CATARRH

THE EYE, EAR and THROAT successfully Treated with

SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE.

SUCCESS is the test of merit, and success in the treatment of Catarrhal Affections, Diseases of the Eye and Deafness is the strongest testimony in favor of Sanford's Radical Cure. Catarrh is a disease easy to contract, difficult to cure, and if neglected, fatal. Great by its extent, it is the most formidable of all diseases. Its victims, in the shape of doubtful testimonials from the most respectable people in all stations of life, must be conclusive on the point. Never, we believe, in the history of popular medicine has such valuable testimony been offered, freely offered, in favor of any remedy than that in the possession of the proprietors of Sanford's Radical Cure. And valuable it is, it does not represent a thousandth part of the recommendations which are to-day offered by friends to friends in its favor. For the benefit of those in distant parts of the country, who may be induced to try the remedy if they could but see the testimony that we have in our possession, we have put the public in possession of a pamphlet containing the testimonials in our possession, which we will send free to any address. Some of the testimonials in our possession are too strong to be published, those will not be published. Those which we do publish are from citizens of the highest character and standing, and are all of them well known, or are vouched for by well known parties.

INVALUABLE.

Messrs. Weeks & Potter, Wholesale Druggists, Boston, Mass.: Gentlemen—I have for some months felt it a duty that I owe to suffering humanity to write you, stating the great benefit I have derived from the use of Sanford's Radical Cure, or Catarrh Cure. For more than 20 years I have been afflicted with this very troublesome complaint, and have tried all the remedies that I could find, but without material or permanent benefit. Last fall the disease had arrived at that state that I must have relief or die. The entire membrane of my system had become so inflamed, and the stomach so disordered, that it was a doubtful matter whether I could live or not. I was induced to try a bottle of your Sanford's Radical Cure, and was at once benefited by it. The changes of climate, a chronic disease of the kidneys, and my age, may prevent my entire restoration, but the benefit I derive from its daily use is so considerable, and I am so much better than I was when I first write to you, that I feel it my duty to do so.

If this statement of my case can be of any service to those afflicted as I have been, and unable you to bring the remedy into more general use, especially on the Pacific coast (where it is much needed), my object in writing this note will be obtained.

Very truly yours, HENRY WELLS.
Auburn, N. Y., June, 1878. of Wells, Fargo & Co.

Each package contains Dr. Sanford's Improved Inhaling Tube, and full directions for use in all cases. Price $1.00. Sold by all Wholesale and Retail Druggists and Dealers throughout the United States and Canadas. WEEKS & POTTER, General Agents and Wholesale Druggists, Boston, Mass.

COLLINS' VOLTAIC PLASTER

ALWAYS CURES.

Enlarged Spleen.

This is to certify that I have been using your Collins' Voltaic Plasters for Enlargement of the Spleen and Depression in the Stomach, and they have given me more relief than any other remedy I have ever used. I would highly recommend them to all sufferers from the effects of pain and inflammation. J. W. SELLS.

Tuckerton, Mo., June 3, 1877.

Severe Pain.

Having occasion to use a remedy for a very severe pain in my side I tried one of your Collins' Voltaic Plasters, and in twenty-four hours the pain was entirely removed. J. B. SAMMIS, Ass't Cashier First Nat. Bank.

Wilmot, Mont., June 18, 1877.

Weaknesses.

Collins' Voltaic Plasters give the best satisfaction. Nine out of ten purchasers say they are the best they ever used for Weak Backs, Lameness and Weaknesses. Try one, and you will be convinced that they are much superior to all other plasters. JAMES LEWIS.

Dryden, Mich., April, 1877.

Price, 25 Cents.

Be careful to obtain Collins' Voltaic Plaster, a combination of Electric and Voltaic Plaster, with a highly Medicated Plaster, as seen in the above cut. Sold by all Wholesale and Retail Druggists throughout the United States and Canadas, and by WEEKS & POTTER, Proprietors, Boston, Mass.

EVENING NEWS.

Friday, November 15, 1878.

CORRESPONDENCE.

RANDOLPH, Utah, November 12th, 1878.

Editors Deseret News:

Some three weeks ago we were pleased to receive a visit from Elder Philo Dibble, with his paintings representing the martyrdom of the Prophet Joseph Smith and the Patriarch Hyrum Smith. We had a very interesting meeting, at which the lecturer gave a very useful lecture, and reviewed the rise and progress of the Saints or the great Latter-day work.

We, as a settlement, have had good crops the last season, the whole amount threshed being a little over 8,000 bushels of wheat, oats and barley, principally oats, for which we find a ready market at Evanston, on the Union Pacific Railroad, some 30 miles distant. The crops have turned out well, the general average being for oats and barley about 45 bushels per acre, wheat about 30 bushels. Mr. Samuel Brough raised on 2 acres and 140 rods of land 161 bushels of oats by machine measure, by weight they went over 70 bushels per acre, which we call doing pretty well for this northern locality.

