THE CAPTURED OUTLAWS.

It is a matter of congratulation that the desperadoes, Coughlin and George, have been trumped over by the officers, at least to the extent that they are now safely lodged in jail. But the fact that they have been the objects of so much misdirected, and maudlin or even criminal, sympathy, presents a most lamentable condition. That there have been so many expressions of profound admiration or of pity for these murderers should bring the blush of shame to respectable members of the community and inspire a fear of future results that are a menace to the welfare of the state. Those who have given value to these expressions should stop a moment and remember that they have been elevating to the rank of heroism the basest of crimes; that they are trolling boys and young men to look with favor upon the conduct of murderers and thieves; and that they are encouraging an element which threatens the destruction of society and government.

The claim of Coughlin that he had never been given the opportunity to "surrender like a man," or to do otherwise than be "shot down like a dog," until captured in Tooele county, has been heralded forth, and repeated again and again, and has been an excuse for much sympathy in his behalf. At the same time the people seem to have forgotten the facts in the case which should be clearly before them, and which stamp the outlaw's statement as a base falsehood. He is shrewd enough to realize that the public can be gulled by statements of that kind into pitying himself and companion, and thereby their way of escape be rendered easier. At the same time the public ought to know, and do know, that these desperadoes have been given every opportunity of surrender. There has not been an hour from the time they came into the vicinity of Salt Lake county when they could not have given themselves up quietly and safely if they had chosen to do so. They could have surrendered in Summit county, even up to the very time of the shooting near Wasatch. And the only reason they did not shoot down the officers of Tooele county was that there were too many for them and would have made short work with the murderers.

A particular fact should not be forgotten in this connection. When Coughlin and George went into Summit county a little over a week ago, Sheriff Harrington attempted to arrest them. He was practically unarmed, and they knew it. There was no danger to them that for the sheriff was even friendly. But what did they do? They opened fire upon him, and he, too, would have been among the dead officers if the horn of his saddle had not turned the bullet aside. As it was, he had to let them go. When the officers came upon the desperadoes in Echo canyon, there was no intention to surrender. That is shown by the events of Sunday, and at the time. They were cut off as escape, even if they had to kill and it, after the Wasatch shooting, they had been killed by the officers, the country would have been well rid of a brace of murderers.

Now we hear words of sympathy and admiration; we are told fairy tales about the slight offense they committed. Yet the fact is they were thieves, and then became murderers of the deputy. They slew two innocent men, made widows of loving wives and mothers, made orphans of helpless children. People who sympathize with the slayers of Deputies Hogg and Dower, where is your sympathy for the widows who are orphans children—for the loved ones who wept to their death in the maintenance of your laws and the defense of your rights? Shame that it should be easier on the violators of those laws and the assailants of those rights!

And all the county jail in this city there have been women of character and respectability who have carried it were to the imprisoned outlaws. Shame upon such! It is a disgrace to the sex. Where are the flowers for the graves of the innocent dead whom Coughlin and George took? For the tears and sympathy for the consolation of wives bereft of husbands, of children deprived of their fathers by the outlaws' hands?

This maudlin sympathy, this misdirected admiration for horse thieves and murderers must cease in this community, or the effort will be disastrous. What father or mother who sympathizes with the outlaws today knows that the effect of their action will not lead their own or their neighbors' sons to just such lawlessness? Think of it, intelligent and law-abiding citizens, and let the stamp of positive and unwavering disapproval be placed upon lawlessness and concealment forever. Let your sympathies be reserved for wholly with the law and the right; and let swift and certain punishment be meted out to criminals!

MISSION OF THE HEBREWS.

The interesting question of disarmament and universal peace is thoroughly discussed in the North American Review, by Dr. H. Pereira Mendes, the popular rabbi of the Nineteenth street synagogue in New York city. The writer opposes the colonization of Palestine by the Hebrews and the establishment in Jerusalem of an international court of arbitration to which the disputes of the world are to be submitted, as the best solution of all the problems involved.

