OGDEN.

OGDEN, UTAH, - MARCH 18, 1896.

Ogden News.

Tuesday morning Judge Rolapp rendered his decision in the case of the State ex rel Hance against Beardsley. This is the suit brought by Hance to obtain possession of the Ogden City auditor's office to which he was nominated by Mayor Spencer but which nomination was not confirmed by the city council, hence the suit. Judgment of ouster was rendered but no cost will be charged respondent because the State brought action sooner than necessary, the expiration of the term of office being Feb. 12, 1896 instead of Jan. 14, 1896, as alleged by the State. The complaint of R. H. Whipple vs H. H. Henderson, was dismissed, Whipple wanted the city attorneyship.

In the Hume-Beardsley case, which Judge Rolapp decided against Beardsley for the city auditor's office, an appeal was taken yesterday, also in the Whipple-Henderson case which is a contest for the city attorney's office.

LITERARY NOTES.

Godey's Magazine is the first among the monthlies to devote a number to the large and growing section of the public which does the reading. The April issue contains a great variety of illustrated articles, essays, and stories, most of which deal with the bicycle. A noticeable novelty is a wheeling song, composed by Robert Cowdy, and suited to the use of amateur choruses. The Major General commanding the United States Army, the Chief Clerk of the L. A. W. for New York state, the editor of The Wheel, and one of the Surgeons of the Women's Hospital, are among the authorities who discuss the bicycle from different standpoints in the April Number of Godey's Magazine. A large variety of illustrated articles and stories complete a remarkably good number.

The opening chapters of a new serial story are given in the April number of Frank Leslie's Pleasant Hours for Boys and Girls, called "Gerald's Mission," and which will be followed by one. A girl's serial, entitled "An American Princess," also begins in the April number, which contains several other attractive features. There are numerous short stories, an interesting paper on the methods of work of Thomas W. Knox, Frances Hodgson Burnett, William O. Stoddard and Noah Brooks, in the series "Favorite Story-writers for Young People," and the second paper on "Young People of the Wild West." It is altogether an excellent number.

The "Lee at Virginia" series of illustrated articles is continued in the April number of Frank Leslie's Popular Monthly. The present chapter, the third of the series, is devoted to the early life of Robert E. Lee—his boyhood, his West Point training, his marriage with Mary Randolph Custis, residence at Arlington, and over thirty years' service in the United States army, including the brilliant campaign in Mexico, where he won rapid promotion and the cordial admiration of his superiors, notably General Winfield Scott. The illustrations and portraits are especially interesting. A charming personal description of Miss Emma Calve, the queen of the opera season, is given, together with some of her Paris portraits never before published, and numerous "Sanspareil" glimpses of her "home" life at Cabrieres, in the south of France.

Headache

FOR TWENTY-FIVE YEARS

With feelings of uncertainty, Mrs. Will began the use of Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, but today it has no better friend than she. Read her letter to Dr. Kennedy:

"Year after year for years I have been troubled with sick and nervous headaches, so bad that much of the time I was utterly prostrated. I tried many medicines, but they failed to do me any good. Last spring my son was using and he insisted on my trying it. I did so, and used less than a bottle, and found it was just the medicine I needed, for I have not had a headache since.

"It also acted as a tonic. I hope this letter will reach the eye of some poor sufferer, for I know if they will only try Favorite Remedy they will be thankful for it." Yours truly, Mrs. Louie C. Will, Greenville, Pa.

Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy is the cure for all blood and nerve medicines. It cures rheumatism, neuralgia and nervous prostration. It is a specific for scrofula, erysipelas, dyspepsia and for the troubles peculiar to the female system.
