Fireman Crushed to Death Under the Engine.

NOT SHOOTS HIMSELF FATALLY.

Killed With A Log—$40,000 Interest on an $800 Note—Forger to Remain in Jail.

One hundred lady delegates are in attendance at the Idaho Equal Suffrage association convention at Boise this week.

Sylvester Karlstuto was killed at Fort Bragg, Cal., Tuesday, by a log falling upon him. The deceased was a native of Finland, aged 40. He leaves a family in Finland.

Andrew, the twelve-year-old son of J. J. Bennett, a prominent farmer of Calaveras valley, Cal., accidentally shot himself Tuesday afternoon while playing with a revolver. He died two hours later.

Bids for the erection of the superstructure of Washington state capitol building were opened Tuesday. The bids count for nothing, because they exceed the $900,000 available for the capitol.

George Hedeen, a farmer living near Salinas, Cal., and his wife, met with a serious accident Tuesday morning. They were returning from the postoffice and had gone about a mile and a half when the horse shied and ran away. Both were thrown from the wagon, and Mr. Hedeen was dragged a considerable distance before the horse was stopped. His condition is serious. Mrs. Hedeen escaped with a few bruises.

Samuel Hankins (colored), a fireman, was run over and killed by a fire engine at Los Angeles, Tuesday night. The engine was responding to an alarm, and Hankins attempted to board it while in the act of putting on his coat. He lost his balance and was thrown under the rear wheels, which passed over his chest, crushing his life out. He was about 45 years of age and a well known character about town.

The supreme court of Idaho has decided the case of George N. Hinkley, the Latah county forger, who, while county auditor and recorder, issued forged warrants almost without number, greatly to the embarrassment of the county exchequer. He pleaded guilty to three specific charges and was sent to the penitentiary for twelve years. The case was appealed, and the supreme court decided that Hinkley must remain in prison.

One of Ann Fish's interest-accumulation forms the basis of a suit in Judge Hunt's court in San Francisco. In 1891 D. H. Hicks signed a note for $80, bearing interest at 3 per cent a month, compounded monthly. Hicks gave the note to Fish, signing the firm name of Hicks, Judd & Co., and now Fish wants judgment for the principal and interest, amounting to $40,000, against both Hicks and Judd. The latter denies that he was a partner at the time the note was signed.

B. Cranston Potter has disgraced his aristocratic relatives and shocked Tacoma, Wash., society by being locked up in jail for drunkenness. His father is wealthy E. gitch banker. He is a nephew of Bishop Potter, a brother of James Brown Potter and brother-in-law of J. Kennedy Todd, all prominent New Yorkers. It is said that Potter was sent west because he was not easily controlled in the East. He has been a high liver ever since he came from New York, six years ago, soon after which he married a daughter of C. J. Ramsay, formerly a millionaire capitalist on the Chicago board of trade. Sunday morning at 5 o'clock, Potter rode his bicycle into a Pacific avenue saloon, fetching up in a heap at the better end. Then he proceeded to clear and knocked off a quantity of glassware which the bartender was cleaning. When Potter came west his father started him in business by purchasing for him a $50,000 interest in the Crescent Creamery company, which aimed to control the butter, egg and cold storage business of the Northwest, but subsequently failed. Recently at Seattle he went out sailing alone while under the influence of liquor. He was fell overboard and narrowly escaped drowning.

Caldwell, Idaho, Record, 20th: The Idaho Irrigation and Colonization company's canal, otherwise known as the Sebree ditch, is advertised to be sold by Sheriff Campbell on Dec. 7, 1895. The sale is to occur on a judgment against the company secured by ex-Governor president, Howard Sebree, of this place, on account of money advanced the corporation while he was general manager and for which he holds the company's note. The amount of judgment is $4,000 on which there is yet due $1,999.10 with interest and costs. ex-Governor Thomas, of Utah, who is in charge of the ditch, was in town yesterday in a furious state of mind over the affair, claiming that he and the other Salt Lake shareholders knew nothing of the judgment. He got certified copies of the papers at the clerk's office and will submit the case to the company's attorney in Salt Lake. Mr. Sebree explained to reporter that the money was regularly borrowed by the company while he was manager, a note given signed by himself as president, ex-Governor Thomas, secretary. That no assessment to cover the same was ordered, but only himself, G. Y. White and the Ann estate paid. The judgment was rendered at the May term of the district court in 1894 by President Sebree and execution was stayed until the present time.

The Pheasant.

The pheasant is singularly well adapted to hold its own with the larger birds of the forest, and its manner of flying helps it to escape the sportsman. It is equipped with a pair of spurs which average about three-quarters of an inch in length. When attacked, it uses them with great quickness, making wounds which are ugly and painful. In flying the pheasant rises in the air almost perpendicularly. This action, as well as every other action of the bird, is done with remarkable quickness, making them hard to shoot. They sometimes employ this trick in outwitting their foes, all unconscious of danger, fear their heads.

In the Ayrshire home dairy test no premium is allowed for a herd whose milk yields an average of less than 12 lbs. per cent.