The writer argues that war and the conditions entailed by its possibility are the curse of mankind. In twenty European states the cost of army and navy is $1,500,000,000, while 22,000,000 men are withdrawn from industrial pursuits, becoming a burden to their fellowmen. Even "glorious victories" mean thousands of widows and orphans, countless broken hearts, shadowed lives and shattered homes; brave men killed or wounded, or stricken with disease; strong men thrown for life on overburdened communities. War means military and naval budgets with stands of national bankruptcy and glowing embers of discontent, and legacies of national hatred and jealousy. It is the argument of both and view, an insult to our intelligence and to the Christian religion.

The only remedy is arbitration, and this mode of settling international disputes is steadily gaining ground. For a period of fifty-five years—from 1794 to 1849—there were only nine such arbitrations. In the next twenty-two years there were fifteen; in the next ten years there were fourteen and in the following thirteen years, thirteen. This proves that war is growing less popular.

What is needed for its entire abolishment is, first, a code of international law having for its sole end such an adjustment of the relations of the several states of the world as would best enable each to contribute its share to the welfare and moral advancement of all. Secondly, some established arbitrative power to which disputing nations can appeal. For an international code we must look to a congress of the world's most renowned lawyers, and the court interpreting and executing this code must be established in Palestine restored to the Jews and made neutral ground by the guarantee of the powers. Dr. Mendes looks upon this solution as the only practical one, and it is offered because it is contained in the book that has already given to mankind so many practical ideas—the Bible.

The restoration of Palestine, it is further pointed out, would solve the vexed eastern question and to some extent allay the religious jealousies between three great divisions of the church, Protestant, Roman and Greek Catholic. It would be the opening up of a vast commerce in which all nations would participate, and it would mean the fulfilment of two Scripture ideals of vast importance to humanity. One relates to the establishment on "the holy mountain" of a "house of prayer for all nations;" the other the realization of the prediction that, "The law shall go forth of Zion, and the word of the Lord from Jerusalem." The writer sees in these truly remarkable expressions a prediction that Palestine will finally be restored to the covenant people and that its special mission there will be to arbitrate between the nations of the world, and in contemplation of the future, a picture rises before his eye of peace and good will on earth: "Love and truth meeting, righteousness and peace embracing, truth springing forth from the earth and charity looking down from heaven."

To the readers of the News this article is doubtedly is of special interest. Ever since the dedication of the Holy land by Apostle Orson Hyde for the gathering of the Hebrew nation, this country has rapidly risen into prominence in the world. It is impossible to look upon its history in recent years without seeing in it an answer to the inspired prayers of the servants of the Lord on the Mount of Olives. The work of salvation, both Christian and Hebrew, is visible in every direction. So far, however, the practical interest in the future of the country has, with some notable exceptions, been confined to a class of Hebrews actuated by pious motives but desirous of study so much for its redemption. For other it has generally remained neutral, chiefly because no definite, feasible plan has been suggested, as tangible object pointed out. Dr. Mendes happily removes this objection by pointing the Palestine restored to the proper initiatory step to the abolition of one of the great evils of mankind and the commencement of a new era of peace and prosperity on earth. If he reasoning be admitted, it cannot fail to be an inspiration to the Hebrews in America in his people, and with the immense power they are wielding in the counsels of the nations, practical results may be looked for in the near future. What lends strength to his suggestions is the fact that he is in full harmony with the general declarations of prophecy, even if he fails to comprehend some of the particulars he quotes.

One thing may be considered absolutely certain. A nation entrusted with the power of arbitrating between other nations must itself be incorruptible and capable of giving just decisions with impartiality. But this is impossible without the restoration of the communication with heaven which made the Hebrews anciently celebrated above all nations. They must have inspired lawyers and judges, and rulers and teachers who listen to and obey the voice of Jehovah, as Moses, Sara, Isaiah, Daniel and others of old. That is to say, the decision of arbitrators must ultimately rest on the word of the Almighty. To Him, and not to man, the nations will bow in obedience during that reign of peace predicted, and to Ephraim as well as to Judah the power will be conferred to execute the divine word. Not only in Jerusalem but also in Zion will His throne be established; for the prediction is: "And many nations shall come and say, come, and let us go up to the mountain of the Lord, and to the house of the God of Jacob; and He will teach us of His ways, and we will walk in His paths: for the law shall go forth of Zion, and the word of the Lord from Jerusalem. And He shall judge among many people, and rebuke strong nations afar off; and they shall beat their swords into plowshares, and their spears into pruning hooks: nation shall not lift up a sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more." (Micah, 4, 2, 3.)

