BANNOCK STAKE, IDAHO.

I—

Land of Richness for the Agriculturist and Artisan.

Fine Products and Handiwork at the Fair—Building Up a Great Country—Political Pebbles.

BEAVER, Idaho, Sept. 27.—To appreciate just how widespread this part of the country is, it is necessary to make a trip by team through it. The stage line gives a very fair idea of the situation, but not a complete one. Leaving St. Anthony it heads off for the southeast and in a drive of three miles enters the village of Willard, named in honor of President Wilford. It takes nearly as long to get out as in, for the reason above suggested, that it is a place of magnificent distances. When once its limit is reached and passed on the south we immediately enter the town of Teton—or Teton "city," as they have it hereabout. This is not because of any metropolitan characteristics which it presents, but as a kind of distinguishing term, there being a Teton twenty miles or so further east.

Six miles further on and south and south of west is another "city" where the houses are no nearer together than the flight of a rifle ball and which therefore spreads their over enough territory for a good-sized country. Evidences of thrift and substantial advancement meet the eye wherever it may turn. The farms are well tended, the dwellings of human and quadruped are commodious as a rule and invariably comfortable, while improved agricultural machinery is everywhere.

Those who think that newspapers and books are not read extensively should undertake a historical enumeration or departure from recorded national facts, and see if he is not at once of most other minds thereof. The people know a good deal about such things as well as the more substantial things of life, and it is a real pleasure to talk on political subjects to the audiences that gather on short notice. These are nearly always large, attentive and composed of both sexes and all ages. The speaker, I find, need not hesitate about diving into the intricacies of the tariff on steel rails, the bounty on sugar, or the opposition to the foreign treaty, they know something of each and are quite willing to know more. I say know more, not merely hear more, for they as well as other people are sometimes practiced on by demagogic orators whose rule of action is exceptions and whose utterances are the greatest misrepresentations, who cannot be true to friend and foe too, and think that false statements or sandarous allusions are legitimate campaign methods. But the race of such, I prefer, will end as summarily here as elsewhere, and the sooner the better.

Through the enterprise of an Idaho Falls company the places named and all others on the line from that city to St. Anthony are soon to be in telephonic connection with the world abroad. By reason of the stage running both ways, each has a mail service twice a day. Just think of these telephone service and semi-daily postal visitations at places within a short time ago were scattered some distance from anywhere! Wait till the investing event of the iron horse enters the landscape—and you will not have to wait very long—then see or read hear of a community where the ratio of wealth and general advancement is equalled by few and exceeded by none whose age is not more than double that of the settlements of northern Idaho.

The Bannock Stake fair opened here yesterday morning. The home land, which by the bye, has a well deserved reputation for excellence throughout the state, preceded and encompassed the opening with some lively airs, and in a short time the scene was one of general activity. The attendance was quite large at the beginning and gradually increased throughout the day. People in considerable numbers kept straggling along till the afternoon was well advanced, and these added to the local population, made an encouraging assemblage and imparted an appearance of liveliness all around. A visit confirmed all that has been claimed for the exposition, and even those better fed in advance have reason say a gratifying surprise.

Fine vegetables and domestic handiwork were never seen—since the time "Adam delved and Eve span." There are, for instance, turnips, solid and sound, that could not be pierced in an ordinary water pail; beets from two to three feet in length and six to ten inches in thickness at the butt; potatoes in all varieties as large and fine as ever gladdened the heart of a Mormon of stupendous to renewed effort the penetrating sun beneath; cabbages large and sound that one of them with the customary apparatus would make a meal for the Utah National Guard; apples of large apples and other fruits, notwithstanding the fact that the season here are not considered favorable to growing) better corn and grain than can be found elsewhere in this region, not even excepting our own prolific western country; and to show the versatile tendency of nature with so profusion stimulus for that of the strong arm of the growers, and so much beauty that that which naturally grows from the possession of such resources in getting it. The displays of artistic skill, needlework, embroidery and various articles of curiosity and virtu are so large and varied as to defy description may be said of the stock and poultry, and of all it will be remarked that it was complete, that nothing more could be said. Dignitaries and others, with a broad smile of satisfaction upon the ruddy countenances at this outcome of the labor of love which he and his efficient aids have devoted so much time, energy and money to President Hess. Explaining things intuitively and answering questions before they are asked, the worker finds in him an close an imperceptible exponent of the general occasion and living encyclopedia of information regarding the origin, progress and development of the work whose results are now for the first time partially grasped and arranger for the inspection and admiration of the onlooker. Everywhere is the handiwork and good management of the Fair committee, visible; there are T. E. Hess (chairman); James Gillespie, secretary and treasurer; John T. Smeaton, Nick Nielsen and John Waite. Long may they and the good people who have strengthened their hands live to enjoy the fruits of their labors!

Hon. Edgar Wilson, Republican candidate for Congress, speaks here tomorrow night. Thus far the Democrats have held the most meetings—more, in fact, than both of their opponents combined; and there is to be no letting up until the 6th of November, when the last rays of the sinking sun have shed their subdued glow upon the field of strife. K.
