A REMARKABLE VOYAGE.

MORE than a year ago, Professor A. E. Nordenskjold, a Swedish navigator, proposed to his Government to make a voyage unparalleled in the annals of northern exploration. He offered to lead an expedition through the Siberian and Polar Seas to Behring Strait, returning home by way of the Suez Canal. This bold scheme occasioned much comment at the time, and like all innovations, the Swedish sailor's plan met with ridicule. But the Government listened favorably to his proposal and explanations, and placed under his direction the steamship Vega, duly officered and manned, and provisioned for two years.

The voyages of Captain Wiggins, of England, who demonstrated that the mouth of the Siberian river Yenisei was only a fifteen day's trip from London in an open season, tended to assist in making Professor Nordenskjold's project appear feasible. Two or three voyages had been made through the Sea of Kara, but no vessel had penetrated eastward farther than Cape Sterlegoff.

Professor Nordenskjold started last July with the steamship Vega, a wooden vessel, with 22 inch oak sides, and the Lena, an iron steamer. The expedition proceeded by way of Matotschkin Sound, which divides the island of Nova Zembla, into the Karean Sea and safely made Dickson's port at the mouth of the Jenessy, or, as it appears on the maps, the Yenisei. From this point the voyagers started on the 10th of August and found the charts of the coast east of that point altogether incorrect. They were hindered by heavy fogs and floating ice, but overcame the latter by putting on heavy steam, the wooden Vega taking the lead, as it was better calculated to stand the brunt of the ice than the smaller though iron sided Lena.

On the 19th of August they reached a little bay on the west side of the North Cape of Asia, called Cheljuskin, after a Russian of that name, who reached that point by land in 1879. Next day they reached the northern point of the Cape—the first vessels known to have sailed around it from the west. Lieut. Hovgaard, one of the Professor's staff thus relates the incident in a letter which went to Berlin, and came from that city to the N. Y. Herald:

"Who can describe the feelings of triumphant joy with which we at last drew near the long sought goal!

"With all flags waving and greeting the time honored northern point of the Old World with five salutes, the Vega steamed proudly into the harbor, while the sun, as if to give additional lustre to the festive occasion, dispelled the clouds, showing a range of high snow covered hills in the background. From the top of a large promontory a bear stared inquiringly at his unexpected guests, but after receiving a few shots deemed it prudent to retire to the shelter of the hills. Continuing our observations the next day we erected a cairn, in which we deposited a document telling of our expedition and future plans. At one p.m. on the 24th of August we weighed anchor and steered eastward. After battling amid fog and ice we attained the narrow coast of the Taimur peninsula and had then the luck to meet almost open water. The coast is about fifty English miles more to the west than noted down on the chart."

He also refers to a glimpse they had of the midnight sun, as follows;

"A wonderful panorama spread around us. To the south lay the Taimur land, glittering fiery red in the rays of the midnight sun, appearing, by refraction high above the northern horizon, while the ice reflecting in the air assumed fantastic forms. Upon the glassy surface of the sea the two steamers glided smoothly onward, passing many little fjords with ice-fringed coasts. An unfortunate bear, incautious enough to swim too near the Lena, had to atone with his life for his temerity. This Arctic splendor was not of long duration: the next day we were again obliged to resume our usual manœuvring between the drifting ice."

After making scientific observations they steamed onward and reached the mouth of the river Lena, in Asiatic Siberia. Here the Lena stayed to sail down the river as far as Yakutsk (in some maps Iakutsk) to return next year, while the Vega continued its journey towards Behring Straits to sail southward and halt at Japan. All the probabilities are in favor of the complete success of the expedition, and we may reasonably expect to hear of Professor Nordenskjold's return to his native country by way of the Suez canal, having finished with honors a journey which no other navigator has ever accomplished.

The benefits which will result, among others, from the voyage of the Vega and Lena are these: It has been demonstrated that vessels can reach the northern coast of Asiatic as well as European Siberia. Several islands in that region hitherto unknown have been discovered and their location established. The actual geography and condition of the northern coast have been ascertained. It has been proven that marine access can be had from Europe to the interior of Asiatic Siberia from whence overland communication is had with the great Chinese Empire. And the issue may be an opening for regular Oriental trade by a route hitherto unknown. This would effect in no insignificant degree the business of the world.

We shall look with interest for the completion of the Swedish traveler's great voyage and the full account of his remarkable achievement, which will place his name on the list of the world's celebrated navigators and explorers.

A WOMAN'S WORK.

