EVENTS IN THE WEST.

A Record of Occurrences in Neighboring States and Territories.

STRYCHNINE POISONING CAUSED DEATH.

Shot by a Colored Barber—Hotel Destroy-d by Fire—A Child Fatally Burned—Miscellaneous.

At Pocatello, Ida., Sunday, the jury in the Forrest case brought in a verdict of manslaughter. They were out ten hours.

W. H. McGraw has been sentenced by Judge Fiser of Moscow, Ida., to 15 years in the state prison for criminal assault upon a girl named Florence Cartwright.

The lost mail carrier, James Shirley, who does service on the Cheyenne and Horse Creek route, was found Sunday in a very serious condition from cold and hunger.

J. C. Johnson, the colored gentleman who is charged with enticing Katie Neal from her home in Sweet Springs, Mo., was captured in Lincoln, Neb., Sunday. He says the girl is in Butte and about to return to her home.

Dr. Verner of the Idaho legislature was shot in his home at Lewiston Sunday by a man named Dan Paul, and narrowly escaped being killed. It is said that the latter refused to attend a sick child of Paul's, hence the shooting.

The Southern Pacific hotel, the finest building in Ontario, Cal., burned to the ground Friday morning. The loss was $60,000, with $15,000 insurance. The ground floor was occupied by the post office, a real estate office and the Ontario Observer. The fire was caused by the sparks of electric light wires.

A dispatch from Cheyenne, Wyo., Saturday says that Judge John Knight finished there yesterday from Douglas, where he presided at the trial of "Annie" Cunningham, charged with murdering a Greek country merchant last spring. Cunningham was convicted of murder in the second degree and sentenced to twenty years' imprisonment in the penitentiary.

Friday afternoon little Erma Fletcher, the 5-year-old daughter of A. Fletcher of Fresno, Cal., was playing with matches set fire to her dress. A neighbor, Mrs. W. F. Anderson, heard the child scream and ran to her assistance. The woman succeeded in extinguishing the flames, but not until the child had fearfully burned. The little girl is still alive, but cannot recover.

Mamie Fulton, a young woman 24 years of age, died in a room at the Butter street, San Francisco, shortly after midnight Saturday morning. Near the office of attendants lay sleeping. Charles Martin, a man 31 years of age, with whom, according to his statement, the young woman had been living for the past seven years, is now suspected by the police with having had something to do with her untimely death.

Bakersfield, Cal., had her man for breakfast Thursday morning. He was killed because he would not buy a cocktail, murdered by the companion of a night's debauch. He was a Mexican laborer, a quiet, inoffensive fellow who behaved himself for months at a time, then drew his money and went on a protracted spree. His victim was Amelio Ramos, and his assassin was a fellow countryman named Isabelle Molina.

William H. Jones, a colored barber, shot and fatally wounded Manuel R. Gonzales, also a colored barber, at about Friday night at the barber shop, 1221 Butter street, San Francisco. Jones, immediately after firing, dropped his revolver, ran from the shop bareheaded, and, heading a Butter street car, rode to the Central police station, where he surrendered himself to Lieutenant Dunleavy. Gonzales was taken to the receiving hospital, where his wound was dressed by Dr. Torney, who pronounced it fatal.

Semantha Rosalda Pico, 19 years of age, one of the daughters of the late Governor Pico, is dead. She had attained the growth of Los Angeles City. From a pueblo of a few hundred people she remembered the American population by Pioneers well and often recounted the stirring incidents of those days. Rosalda Pico was one of the only two children of the late Don Pico, the last Mexican Governor, who was the Mexican regime. She died Thursday morning, 13 years, 11 Water Pitkaith street, Los Angeles, where she suffered for several years. In the same house Governor Pico breathed his last in September, 1894.

A Douglas, Wyo., dispatch, under date of 4 instant, says: Word that Moses Ziff, a nephew of the late and Pat Dunn of Cheyenne are preparing to send to the Omaha exposition one of the largest collections of Indian curios in the world. The gentlemen have been collecting curios in Indian trade. The Sioux Cross, Arapahoe, Navajoe and Shoshone Apache and Pueblo Indian tribes are represented. Of wapiti there are over 1000 heads, bows, arrows, spears and shields, battle axes and scalping knives. The collection includes a large number of relics from the Custer, Wounded Knee and other battlefields of the West. The collection also includes a large number of Indian dolls, dressed in the dress of the Indian, the horse and boots and saddle of Sitting Bull, the Sioux chief, and other Indian relics. The entire collection will cost over $4000. It is one of the most interesting features of the exhibit which will be made by Wyoming.

The Denver Republican says that Black Fish and Other Commissioner Jones, who recently visited the Ute Indians, Wednesday, starting for Washington, D. C., with a delegation of Utes, who joined at Grand Junction, Colorado, for a conference with Secretary Bliss and Commissioner Jones, the Indians said they were called as "poultry." The reason they were called "poultry" was because they, like the birds, would not be "plucked." Black Fish said: "Washington, D. C., is a place where they are called as poultry." The reason they were called "poultry" was because they, like the birds, would not be "plucked." Black Fish said: "Washington, D. C., is a place where they are called as poultry." The reason they were called "poultry" was because they, like the birds, would not be "plucked."

Black Fish said: "Washington, D. C., is a place where they are called as poultry." The reason they were called "poultry" was because they, like the birds, would not be "plucked."