LOCAL AND OTHER MATTERS.

Missionary Notice.

Elder O. H. Berg, of Provo, who was called to take a mission to Europe at the last General Conference, has, on account of sickness in his family, been honorably released therefrom.

Since the meeting of Conference, Elders James Reece, of Payson, and Lars P. Nielsen, of Provo, have been called on missions to Europe.

JOHN TAYLOR, President of the Council of the Apostles.

Obsequies.—James Tully gave the police a good deal of trouble yesterday afternoon. He was indicted, wild and boisterous. On the way to the City Hall he plunged about, kicked and struck the officers. This morning Justice Tully fined him $15.

Relief Fund.—Morris and Evans, of this city are receiving, from various parts of the Territory, sums of money, for the fund being raised to aid the poor Saints in Wales to migrate. Many of the settlements are taking an active interest in the Motherhood of the laudable object.

To-night.—To-night the great national play of "Across the Continent" will be presented at the Theatre. Mr. Oliver Doud will sustain the principal character. He will be supported by Kate Hyron. A full company, and the place contains start situations and attractive scenes. A full house is expected.

Exponent.—The Woman's Exponent, which should have been issued to-day, will appear in the course of two or three days, being unavoidably delayed. The subscribers will understand the heavy action in the family of the editor, while they mingle their grief with the sorrow of the bereaved.

Entertainment.—The benefit entertainment, in aid of the Welsh Relief Fund, at the Sixth Ward School-house, on Saturday night, was not very numerous attended, owing to the inclemency of the weather. The performances were good, however. The valuable services of the Mousley Dramatic Association were especially appreciated.

Back Down.—Yesterday, while Benches Goddard, Willes and Madsen were on the way home from Mill Creek, a deep rut in the road and the combined awkwardness of the vehicle, lost much for the spirit of the vehicle. Mr. J. R. Willes, Jr., acted the role of the "good Samaritan" by conveying a couple of the three to the city in his buggy. By driving slowly and exercising extreme caution the trip managed to reach home in the damaged conveyance.

4th day School Jubilee.—Yesterday there was a joint meeting of the 4th day schools of the four districts of Mill Creek Ward, at the meeting house. Brothers George Madsen, William Willes and S. R. Madsen, from this city, were present. The songs and the musical and literary exercises were rendered in a manner of that afforded great satisfaction. One of the most pleasing features was a recitation by a six-year-old daughter of Brother George Madsen, composed by the latter for the occasion. The composition was rendered with appropriate feeling and a pure. The Sunday schools of Mill Creek Ward are in excellent condition.

In 1878.—The Trustees of the County (Ill.) of April 10th, in its "State Items" has the following: "Brother Joseph Standing, of the Mormon Church, Salt Lake City, Utah, is the guest of J. R. Willes, Sunday and Tuesday."

Kind Standing is now in Covington, Indiana, where he has been cordially received by those among whom he labored, two years ago. He is the strong believer in the doctrine of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, some of whom are making preparations to sell and come to Utah.

Articles Well.—After the Mayor, Judge and a committee of the City Council visited the vicinity of the City cemetery, and localities, it was intended to sink an artesian well, for the purpose of watering the grounds. The place selected is situated a short distance from the north-east corner of the cemetery, by the side of the south of a small ravine.

On account of the greater expense of boring with artesian well machinery, the city council have the ground dug by hand labor, in the form of an ordinary well, down to the rock. At that point the machinery will be applied, and continue boring until water is reached, or it is demonstrated that it cannot be obtained.

The success of the experiment will be watched with intense interest by thousands of people. The question of a supply of water to irrigate the public burial grounds is by no means the only one at issue. If the attempt to obtain an artesian well is successful, it will prove that water of that character can be made to issue from the earth, where there is no apparent source, and that water from any other source, the fact of its experiment being demonstrated by men of position, will be an indication of its feasibility.

Home Manufacturers.—There is a great deal of talk in the community about the necessity of sustaining and encouraging home enterprises and productions. If the preaching on the subject were backed up by a little more practical consistency, wouldn't it lose anything. The number of articles made in the Territory and offered for sale is really quite formidable, but, owing to great numbers of the people preferring to employ those thousands of miles from home to produce what can just as well be made here, our industrial enterprises, comparatively languish for want of the support they should receive. To-day we took the trouble to obtain a list of home articles offered for sale at one store; the Commission House, in Constitution Buildings, under the management of Mr. John C. Cutler. We append the following:

