BACON'S LATEST PROPOSITION.

H. B. Rea Quoted as Backing With Dalton & Lark Stock in Hand.

Today was commenced the mailing to creditors of Mr. James H. Bacon of his latest offer for settlement. It is backed by H. B. Rea, vice president of the Dalton & Lark Gold, Silver and Lead Mining and Milling company. The proposition is as follows and is sent from the office of Booth, Lee & Gray, attorneys:

SALT LAKE CITY, Sept. 9, 1896.

Dear Sir—Since time since I made a proposition to my creditors which was accepted by a large number of them—about 70 per cent in number and amount—the offer to extend to accept the proposition.

Quite a number of my creditors who are acquainted with the Dalton & Lark property called in to inspect that stock of $1 per share in payment of their claims. Afterward asked Mr. Rea, who is vice president of that company, and one of its largest stockholders, to purchase the claims of my creditors and take up my note, and he finally said if the creditors would accept the stock at each company at $1 a share, and assign their claims to him, he would do so.

I now propose a proposition from Mr. Rea, which only needs the acceptance of four-fifths of my creditors in amount to make it a success. The stock will be delivered for claims when that amount has accepted. At the present time it is impossible to estimate the value of the reserves, as published, showing the "total reserve assets to be worth "$20,000,000," which makes, when pressed among my creditors about 30 cents on the dollar of their claims, from which, of course, will be deducted the fees for receivers, their attorneys, and court and other expenses. An estimate of these, if the matter is to be prolonged for a year, would probably reduce what the creditors will receive through the receivers, to 10 or 15 cents on the dollar. The stock of the Dalton & Lark company sold for 50 cents per share, and in fairly good times is worth far in excess of that price. If you will hold the certificate of stock you get of Mr. Rea for two years, I will agree on the back of it to purchase it at $1 per share and to pay therefor, on or before two years, with 5 per cent interest, less the amount of dividends declared by the Dalton & Lark Gold, Silver and Lead Mining and Milling company during such time. If the stock should not be worth a dollar per share at the end of two years, I will be paying my debt to you and to Mr. Rea both; but I would rather pay twice, if need be, than to let any one truthfully say I had not done my best. The proposition will be open until September 21, 1896.

This gives to you something in your own name free of all liens, which you can dispose of at your own pleasure, or that you can hold to secure you for two years, when I will purchase it and pay you in cash with interest. I have labored for the past twenty days to bring about this proposition. I tried very hard to get all of my creditors to accept my first proposition, but could not do so, and now this is the best that can possibly be done and will fully protect you. If this meets with your approval, please sign and send the acceptance of the proposition herein indorsed at once to the above office or postoffice box 778.

Respectfully yours,
J. H. BACON.

Appended to Mr. Bacon's communication is an offer from Mr. Rea in the following language:

SALT LAKE CITY, Sept. 8, 1896.

I hereby offer to purchase all the claims against James H. Bacon (formerly doing business as the Bank of Salt Lake and the First Bank of Mercur) as shown by the books of each of said banks on the 23d day of June, 1896. I will pay therefor with the stock of the Dalton & Lark Gold, Silver and Lead Mining and Milling company at one ($1) dollar per share for each dollar of indebtedness, and take an assignment of said claims without recourse.

H. B. REA.

There follows a form of acceptance for the signatures of creditors, as follows:

IMPORTANT TO DAIRYMEN.

Prof. H. Ball Off to Timely Suggestions—Next Saturday's Meeting.

During the past summer in traveling over the state I had an opportunity to become personally acquainted with the present status of the dairy industry and with some of the possibilities of the future.

From a dairyman's standpoint there are many encouraging features. The summer's observation but confirms what I have frequently said before, that our country is well suited to dairying and enjoyed by none of the great districts of the United States or Canada. I am persuaded also that we need not fear a market. Situated as we are in the center of what, I think, is destined to be one of the greatest mining districts of the world, we have at our own door the best market in the United States for dairy goods, not need we fear competition in the higher trade if we will endeavor to maintain a high standard of quality in the product, as we may supply our customers regularly, and almost first to the mines, when the ups are at its back. Never need we fear for our market from the cities if we can profitably more to supply cheese into the State that is dairying, if we make as good and uniform a product as may be made, we can hold the trade against all competitors.

Again taking the average for the year we are not supplying our own market with many of those articles of food which are the product of the dairy and its adjuncts—butter, cheese, pork products and poultry. Something over a year ago, a statement was published in a Salt Lake paper which was that Utah paid out $1,000,000 annually for these products. Our farmers could produce them just as well and cheaper at home and with much greater advantage to them than are many of the times of work at present pursued.

It has occurred to me that there are a few points from observations of which, some may fall to attain the success that the situation warrants, and I am persuaded that in this instance the success of the individual is wrapped up in that of the whole. I have at times been forced to think that there are quite a number of processes of milk, and a few manufacturers of butter and cheese, who forget that the things they are handling are articles of food that are not expected to be washed before they are eaten; who forget the warning that "a clean thing cannot come forth from an unclean," and who, in the rush to get the milkers' hands, the milk pail or the milk can; not yet the vat, the churn nor the butter, I have at times also thought that I could see in some one hold a cigar to close to their eyes that they fail to see the dirt right by one them. I firmly believe that it will pay us as dairymen to spend more time in the study of our business. To be pessimistic in the acquisition of knowledge in relation to our calling is not the economy. We cannot afford to be content with present attainments. Scientific investigation is adding to the sum of human knowledge, and the army of intelligent workers is moving onward. We whose minds still is wont for behind. It behooves us, therefore, at times to live outside of our beats, other men of experience to see what we are. It is wisdom for us to learn from as wise an experience as practice and particularly from those from other localities (with which we have to compete) who may visit us from time to time.

