D. B. HILL AROUSED.

He Defends Secretary Carlisle against Insinuations

AND MAKES A DRAMATIC SPEECH

The Resolution, He Says, Embraces Silly, Foolish and Cowardly Propositions.

WASHINGTON, April 16.—When the resolution for an investigation of recent bond issues was taken up in the Senate today, Hill made a sensational and dramatic speech in opposition. The New York senator defended Secretary Carlisle and his administration of the treasury against [illegible] insinuations of irregularity, and showed the prevalence of charges of this character by presenting and reading in full the charges by Senator Chandler against the friends of McKinley, that a levy of money was being made on protected industries in behalf of Mr. McKinley's candidacy for the presidency. As a further evidence of the prevalence of these charges, Hill spoke of the sugar investigation, where he said one senator, referring to Quay, had frankly admitted that he had bought sugar stock and had a right to buy it, and today that senator was a favorite son of the leading Republican state as a candidate for the presidency.

Hill said the farmers of the Senate—the senators from Kansas (Peffer), from Nebraska (Allen), from South Carolina (Tillman)—these farmers [illegible] that the farmers denied the authority to issue bonds. He insisted that the Senate could not go into the private affairs of the bond bidders, and the public transactions were already known.

"What senator dare rise in his place," asked Hill, "and utter the slander that the secretary of the treasury or some of his subordinates have received some compensation, some reward? There is no answer. There is a mean, contemptible insinuation, not a direct charge. Because senators differ with the secretary of the treasury, and I differ with him at times, must they drag in an insinuation of dishonorable dealing against the secretary? What if I offered a resolution to investigate the senator from Kansas?"

"I would say go ahead," interposed Peffer.

Hill said such a resolution would carry an insinuation against the Kansas senator. The courts were open if any wrong had been done on a bond issue.

Allen interrupted, remarking that this subject seemed to make Hill "as mad as a [illegible] in August." He said the New York senator knew perfectly well that a suit at law against the secretary of the treasury was not permissible under the laws.

"On the contrary, I will assert and show," claimed Hill, "that this resolution is in aid of a speculative lawsuit, that the suit was instituted in the courts here on the very day when it was expected this debate was to begin in the Senate."

Hill went on to ask why the authors of this resolution, if they really believed their insinuations, did not propose impeachment. Instead of an investigation, the secretary of the treasury should have a vote of thanks from the senators for sustaining the credit of the government.

Stewart interrupted frequently, at last asking: "Is the administration opposed to this investigation?"

"I am not authorized to speak for the administration," replied Hill in ringing tones. "I oppose these resolutions because they embrace silly, foolish, unworthy propositions. I would oppose it whether a Republican or a Democratic secretary was involved."

Before he got through, Hill went on, he would examine other low, contemptible investigations and charges made against other secretaries of the treasury, and which had fallen to the ground. He would speak of the course of men who had accused the then secretary of the treasury, now sitting there (pointing to Mr. Sherman) which accusations, in the light of history, were weak and thin and dissipated.

Hill arraigned the Populist senators in scathing terms. He first described them as the "tailors of Tooley street," who got together and solemnly said: "We, the people of England." He characterized through "[illegible]" from the old parties who had "[illegible] their grievances." They had offered their votes for sale, or rather for exchange, on the tariff question when it came here. They are men of no fixed ideas, said he. They are the advocates of disorder and scandal. The Populist party thrives on scandal. Their main purpose is to throw mud at the Democratic and Republican parties, "and the time has come," declared Mr. Hill, "when the old parties to make common cause against these men."

The senator caused great amusement by reading a letter he had received from Mississippi asking him to have the Senate investigate the loss of a silver dollar sent in the mail. The writer said, in the course of the letter: "I am in favor of you for President in 1900." As Mr. Hill read this there was a ripple of applause in the galleries, and the senator added jocularly, "that man has common sense." The letter proceeded: "But I am opposed to the election of Grover Cleveland in 1900," and there was another ripple in the galleries.

At this point Hill exploded a distinct sensation. He said the prevalence of charges of irregularities and wrong was shown by the recent public allegations of Senator Chandler, that the friends of Mr. McKinley were conducting "a boodle campaign." Hill said he had nothing to say against McKinley. He admired him for his courage. He says he is a candidate, instead of saying he is in the hands of friends."

Hill's experience was, he said, that a man who started "in the hands of his friends" wound up "in the hands of the enemy."

"I had supposed McKinley was making an honest canvass," proceeded Hill, "until I read the Chandler statement." The Chandler charges were sent to the desk and read in full.

Chandler sat on the Republican side smiling as the reading proceeded. After the reading had concluded, Hill went on. No answer had been submitted to the serious accusations of Chandler. Reflections on his motives were no answer to the charges. Why, asked Hill, was there not an investigation?