Cloths, Jeans, Flannels, Linseys, Blankets, Carpets, shawls, Yarns, Table Cloths, Sheet Pads, Mats, Boots and Shoes, Brooms, Washboards, Trunks, Concentrated Lye, Ghee, Axle Grease, Eas. Jamieson Ginger, The Wash, Fast Powder, Crackers, Hair Oil, Crochery, Baskets, Parlor Dusters, Utah Haven Soap, Toilet Soap, Sand Tablets, Blacking, Bluing, Ink, Candy, Neatfoot Oil, Balsam of India, Root, Towels, made of Utah (Dixie) cotton; Knitting Cotton, Carpet Warp, Men's Women's and children's Woolen Socks, Men's Socks (Dixie Cotton); Silk Handkerchiefs, Gentlemen's; Embroidery Silk, Sewing Silk, Cotton Clothes Lines, Men's and Boys' Fur Hats, Ladies' Straw Hat, Ladies' Lace Collars, Ladies' and Gent's silk Ties, Artificial Flowers, Buck Gloves, Tiedies, Counterspanes, Bed Quilts.

The articles enumerated above do not include all the goods on sale at the store named, which keeps nothing that is not made in Utah. Those who are theoretically in favor of sustaining home enterprise, should scan the list closely. By observing what they pay out for imported goods of the classes named above they can readily arrive at an approximate estimate, in round figures, of how far their practice disagrees with their theory. A surfeit of theory and a famine of practice is not commendable. So far as we sustain importations in preference to home productions, so far does the moral responsibility of the existing fact of numbers of idle men, willing to work, but unable to find it, rest upon our shoulders.

The spirit and genius of "Mormonism" demands that each shall do his part in building up a community in which there shall be practically no poor.

CORRESPONDENCE.

The Peace Question.

BEAVER, U. T., April 8, 1878.

Editor's Dearest News:

I was pleased to notice in your Semi-Weekly issue of the 6th inst. a communication from Bro. R. F. Johnson, on the subject of peace and justice. Although I do not think it would be wise to do away with the fence law altogether, I favor the doctrine of holding the stock responsible for all damage done by it, fence or no fence, and that is what I understand the present law to say, unless it was changed at the last session of the Legislature.

In localities where there is sufficient timber to fence all of the land that the community desire to cultivate, and they desire so to fence, I think they should have privilege of saying, "We will fence our farms either in a joint enclosure or separately, as the case may be, and allow our stock, our cows, teams, etc., to graze outside. We will make a lawful fence, but that shall not release ours of our neighbor's stock from their responsibility for damages. We will not look beyond the stock for our pay. But on the other hand, if the owners of stock can prove that we have not kept our faith with them by making a good and lawful fence, as we agreed, let them have redress on the owners of poor fences, but not require the man who has a good fence to inquire how the stock got on to his growing or matured crop. Leave that with the stock owner, and if they have not interest enough in their stock to look it up or pay the damage, let the stock be sold, after due notice, to the highest bidder, refunding to the owner all wrongs received over and above damages and needful expenses."

In localities where the people decide not to fence, let them be protected by the law, and not be eat up either by transient herds or portions of their own stock.

The foregoing I understand to be both the law and equity of the case, but have no quarrel to pick with those who differ from that view.

From a moral standpoint I would say with Brother Johnson, herd all the stock closely, rigidly, and keep all loose and transient stock at least twenty miles from the settlements, herding only the teams and milch cows in the immediate vicinity of the settlements.

I think this would stop a stop to a great deal of the cattle stealing now going on in our Territory. I think as white men, we might profit by a lecture delivered in Beaver by the late Indian Chief, Black Hawk, a short time previous to his death. After stealing a great deal of stock and killing many people in camps and on the plains, he was included a treaty of peace, and used his influence to prevent further hostilities. Among other things he said in substance, "I have done wrong, I ask to be forgiven. I desire peace. I will not steal or kill any more. I will do all in my power to keep the peace, and if I am doing one great wrong. As I came down through Fremont Pass on the other side I saw large herds of cattle many miles from settlements, and no one looking after them. This is a great temptation to young men, and I find it hard to keep them from settling your stock. You should take better care of it. Keep it nearer your settlements or have men to watch it."

I think the above advice, though coming from a savage, would save the community thousands of dollars annually, and take a great source of temptation from the small portion of our "young men" who have not sufficient stamina to resist temptation. Aye, and some older men, who have lost their way.

It is, however, a question in my mind, in fact, extremely doubtful, whether the Legislature has the right to prevent stockmen from settling at large on the public domain, where it is unoccupied and doing no damage. If it has that right I would say by all means have every herd of cattle man fenced in, and still holding sacred the benefits to those who desire it, of the fence law; thus making it easier with the two safeguards to protect the average settler from the depredations of the cattle man.

Whatever law is made I am in favor of having it strictly kept. If it is a good law let the people have its benefits. If a bad one let them be reformed and a better way of getting it repealed.

DANIEL TYLER.
