LOCAL BRIEFS.

Read the fish story in another part of this paper. It differs from most papers of that kind in being true and profitable.

The coal dealers were "under the storm all right, and had a plentiful supply of fuel on hand for the Salt Lake market.

This is the twenty-fourth day of the Legislative session, and no United States Senator elected yet. Surprises before have been noted.

University and college students had to box it through the snow this morning, as street cars were blocked. "Tardy" was the word on record in numerous instances.

Politicians are astreet as today by the remarks of Representatives at the previous day in the effect that the legislator's duty to the State was above his obligations to his party.

Salt Lake valley presented a beautiful picture today, when the storm ceased and the sun shone brightly on the valley and its contours clothed in a beautiful mantle of white.

There is a hen in the western part of town which has been paying considerable attention to a sitting of eggs for three weeks past. Today an owner's girl who has been watching developments stumbled upon the "nest." There are three little chickens out.

Ten Tomen's advance man number two, caused quite a flutter among the 'e's Brooklyn when he passed the town this morning. He was clad in the conventional accepted garb of the stage Bucklebeard. This explains why Tomen's show has not shown with a black, indecent smile.

This evening Dr. Moses of Natchez, Mississippi, will deliver a lecture in the Jewish synagogue, Third South street, this city, commencing at 7:45 o'clock. His subject will be, "The Strength of our Belief." The public is invited. Dr. Moses has the reputation of being a most entertaining speaker, and his subject is one of deep interest.

Snow showers were in their element this morning. Outside the theatre a clique of youngsters were energetically engaged in carving a snow bend seat in the front circle for this evening. Across the street Salt Lofty and several truthies were vying with other in dimensions attempts to capture the record of the boat work.

There will be a general meeting of the county teachers tomorrow morning, at the University building, beginning at 10:30 o'clock. Prof. J. H. Paul will speak on the geography of the British Isles, and Prof. Hoyer Chamberlain of the State Normal school will speak on the subject of nature study. County Superintendent Van Cott expects a large attendance.

Davis county does not come in for much mention in telephonic weather reports, but the snow came down there in great sheets last night and this morning. It was a regular "Mother Goose" fall, when north of the beautiful second to be the chief consideration. There was no severe wind storm blowing, and the farmers and gardeners are likely to the prospect of an abundant sugar supply.

The city teachers will meet at the High School building tomorrow, Saturday, at 10:30 o'clock. Principal William Paul of the Jordan academy will give a paper on "Elimination of Matter from the Common School Curriculum, in the Interest of Elementary Science." Miss Maud Smith of the High School will address the teachers on the subject of Social Settlements Work.

The street cars had a hard time of it this morning, and as a result, those who depend on such conveniences carrying them to work had to either walk or hid the time of the car. The consequence was that many were tardy in getting to their employment, which, of course, there was quite a reasonable excuse for. On all lines "backing snow" was the order, and to make things more interesting, the power was off for some time, while at a switch on Fifth South street, one of the cars left the track and had to wait for assistance from another.

THE SNOW FELL VERY FAST.

Street Railroads in Salt Lake Had Hard Work.

THE STORM IN THE STATE.

Blizzard at Logan Generally the Snowstorm Was Not Severe—Good for the Farmers.

The State had its month of snow on to perfection this morning, and especially in the northern part of the "beautiful" came down in great abundance. With the exception of a portion of Cache Valley, however, there was nothing approaching a blizzard, and even there it was not so severe as to do serious damage. All night long, in this valley, the flakes fell fast, and when morning dawned roads in all directions were made easy by the snow. The steam railways, however, experienced but slight delay, and there was no serious interruption to traffic anywhere. Streetcar lines were the heaviest sufferers, because early morning traffic on them is very heavy, especially in this city. The management of the roads, however, was fairly successful in keeping their lines open.

THE STORM IN TOWN.

The man who so uniformly swept into and out of the city about the hour that coal is being delivered was simply made to express himself when he looked out of the window this morning. He was the individual who lives on the first car track, and who was forced to walk to work the morning before in order to get to his house. One gentleman who lives in the Twenty-first ward, and who generally makes it a matter of getting up and taking the family fire at the advent of the first car, was likewise disgusted. He heard the car, sure enough, and performed his usual morning duties like a devoted saint, and then hitched up his team and drove down to the city. He was not so fortunate as he could be called his better half. It was 4:30 a. m. He had mistaken the conveyance, therefore, for 6:30 car. As he is a lonely married man, he did not express his thoughts.

