A spinster was witness in a divorce suit.

"How old are you?" asked counsel for offense.

"Sixty-eight," replied the witness, giving her voice the same upward inflection as if she herself were asking a question.

"Are you married?" was the next question.

"No, thank God?" was the reply.

"Why do you thank God that you are not married?" said the attorney.

"Because," replied the witness, complacently, "I don't need a husband. I have a dog that growls, a cat that meows at late nights, and a parrot that can swear to beat the band. Why should I stand the expense of a husband, when I already possess creatures having the principal characteristics of one?"

The counsel did not try to answer this question, and the trial went on, after the laughter had gradually subsided.—Will Carleton's magazine, Every Where.

Nothing Unusual About It.

Considerable interest is expressed in the recent unprecedented action of impounding a jury of women in Chicago.

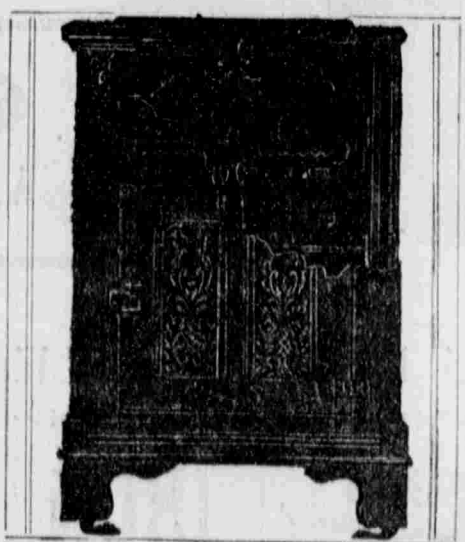

The question was one of separating a destitute mother and child or sending both together to a charitable institution, and the judge declared that men were not competent to decide it. The women were chosen from the experienced probation officers, but before their verdict could be legal it had to be signed by six men jurors, and it goes without saying that to the latter belonged the fees. A careful search of history would probably reveal several occasions where women did the work and men received the credit and the pay, but this is not the point.—From "Women in the Jury Box," by Ida Husted Harper, in national Magazine for April.

Is no more dangerous than to neglect kidney disorders. Foley's Kidney Cure corrects irregularities and has cured many severe cases after other treatment has failed. It builds up the worn out tissues and restores health and vigor. "I was troubled with kidney complaint for about two years," writes A. H. Davis of Mt. Sterling, Iowa, "but two bottles of Foley's Kidney Cure effected a permanent cure." F. J. Hill Drug Co.

New York May 22.—Mr. R. C. Easton closed his season with the "Honnie Brier Bush" company at St. Johns, Halifax, on the 14th inst., and sailed from there by boat to New York, where he arrived Thursday. He was at the "Mormon" services this afternoon and it was a real treat for the Utahns present to hear him sing the always favorite "Oh My Father." It is doubtful if there are many singers who can render this song with the spirit and feeling that Mr. Easton puts into it. He leaves Tuesday for Zion, where he will meet Mrs. Easton and remain until August, when he begins another season with the same company, or which he seems to have become a permanent fixture, having been with it since its initial performance. Next season Mr. Easton is to have a role that of Lora Klondike, in the play, aside from his singing and, in fact, he has been playing too part for the past six weeks. He is the guest of Mrs. Col. Willard Young during his stay in New York.

The final concert of the New York School of Art for the season of 1903-04, is now being held in the school buildings on west Fifty-first street. This school is beyond a doubt the largest of its kind in America and the exhibit reflects great credit upon the students as well as the management, as there are many pieces shown that many an older and more experienced artist might well be proud of. Messrs. Geo. Barrett and Clyde Squires are two Salt Lake boys who have attended the school since last September, and they have on many occasions been the only two in the afternoon illustration class to have their drawings marked by the instructor, Mr. Morn, for the concert. In the exhibit referred to above are found a number of their best drawings.

Yesterday the writer received a letter and a number of newspaper clippings from Harold Orlin, telling of the forthcoming production of his opera at the Detroit Opera House in that city last Thursday. The clippings were press notices appearing in last Sunday's Detroit papers, and some had page headings telling of "The Merry Men," the title of the piece, and one of the News-Tribune contained a very interesting description written in a breezy style of one of the rehearsals, and accompanying the article were several caricatures of young Orlin concluding that he was really clever. One showed the young musician all worked up and in a most excited condition presiding at the piano with one hand, and wielding the baton with the other, shouting at the top of his voice: "More volume, now, more volume!—Hotten!"