The health of the people is very good at present. No trouble of any kind existing amongst us as a people. What we want to develop in this country is plenty of hardworking, honest sons of toil, who are not afraid of a little labor to make themselves homes. We have plenty of land, wood and water, and all we lack is more settlers to fill up the country and develop its resources.

Our meetings are generally pretty well attended. Our Sunday School is in constant operation and we expect our day school to start in a week or so. We have a Young Men's and Ladies' Mutual Improvement Association, Female Relief Society, which is in good working order, so you see we are striving to keep pace with the times and live our religion.

Yours respectfully, KING.

The Story of Some Girls

This truthful story is about some particular girls that Erastus Bailey of somewhere out in Michigan had on hand. There were six of Mr. Bailey's girls, all daughters, and all willing to be married, as the old gentleman was willing they should be. He had put them on the matrimonial market in one sweet bunch, utterly regardless of expense. In the way of curl papers, store frizzes, hooks and eyes and hair pins; they were displayed before young men, and middle-aged men, and all kinds of men, on all kinds of occasions, but none of Mr. Bailey's six daughters fished for a husband with any kind of luck; not one of them made a catch. Other men's daughter's went off like hot cakes, it seemed to Bailey, although neither he nor his girls could see any reason why men should be so miserably stupid. Bailey's girls were everywhere, and yet no man ever went where they were; they were offered free of cost to anybody who would take them off the old man's hands, but nobody seemed to want cheap girls with red hair and pug noses. It will probably never be found out how the idea came to strike Mr. Bailey, but he finally resolved to withdraw his girls from the market and give notice that not one of them would listen to any kind of an offer of marriage. Only philosophers will know why he settled upon such a remarkable course as this, but he was himself a philosopher. Mr. Bailey consulted with his six red-headed girls, and then went down town and told everybody that he had put a stop to all fooling around his daughters; that he had locked them up and would stay at home with a club and keep the boys off if less determined measures failed. The effect was immediate and tremendous. In two days some of the boys began to watch when the old man left the house, and then they slid in to see his pug-nosed daughters, but they always slid out a few minutes before pa came home. When Mr. Bailey was told of these things he put a padlock on the gate, and the boys jumped over the fence, rather liking the romance of the thing. In two weeks one of the girls followed herself from a second story window, ran off with one of the boys and got married. Old Mr. Bailey tore around in a dreadful way before the public, put some iron bars across the windows to prevent the escape of any more girls, and congratulated himself on his cuteness. In another ten days the second girl had got off in some manner utterly inexplicable and come back with a husband, and a third settled herself for better or worse with a bank cashier only a little while further on. This is all the matrimony that has occurred in that family at last advices, but the old gentleman is waiting with abundant hope that the other girls will glide noiselessly out through the cellar or fly out the chimney and climb the fence and get married. With three girls on his hands still, he has bought a shot-gun and chained an unusually ferocious dog in the back yard and put an extra bolt on the back door. He gives regular warning of these things all over town every day and hopes for the worst. It will certainly be realized, for everybody knows as well as Mr. Bailey that when you lock up something there are always lots of people waiting for a good chance to break in and carry it off; and this always works the more so with a girl than anything else. A man who wouldn't steal your purse doesn't have any scruples about carrying off your girl. There is probably no moral to this story, but it is an enduring lesson to all fathers—lock up your daughters.—Philadelphia Times.

The Bottom of the Sea.

Here is an end of all romance about hidden ocean depths. We can speculate no longer about perils in chambers of pearl, or mermaids, or heaped treasures and deadmen's bones whitening in coral caves. The whole ocean floor is now mapped out for us. The report of the expedition sent out from London in her Majesty's ship, Challenger, has recently been published. Nearly four years were given to the examination of the currents and floors of the four great oceans of the world. The Atlantic, we are told, if drained, would be a vast plain, with a mountain ridge in the middle running parallel with our coast. Another range crosses it from Newfoundland to Ireland, on the top of which, lies a submarine cable. The ocean is thus divided into three great basins, no longer "unfathomable depths." The tops of these sea mountains are two miles below a sailing ship, and the basins, according to Reclus, are fifteen miles, which is deep enough for drowning, if not for mystery. The mountains are whitened for thousands of miles by a tiny, creamy shell. The depths are red in color, heaped with volcanic masses. Through the black, motionless water of these abysses move gigantic, abnormal creatures, which never rise to upper currents.

There is an old legend, coming down to us from the first ages of the world, on which these scientific deep-sea soundings throw a curious light. Plato and Solon record the tradition, ancient in their days, of a country in the Western seas where flourished the first civilization of mankind, which, by volcanic action, was submerged and lost. The same story is told by the Central Americans, who still celebrate, in the fast of Izcalli, the frightful cataclysm which destroyed this land with its stately cities. De Bourbourg and other archæologists assert that this lost land extended from Mexico beyond the West Indies. The shape of the plateau discovered by the Challenger corresponds with this theory. What if some keen Yankee should yet dredge out from its unfathomed slime the lost Atlantis?—New York Graphic.