The city service was thoroughly disorganized this morning, and at 11:15 this afternoon it was the same story. At noon "Newy" was called at the street car offices to see how things were progressing. At the Salt Lake street railway headquarters, in answer to a query, Mr. J. E. Wells handed the reporter a time card that will be posted in the cars, as follows:

Conductor—H. D. Peacock.
Line—Center street.
Number of Bridge—17.

Number of trips	8
"	8
"	8
"	8
"	8
Pass. Passes	0
Tickets	0
Total	"O"

On the reverse side was the following:

"Time as follows: Conductor, D. H. Peacock, from 9:20 a. m. to 11:30 a. m. hours, 2h. Motorman A. L. Watson, 2h.

"The crew had been expending the motive power by "backing" some dirty snow off the tracks, and had arrived at midnight for a solid 14 hours. At noon the Fourth North, Center, Sixth street, below Fifth South, and the Waterfall, Waterfall line, were practically blocked; in the latter line only one car had run for the entire journey.

"Mr. Wells said that he could not remember a storm in the past that had tied the company up so completely.

"Over at the Third Transit the situation was practically duplicated. At the regular meeting of the superintendent's office, Superintendent G. W. Manning was called upon for an elaboration of consolation of the "Sixth." Mr. Manning said: "Well, we had a good time, and we will avoid a crow down in the pen, or, at least, we hope to. It transpired that the North Temple car was tied up in the beautiful derby in the Seventeenth ward.

"The Murray and the most Seventh South cars sat through on their dirt this morning, and the Fifth South cars were tied up in the Twenty-fourth ward late; their good fortune owing to the fact that those tracks be black and the cars plow right into them like the snow clear off the tracks. The first street car that stuck up at T street all night made its way to the Fifth South car, and then it took the street in an hour and a half this morning, but the track was not cleared up so the work stopped. The Fifth South car, East Fourth South was in a similar predicament until just the noon hour. Taken altogether the car crews had a tough time of it generally on the morning shift.

"An exception of how the lines were blocked is found in the experience on the Fifth South car, Fourth West line. Cars ran fairly well until 11 o'clock, though some of them had to stop at the Fifth South car, East Fourth South, and return. The car to start at 11 o'clock from the lower end of the line journey was not made until 1 o'clock, and the boys got up to near West Temple, on Fifth South, all right, but there was a block in the way of the snowplow, which soon became doubled. The car bumped and pushed against it, endeavoring to run it in front of Second South street, but it was not quite the order, and to make the car return to the Fifth West switch, where another car was encountered and the two moved to the down line and made up, leaving Fourteen to Fourth South, where the down car was stuck. After some pushing, the new-comer succeeded in forcing the other car off the track, and so it was free to proceed. Meanwhile, the car had been gathered in from other lines converging at Fifth South and East Temple, and it was 3:30 when the Fifth South car left the Fifth South car, and 4:15 reached the head of East Temple, a minute late. At noon the car, the first car made its appearance, accompanied by passengers, but increasing in number as it proceeded. The "Fifth" was not quite so fortunate, for the car had gone into working order, and the tracks were cleared in good shape. Every time it stopped to take the street car men were doing their best, but home found little or no occasion for complaint, as the Fifth South tracks were good when their opposite trip was accomplished.

CONDITION OF THE SHEEP.

Storm in Western Wyoming Not So Severe as to Hurt Them.

Plenty of Wind to Fill Up Cuts on Railways, but No Specially Heavy Snow to Kill Sheep.

A message has been received from western Wyoming, dated yesterday, stating the condition of the flocks of sheep there. Many of these flocks are owned by Utah men, although they range and taxes are paid on them in Wyoming. From the accounts of the storm it was feared that it would be very severe on the sheep; it was feared that heavy losses would ensue as a result of the blizzard. The message received, however, allays fears on one subject. It says that on the ranges where the sheep are there has not been an excessive amount of snow fall yesterday, Thursday, that the wind has been very heavy, but the sheep are well protected, and there is no present danger of serious loss.

The storm in the situation in western Wyoming, where Utah shepherders have their chief interests. Farther north, or east, however, the storms seem to have been much more severe, and heavy damage may result.