Mrs. Viola Pratt Gillette arrived in New York two weeks ago from Boston where she closed a very successful engagement with the "Mother Goose" company, which has proven a big money maker for Klaw & Erlanger. The season just closed was Mrs. Gillette's third under these famous managers, and likewise marked the termination of a three years' contract they held with her. To be sure, Messrs. Klaw & Erlanger are very anxious to renew their contract, as Mrs. Gillette has been a prime favorite in all their productions in which she has appeared. But Col. Henry Savage is likewise desirous to have her under his management, and has made a very flattering offer. However, she has not decided yet just whom she will sign with for the ensuing season, and in the meantime is residing quietly at her handsome apartments in the Hotel Stanley at west Forty-fourth street. Mrs. Gillette occupied a box at the Academy of Music last week to see her sister Leona's performance in "The Two Little Sailor Boys," now playing at that house.

Last Saturday night at the De Witt Clinton High school, occurred a clever amateur production of Hamlet, given by the students. This is the school Messrs. David and Neph Cummings, sons of Mr. B. F. Cummings, have been attending for the past three years, and but play Master David essayed a prominent role.

Mr. M. W. Pratt of Salt Lake, arrived in New York on the 15th inst. His trip is a business one and will be of several weeks' duration. He is stopping at 225 west One hundred and Thirty-fifth street.

Miss Blanche Thomas jumped into the part of Marie Lathrop in "Out of the Fold," at the Metropolitan theater last Monday night, on short notice, and won much praise from the audience during the week. This play was previously produced at the American, where it enjoyed a long run, but was transferred to the Metropolitan to make room for Herbert Keiley and Effie Shannon, who followed in their version of "Sherlock Holmes." This has been Miss Thomas' first season on the professional stage, but she has during the year been connected with a number of good New York productions.

Last Saturday evening Miss Ruth Gillette, a granddaughter of the famous pencil manufacturer, gave a musical party at her apartments on east Fifty-ninth street. Misses Vida Eccles and Artie Banta, and Messrs. Geo. Barrett and Clyde Squires had the pleasure of attending.

Mr. Joseph A. West has been in New York for the past ten days attending to some business that called him to the city, but expects to leave for the west this week. He has been stopping with his friend, Mr. A. N. Rosenbaum.

Dr. John F. Sharp left for Salt Lake Thursday, being called there by the death of his father. When the news reached him he was in the midst of his medical examinations at Bellevue, which made it impossible for him to leave immediately. Since then, in order to reach his home in Salt Lake as soon as possible, he has been taking special examinations, all of which he passed successfully. Dr. Sharp has won many honors during the past year at Bellevue and is held in high esteem both by his professors and classmates. At the beginning of the year he was elected president of his class, an honor which in itself, shows how high he is held in their estimation. Dr. Sharp carries with him to Salt Lake the sympathy and best wishes of all Utahns in Gotham.

hattan avenue, will stay with Mrs. Sharp at 307 west One Hundred and Eleventh street during Dr. Sharp's absence.

Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Early entertained last Monday evening at their cozy apartments on Manhattan avenue, in honor of Prof. Eugene Healy, who is well known in Salt Lake musical circles and is becoming equally known in New York. The rooms were very tastefully decorated, as only Mrs. Early can arrange them on occasions of this kind, and every one carried away a most pleasant remembrance of the evening's entertainment as, besides enjoying the hospitality of the hosts, they had the pleasure of hearing each one of the other guests in song and recital.

Some time back your correspondent said New York, considering its size, was the strangest place in the world for meeting old acquaintances. A few days since the writer unexpectedly encountered three old-timers, one being Mr. Joseph Shell, who had been in New York for a month without seeing a single Utah face, and who was preparing to go to St. Louis the next day. The other two friends unexpectedly met, were Alf Svensen, the actor, and "Daddy" Lewis, the inflexible stage manager of "Corlinton." Both are playing in "The Little Church Around the Corner" at Jersey City, and both were in New York to arrange for their appearance at the Third Avenue theater where they play the coming week.