AN OBSERVER of social conditions finds faults on both sides of the dividing golf. He says:

The golf between the educated and the uneducated is one of the most dangerous which has ever divided society. On one side of the golf the educated classes grow in selfishness. These knowledge, these tastes, their sense of beauty becomes a sort of justification for keeping aloof from the common herd. Contempt for the ignorant, I am sure by the ugly? And by keeping aloof their sympathies shrivel and dry up. They tend to become selfish and vicious. On the other side of the golf the workmen tend to become brutal, they feel a pleasure in discovering beauty which seems to be the plaything of rich, and in offending institutions which seem to be the cloak of selfishness. They regard it as a sort of virtue not to conform to the rules of decorum or to the usual code of manners in company. They would condemn a historic monument, tear up an old prehistoric mound or desecrate a statue in sheerness, carelessness of its influence.

IT HAS BEEN reported that a negro, Bob Hoggard, lynched some time ago at Ford, Ky., charged with assault, was innocent of the crime. In an answer to say that "the work was done by a few hot-headed men who did not take time to inquire whether the poor wretch was guilty or not." The probability is that in a number of cases innocent men have been put to death by the lughs who constitute themselves executioners for the sake of gratifying their lust for bloodshed. Lynchers should always be dealt with as murderers.

FERDINAND OF BULGARIA assures the pope that his son will not change religion; which means that the Bulgarian king, who evidently knew something about the assassination of Stambuloff, is anxious to have his pope's good will and protective influence during the storm that is gathering over his head. It is not uncommon in Europe to see the name of religion for political purposes.

The Latter-day Saints College.

The Latter-day Saints' College, in this city, will open for the work of the tenth academic year on Monday, September 9, 1895. The following courses are offered: Preparatory, three years; normal, four years (two years preparatory); commercial, two years; literary, five years (three years preparatory); scientific, five years (three years preparatory); special courses for students desiring to give their attention to special lines of work. Students who have completed the seventh grade of the public school will be admitted to the first year of the preparatory course, without examination; those who have completed the eight grade are eligible to entrance upon the second year. A specialty is made of theological, commercial and normal work, a training school being provided for the benefit of the normal students.

The faculty has been increased by the addition of four instructors and four teachers, all specialists in their respective lines of work. Tuition is practically free, an entrance fee of $10 and a deposit of $5 is a year's work in the institution.

The Best Medicine for Diarrhoea.

Mr. Cooper, of this place, had been troubled with diarrhoea for three or four weeks and failed to get anything that would check it effectually, until he used Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, two doses of which effected a complete cure. He says it is the best medicine he ever saw for such cases. Also that he had given it to several families and they always called it.—E. L. Asmus & Bro., Sandy Flat, Greenville, Ca., N. C.

AN OPINION GIVEN.

Recently Mr. J. D. Thomas, of North Dakota, visited the Shenandoah Valley, Virginia, and after carefully examining the country decided to locate there, he writes to Mr. V. Bouvier, Land and Immigration Agent, Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, Baltimore, Maryland, as follows: "I have been to nearly every state and territory in the United States, and am frank in my opinion that this valley surpasses all other sections in the Union. The lands are low in price, and produce profitable crops. I thank you for directing me here, and solicit those seeking pleasant and profitable homes to locate in this country."

Be Patriotic.

Chronic Diarrhoea in South Africa

For over six years I was a constant sufferer from chronic diarrhoea. I tried a great many remedies and got little relief. By chance, I noticed an advertisement in the newspaper calling attention to Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. I sent for a bottle, and before half of it had been taken I was completely cured.—E. G. Rabie, Cradock, Orange Free State, South Africa.
