck vs. Salt Lake City, which was decided on Tuesday in favor of the defendant, his honor allowed the plaintiff twenty days in which to file a bill of exceptions.

In the case of William Diamond, the slayer of Edward Sweet, who was recently sentenced to three years' imprisonment, the defendant was allowed until May 10th to file a bill of exceptions.

E. Rowes vs. G. S. Holmes; plaintiff was allowed ten days in which to amend his complaint.

LOST AND FOUND.

An Escaped Prisoner Recaptured After Enjoying Twelve Months' Liberty.

A notorious jail bird who escaped from his cage in the United States marshal's office just over twelve months ago has been recaptured and brought back to Salt Lake. His name is Charles Leonard. He, in company with another young crook, broke into the Union Pacific depot in the month of February, 1890, and they managed to get away with a substantial sum of money. Leonard was caught soon after the occurrence, but the other thief—who rejoices in the sobriquet of "Happy Jack"—gave the police the slip, and is still at large.

Having been convicted by a jury in the Third District Court on the charges of burglary and grand larceny, Leonard was arraigned before a few days afterwards to receive sentence. He was fined by Marshal Patterson, acting for the Court's pleasure, the prisoner escaped by tumbling through the transom. All efforts to find him were fruitless, not the slightest trace of his whereabouts having been gained until quite recently, when he was arrested in Portland, Oregon, by police officers who had been authorized by the chief of this street, and Deputy Marshal Boyle, on receipt of the necessary papers, proceeded to look after him. The end of it all was that Mr. Boyle returned to this city last night with the fugitive in his charge, and he now finds himself in the penitentiary, pending the necessary arrangements for finally disposing of him.

Leonard is described by those acquainted with his past career as a cracksman of the longest kind, and it is said that he is "wanted" by the police at Denver for the part he is alleged to have taken in the murder of an officer there prior to his burglarious exploit on the U. P. premises.

Notes from Winter Quarters.

A correspondent writing from Winter Quarters, near Bedfield, Emery County, says: The snow is rapidly disappearing from the hillsides and valley. Outdoor work is being resumed along the canal, some of which are located at an altitude of 9,000 feet above sea level.

Social enjoyments have been freely participated in during the dreary winter months.

The amateur dramatic association have rendered, very creditably, a number of choice selections, and were cordially received by the enterprising residents of that place.

Good health and general prosperity prevails.

Retired From Business.

Mr. M. H. Beardley, the well-known proprietor of the Palmer House, at Green River, has retired from the hotel business which he has so long and successfully followed. For many years Mr. Beardsley was one of the most popular "mine hosts" to be found in the west. His Ogden houses were always well kept and homelike, and travelers will regret to learn of his retirement from business.

Mr. Beardsley and his amiable wife are now settled in an elegant home in this city, where they propose to remain permanently.