"On the Plains and among the Peaks" is the title of a book just received at the Deseret Museum. We are accustomed to notice the interesting collection of Rocky Mountain animals and birds on exhibition in that institution, and to regard them as evidences of great skill on the part of our brethren. We have seen one or two specimens of our native birds, that were presented by Mrs. M. A. Maxwell during her short stay in this city, a few years ago. But it was hardly expected then, that a large and wonderful collection of panthers, lynxes, wolves, foxes, bears, elks, and almost every important animal of these mountains, as well as eagles, owls, swans, humming birds, wax-wings, and orioles, with almost every bird met with in these regions, would be captured, preserved and set up for observation to the gaze of the world, at the great exhibition of Philadelphia, in 1876, and that by a woman, but it has been done. That unobtrusive lady, we have named, accomplished all this, and more than can be told here. The account of how this was done, and the names of the various fauna of Colorado, which includes largely that of our vallies, has been chronicled by another lady, Mrs. Dartt, who is eminently gifted in scientific knowledge and literary ability. Her work is written in a very pleasing style, and presents the labors, courage taste and skill of Mrs. Maxwell, in their true light before the public. Those who visited the Centennial Exhibition, no doubt saw and admired her collection, but few know anything of the means by which it was obtained. "On the Plains and among the Peaks" tells the story. The book will be preserved in the Museum.

EASTERN.

Will Not Accept.

NEW YORK, 23.—The directors of the Mount Sinia Hospital, yesterday, considered the profer of the $500 by ex-Judge Henry Hilton on behalf of Mrs. A. T. Stewart, and discussed the communication by mail and telegraph from the Hebrews of Cincinnati, advising the refusal of the money. They finally voted unanimously that the gift should not be accepted. Through Judge Hilton, and the secretary was authorized to write a letter to that effect.

An Immense Fissure.

The Herald's Richmond, Va., special says: It is variously reported here and published in the local press that an immense fissure has been discovered in the Blue Ridge mountains, extending from the middle fork of the Rapidan River to the Shenandoah, a distance of 12 or 14 miles. It is said the cleft in the mountain is quite wide, and so deep that cattle have fallen into the opening and gone down to unfathomable depths in the bowels of the earth.

The Champion Pedestrians—Six Days' Walking Match.

At one o'clock this morning the great pedestrian match between O'Leary and Campana commenced at Gilmore's Garden, 26th Street and 4th Avenue. There were possibly 2,000 spectators present, all males, of course, and probably nine out of ten the friends of the hitherto successful O'Leary. All necessary arrangements for sleeping, bathing, eating etc., are on the track. O'Leary has the inside track, of which there are two, so that nine laps are required for a mile, while Campana, on the "spot", as he is called, only makes eight. The tracks are of sawdust instead of the usual tanbark. For an hour after they started, the differences between the men were easily seen and strongly marked. O'Leary, with breast and arms flowing, walked steadily but rapidly. Campana, however like the peddlar as he is, trotted or ran incessantly. When your reporter left the scene at 2.30, Campana had done seven miles and a fraction and O'Leary six. The friends of both were in force and they repeatedly cheered as they passed the judge's stand, where the number of miles and laps were marked, as in base ball games.

It is impossible to tell accurately the betting, both have done so well hitherto, even the best posted hesitate to take money. Probably O'Leary is the favorite to a small extent. The garden is nicely decorated, and there is every probability that the interest will increase as the match shortens.

Photographs of the contestants are on sale in the building, and find ready purchasers. There is, altogether, much enthusiasm and the friends of both are evidently in good force.

The Pedestrians—Campana Ahead.

At two o'clock this afternoon, both O'Leary and Campana were on the track and running. O'Leary's heel seems to trouble him, but his friends hope the lameness will wear off. He is now behind his previous record. At four minutes past two Campana had finished 59 miles, and O'Leary 48 miles and a few laps. O'Leary is still the favorite in the betting.

The Indian Bureau Change.

The Tribune's Washington special says: Gen. Miles, colonel of the 5th infantry, writes a senator that he is ardently in favor of putting the tribes under the war department's protection.

The U. S. Supreme Court Business.

In conversation on the business of the supreme court, Chief Justice Waite said this year he thought court would run behind about 40 cases; that at present there are 1,080 odd cases in his docket, undecided, and that the court cannot dispose of more than about 200 a year. Its business is, at present, nearly three years behind. The case before it having been brought in in 1875. This, he said, the cause of the President's recommendations in his message concerning the creation of new circuit Judges. If these should be created, and if the jurisdiction of court should be extended to cases where $10,000 and more might be involved instead of $5,000, the present amount, the chief justice said he thought the pressure on the court would be sufficiently relieved, and that it would be able to conduct its business as rapidly as necessary.

Justice Swain expressed similar views, but thought the litigation rapidly falling off. This diminution, he thought, is due to the fact that contracts broken by the strain of financial panic have been about adjudicated, and the volume of law business has got back to nearly its normal state, although the flood of business now before the court shows no signs of receding at present. If it be true that the sources of the stream are drying up, it will not be long before the court will be able to decide cases about as fast as they come in.