On Saturday next, Sept. 12, we expect to have such an opportunity and we should not neglect it. Major Ashton of the Department of Agriculture at Washington, D. C., will be in Salt Lake City, and as many as possible should make it a point to be present. I notice that the dairymen of California and Oregon are making arrangements to have several meetings while Major Ashton is in those states; they are going to make large use of him. He can stop but one day with us, but we should show that we are just as enthusiastic dairymen in Utah as any that he will find farther west.

Don't forget the time, September 12, at 2 p. m., in the City and County building, Salt Lake City.

JACKSON'S HOLE.

A Story Letter as to the Attractions of the Region.

RAYMOND, Teton Basin, Idaho, Aug. 26, 1896.

To the Editor:

In this valley the hay crop is nearly gathered, and it is a good hard yield. The grain up to this date looks fine and some are beginning to harvest.

There has been some sickness, and two deaths are reported on Dairy Creek.

The travel to and from Jackson's valley is greatly increasing, the road being now passable to the National park. The road to the park is surely a romantic, and can not fail to please the sightseeker. Jackson's valley is undoubtedly all that could be expected of any valley of its altitude. If I am informed rightly, it is 6,000 feet above sea level. After leaving Raymond you pass up Trail Creek canyon, which is a gradual ascent to the Grey mountain, so named by the late Hayden. Hayden, who laid the line by drawing to Snake river just below Jackson's lake. Leaving the summit by a steady lean, the road comes to a fine view of the Teton range to from the north and runs into Snake River three miles below. This is a fine stream for large trout and there is a good fishing hole in it, which, instead of being covered with heavy sage and willows. At the crossing of this river the Mr. N. Wilson, the river season here is covered with heavy groves of cottonwood, giving it a wild and beautiful appearance. Crossing the river we come to Dalton this is called the Hole. This little valley lies at the base of the east range of mountains, being hidden from the main valley by a spur running in on the west side, even hiding it from splendid view given at the summit. In this "hole," as it is called, are some fine meadow ranches. The Little Blue Venice river comes down through this little valley and forms a junction with the Snake river five miles below. Near the mouth of this stream is a branch of the Uinta. The late sylvester Wilson was presiding Elder of the branch. This part of Jackson's valley I believe to be as good for agricultural purposes as any in the Teton basin. The Big Gros Venice river comes into the main valley just north of the "hole." Near the mouth of this river is a fine tract of land with 18,000 acres, the soil is warm and will produce well; the stream comes in from the west; it is a beautiful little river and the water is very easily handled for irrigating purposes. Up the river some twenty-five miles are some fine coal banks. Leaving Gros Venice south to the Buffalo fork, we pass along and a many good sized farms. The Buffalo comes into the valley from the east range of mountains, and runs into the main river about four miles below Jackson's Lake. At the mouth of Buffalo canyon is a ridge that is land sloping to the southwest. The soil is a rich sandy loam, and cannot fail to please the husbandman, for it is a fine soil and all kinds of fruit and hardy vegetables will nicely grow on such land. The water is easily taken from the Buffalo, and that is sandy. There is a fine coal bank three miles up the stream and a very little work will make a good wagon road to it. Jackson's lake is a beautiful sight to see, resting at the base of the west range of mountains. The great peaks throw their shadows half way across the lake in the afternoon, and it is surrounded with beautiful groves of cottonwood, pine and other kinds of timber. Lying south of Jackson's lake are three other lakes, called Leek's lake, Jenny and the Chicken Coop lake—all passing to the pioneers seeker. The water cost is now passable this way to the Park, and a daily mail comes into the Teton Basin and makes three trips a week into Jackson's valley. This means it soon convenient for tourists.

Considerable mining is done on the Cascade range of the east range in Idaho are that fair gold-mining will result from such exploration in the near future, than it has in the past.

Mrs. H. A. Dorn, of San Diego, Cal., says: "I am trying to a member to recommend Chamberlain's Pain Balm for the great good their remedy has done me. For years I was a constant sufferer from weak lungs and bronchial troubles. My friends would become alarmed by a hacking cough, so that I felt miserable the greater part of the time. Many remedies prescribed by friends I have tried, none of which proved suitable to my case. I did not experience any benefit at first until I began taking Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. After two bottles of the latter I was cured and I am pleased to state, my health is better than it has been for years. The cures I have left my lungs and chest and I can breathe easily. It is now as much good that I want all who are suffering from lung troubles, if I were to give it a trial." For sale by druggists.

Mrs. S. A. Kay, of Ogden, Ut., lost the hair back to screw her ankle. "I tried several footgums," she says, "but none of them would. I used Chamberlain's Pain Balm. That remedy cured me and I take pleasure in recommending it and testifying to its great value for the sprains, bruises, cuts, etc., to which I am subject, and as a liniment for muscular pains.
