HIS LOVE MEANT DEATH.

Alice Stock Davis, who appeared in every today with a wan face and sorrowful manner, asked a divorce from Henry Davis, the generally young cruelty and fickleness support. There was no defense offered.

The plaintiff testified that she married Davis in the city on the 10th of April, 1897, she thinking he loved her. Little May Davis, a child of three years, adopted her and made them happy. Soon defendant left her and was found to be not the man she had thought he was. He would not work, but would go for days at a time from his mother's home, and when he came home he would be cross and fretful. Some defendant would leave her for days at a time, and she would go to her home. Finally he left her and she heard he was in Colorado. Defendant continued to write letters to her, one of the letters was attached in the following language:

"Maud, I have sent your first letter back to the one who put it in the box. Why don't you write. My heart's pain is back, and I am sick.