No Money.

The Sun's Washington special says: The Blaine committee has no money and must have a special act before it can get any. The republican senators are delighted with the recent decision that the money on had cannot be used for this purpose.

Fatal Boiler Explosion.

TROY, N. Y., 23.—A boiler explosion, at the Star Forge, killed Alfred St. Charles, the water tender, and Thomas Gentleman, a puddler. Four others were injured.

Death of Congressman Douglas.

WASHINGTON, 23.—Congressman Beverly R. Douglas, of Va., died at the National Hotel in this city this morning after a brief illness, of inflammation of the bowels. The remains was taken to Richmond last night by a committee, consisting of Senator Jones, of Fla., and Representatives Hunton and Goode, of Va., Lofland, of Cala., Carlisle, of Ky., Dunnell, of Minn., Hartzell, of Ills., and Clark, of Iowa.

Destroyed by Fire.

KANSAS CITY, 23.—The building occupied by the Evening Mail and Commercial Indicator was nearly destroyed by fire at four o'clock yesterday morning. Two safes in the mail office were found to have been tampered with, but failing to open them, it is believed the burglars fired the building. The loss is about $8,000.

FOREIGN.

GREAT BRITAIN.

Great Suffering and Distress Among the Laboring Classes.

LONDON, 23.—The returns of the Union Workhouse in the east of London, show wide-spread poverty and distress.

The Shoreditch Workhouse Infirmary is full, also the workhouse itself, and extra room must be provided.

At Bethal Green Workhouse there are 1,059 inmates, and 382 in the infirmary.

In Hackney there are 1,416 indoor poor, chargeable to the Union. District visitors disclose a vast amount of distress, and the funds at their disposal are utterly insufficient. This is especially the case at Popular and Mill Wall, where thousands of dock and other laborers are thrown out of employment.

Spitalfields, Limehouse, South Hackney, Shadwell and Haggerston suffer severely. The tradesmen of the entire eastern districts are crying out about the badness of trade, and even Christmas wares are a heavy drug in the market. So severe is the distress in Haggerston that committees will be formed for the relief of those who will be greatly crippled for want of funds.

Disastrous Snow Storm.

The weather is severe throughout Great Britain, there being a heavy snow fall here and in many parts of the continent. All the railways in the north of Scotland are blocked, and traffic suspended. The trains are snowed up. In some places it is over 12 feet high. It is the heaviest snow fall in 30 years.

Reduction in the Wages of Colliers.

Proposed reduction twelve and a half per cent. in the wages of the colliers of South Yorkshire and North Derbyshire affects 100,000 men. A monster meeting will be held during the holidays, when a scheme for striking en masse at the commencement of the year will be discussed. This course is favored because it is feared the masters are endeavoring to break down resistance in detail. Some pits have already received notices of the reduction.

The Afghan Trouble.

A dispatch, dated Kurum, Dec. 19th, says: It is reported that the Afghan, Wali Mohamed, is near the Shutargardan Pass, with 11 regiments of infantry and four of cavalry from Balkh. He will scarcely venture to cross the pass this season.

It is reported that the Zukkur Khels, in the Khyber Valley, have escaped to the mountains before the arrival of the British. Their towers and dwelling will be destroyed.

A dispatch from Quetta says: The governor of Candahar is determined on resistance. Generals Stewart and Biddalph have examined the positions of the regiments to the Candahar side of Khojuk Pass.

The Ameer's master of the horse, England's greatest enemy, is ill.

Nihilist Demonstrations.

A Vienna dispatch says: The Russian government apprehends Nihilist demonstrations on the 20th instant. A number of arrests were made last week. It is rumored that the temporary closing of the universities is seriously contemplated. These internal troubles are considered as one cause of Russia's conciliatory foreign policy.

The Ameer's Flight.

A dispatch from Jelallabad says: It is reported that the Ameer, Shere Ali, and family are journeying toward Balkh with the retiring Russian mission. Complete anarchy prevails in the country between Jelallabad and Cabul. The Ameer's flight will probably end the fighting.

A Denial by Miss Haldee Heller.

Miss Haldee Heller, sister of the prestidigitateur, prints the following in the Sun:

Will you kindly publish this contradiction of the statement of one William Chapman, made to the San Francisco Call: My half brother, the late Robt. Heller, never played at the Haymarket Theatre; never, in conjunction with this Chapman, invented any system of second sight, and never, any more than myself, heard of Rosa Kilts. The story of this Chapman, a disgraced employee of the late Robt. Heller, is entirely false, from beginning to end.

GERMANY.

