A CORRECTION.

A subsequent item ... announces to its readers that the vacancy in the presidency of Utah Stake ... by the death of the late President A. O. Smoot ... [illegible]

This information is misleading ... [illegible] ... the Utah Stake conference will be held on Saturday and Sunday, April 20 and 21, not on Sunday and Monday ... [illegible]

The circumstances that doubtless led our contemporary into its error are these: the vacancy in the Utah Stake presidency, the approaching Stake conference, and the intention of the First Presidency and a number of the Apostles to be in attendance. These are facts, the remainder is more surmise, where not actually invented. The visiting brethren expect to meet with and preach to the people of Utah Stake, but up to this time they have made no choice of president, nor is the purpose of their visit the selection and ordination of such officer.

COAL OIL'S WONDERFUL BOOM.

The most startling of the many startling developments in American speculation in recent years is the present extraordinary boom in oil. Neither wheat, nor silver, nor sugar, nor whisky, nor any other of the commodities which figure in the fluctuations on 'change, has partaken, within at least a decade, of anything like the advance that the last few days have witnessed in the price of petroleum. That the speculators have a large share in creating this excitement need not be argued; but that there is something more to it than a mere "corner" will be readily understood from the fact that what is known as the "visible supply" of coal oil has decreased more than two hundred per cent from what it was two years ago. The inexorable law of supply and demand may accordingly be credited with being the real backbone of the present movement; while there has been no appreciable diminution in the amount consumed, there has been a most remarkable falling off in the amount produced.

The immediate effect of this will be of course a material increase in the price of this indispensable product to the consumer. ... [illegible]