Resolutions of Respect to the Late Bayard Taylor.

BERLIN, 23.—The following resolutions were adopted after divine service yesterday at the American chapel:

We, Americans, residing in Berlin, deeply deplore the death of Bayard Taylor, our minister at this court. The distinguished traveler, orator and author, whose deeds and words have made him dear to our whole people, and famous wherever the English language and literature are known, in whose character and repute his countrymen have felt just pride, and at whose elevation to the high station he lately filled all rejoiced.

Most of all, we, who promised ourselves from his presence among us, both officially and privately, greater increased enjoyment and profit in this foreign land, we feel with all who, at home and abroad, are now lamenting his untimely loss, especially with his family, to whom we tender the expression of our respectful and heartfelt sympathy.

The body was deposited in Jerusalem Church, were it will remain some months before taken to America.

Before the adoption of the resolutions, Consul General Treisman, and Secretaries Coleman and Evarts, of the American Legation, made speeches eulogizing the deceased, describing his official career and last moments.

The Students Petition to the Czarewitch.

Following is the petition of the St Petersburg students to the Czarewitch, which the former attempted to present on Dec. 11:

Your Imperial Highness:

The government believes the agitation among us is caused by a few evil-disposed persons. If your highness will recall to mind the fact that this agitation has been extending for some years, and has met with a response from all educational establishments of the country, your Highness will scarcely share this opinion.

The sources of this agitation are to be found in the intolerable position in which the youth of Russia are placed. The students outside of the college walls are subjected to police supervision, while inside they are constantly more and more deprived of their rights. They have had taken from them their right of meeting to consider their own affairs, and they have been forbidden to establish a fund for mutual aid.

In attempting anything of the kind, we are threatened with persecutions in the most odious form by the police administration. Whenever our rights are concerned our dispersion becomes a law, but whenever there is a question of burthens to be borne, we are looked upon as having corporate existence.

We are deprived of the independence necessary to adults, and some of us are treated like children. The increasing obstacles placed in the way of higher education will soon make education the privilege of the rich. These and similar oppressions are the sole cause of the agitation.

We know what awaits the students of Charkoff, and an example of the Kieff agitation is fresh in our memory. Persons should not be punished when the circumstances in which they are placed are at fault.

On the strength of the foregoing, we take the liberty of recommending a milder medication on behalf of our Charkoff fellow scholars and your attention to the present condition of the students.

FRANCE.

Railroad Accident.

PARIS, 23.—A Moscow special says: An express train on the Rostow and Vladikookas Railroad, recently fell off an embankment. Twenty persons were killed, including Gen. Hintze and several functionaries and officers of the army of the Caucasus. Thirty-eight persons were injured.

DENMARK.

Marriage in High Life.

COPENHAGEN, 23.—The Duke of Cumberland and Princess Thyra were married with great pomp at the Chapel of Christianborg Castle on Saturday evening.

BRITISH AMERICA.

Snow Storms.

MONTREAL, 23.—The heaviest snow storm for years occurred last night. Nearly three feet of snow covers the ground. All the trains due this morning are several hours late.

QUEBEC, 23.—About three feet of snow fell last night. Some of the streets are almost impassable.

SHORT AND SHARP.

"Have you cologne?" asked she. "No, ma'am," replied the druggist, "I have no scents at all." She said he didn't look as though he had.

Pittsburg is too religious to allow the horse-cars to run on Sunday, and is also too religious to pay its debts, and has repudiated its bonds.

The fat-seeing housewife is now deep in cogitation as to whether a dressing gown or smoking cap for her husband at Christmas is most likely to produce a sealskin or a silk dress.

Probably the mild-eyed goat is the only animal ever invented that can eat 24 hours a day and then get up an hour before day and devour a flour barrel and seven old fruit cans for a lunch.

Harriet Hosmer has discovered a new motor which "promises to put millions of dollars into the pockets of the fair inventor." Young men now sing, "Let me kiss her for her motor."

"My love," said an adoring husband to his second wife, as they were leaving the church where they had just been married, "My love, how embarrassed you seemed to be. I was afraid you wouldn't get through with the ceremony." "Oh, well, you know, my dear, that is my first marriage. Next time I shall be as chipper as can be," was the soothing reply.

Mrs. M——is beautiful, rich and fashionable, but is unable to read. One day, while calling upon her friend Mrs. B——, she perceived a richly bound copy of the Bible, and smiling, she inquired if she might take it home and read it. Wondering much, Mrs. B—— assented, and one week later the book was returned. "Were you pleased with it?" asked Mrs. B——, dryly. The sweet blue eyes of Mrs. M—— fairly sparkled with pleasure. "Oh, my dear friend, it is a charming novel. They got married at last.