"Here are charges of a corrupt use of money to buy up a presidential nomination," exclaimed Hill. "Here are charges of a levy on the protected interests to secure a platform in accordance with their desires. But no senator, not even the senator from Kansas, asks for an investigation. Here is an offense against the franchise, a stab at our institutions, when it is charged that $[illegible] has been raised to secure the nomination for the Presidency, and yet no investigation is proposed. Let the Chandler charges be investigated, too. Let us do it now, before the heat of this political campaign comes on."

Hill next passed to the sugar investigation and ridiculed its results. One Senator had the courage to say to the investigation committee, yes, he had dealt in sugar.

"Did it hurt him?" asked Hill. "No, today he is the candidate and favorite son of the leading Republican state in the Union for the Presidency, with a host of friends and supporters."

After ridiculing the fruitless investigation Hill, at 5 o'clock, said he would yield, expecting to go on tomorrow.

The Senate, at 5:15, went into executive session and then adjourned.

Bacilli Killed by X-rays.

CHICAGO, April 16.—Prof. H. P. Pratt and Prof. Hugh Wightman announce to the world that diphtheria and typhoid bacilli are absolutely killed by the Roentgen rays. This statement is made without reserve. The decision was reached this evening in the laboratory, when the last of the germs which had been exposed to the rays failed to show signs of life under the glass—the deadly bacilli remaining idle and inactive in the midst of the best and most tempting imitation of human tissue.

Four new colonies of epidemic breeders, labled as cholera, tuberculosis, hog cholera and diphtheria, were located in tubes filled with nutriment. Prof. Pratt turned the current into the great tube and the ray was thrown into the group of bacilli. The magic agency was allowed to work two minutes. The two physicians are risking their professional reputation by the prophecy that not one of the four groups will ever be able to recover.

English Budget Statement.

LONDON, April 16.—In the House of Commons today the chancellor of the exchequer, Sir Michael Hicks-Beach, made the budget statement. He said that the surplus for 1895-96 was £4,210,000, and he estimated the expenditures for the current year at £100,047,000.

The chancellor of the exchequer said that this had been a wonderful year and one of unexampled revenue, in spite of the fact that the expenditure had been the largest since the great war. The surplus was the largest ever known, and a larger sum was devoted to the reduction of the national debt than ever known. The condition of the working classes, he continued, judging from the consumption of tea, tobacco and sugar, had materially improved, and it was a remarkable fact that while the decrease in exports and imports for the first six months amounted to 27,[illegible] the increase for the second half year amounted to $[illegible].

Yes, Sir Michael Hicks-Beach further remarked, was driving coffee out of the market, and British and Irish spirits were entirely displacing foreign spirits.

THE NICARAGUA REBELLION.

A Message from the Insurgents to U. S. Minister Baker.

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, via Galveston, April 16.—A telegram has just arrived here from Nagarote, where President Zelaya now is, which says a messenger from the rebels is now on his way to this city bearing a message from the leaders of the revolt to the United States minister, Lewis Baker. It is supposed here that they want Mr. Baker to intervene and arrange peace between the contestants.

The only terms Zelaya has up to this time been willing to consider are unconditional surrender on the part of the armed forces and the giving up for trial of the leaders.

The progress of events recently has been steadily against the rebel cause. The government troops have entered upon their delayed co-operation with their Honduras allies, and for some days past the two forces by a combined movement have slowly but surely been surrounding the rebels at Momotombo, La Paz, Chinandega and other points. The government completed the circle when they took Caña Mocha, Caña [illegible] was attacked by the rebels, but they were repulsed with heavy losses.

Gen. Paiz of the government force has taken Los Limos from the rebels, several hundred of them being taken. President Zelaya is at Nagarote directing the campaign of the government forces.

A CUBAN BATTLE.

The Government Troops Retreated in Good Order.

HAVANA, April 16.—Further details of the fighting between the Alfonso XIII battalion and the insurgents, under Maceo, show that the Spanish gunboat Alerta, which was apparently sent to the assistance of the troops, found the latter had been compelled to retreat before an overwhelming force of 5,000 insurgents. Although the latter outnumbered the men of the Alfonso XIII battalion by over 10 to 1, and in spite of the fact that the soldiers were led in pursuing the retreating vanguard of the enemy into a position which almost enabled the insurgents to surround them from neighboring heights, the Spanish retreated in good order, fighting stubbornly as they did so. During the retreat the government troops inflicted heavy loss upon Maceo's forces and succeeded in maintaining a correct formation until, after a seven hours' fight, the harbor of San Claudio was reached and the troops barricaded themselves in the best positions possible and determined to fight to the last. During this long and harassing retreat the Alfonso XIII battalion only lost one officer and four men killed and had only fifteen wounded. The fire of the troops was well directed and the movement of the battalion so efficient that the 5,000 Cubans were unable to achieve any advantage further than compelling the greatly over-matched body of Spanish infantry to retreat to good order.

The Alerta heard the firing while cruising off the coast and headed for San Claudio, where the warship found the Alfonso XIII hastily barricaded in houses, warehouses, etc. When the gunboat got within range of the insurgents, who were swarming in large numbers over the hills in the vicinity of San Claudio, a hot fire from her guns and riflemen was opened on the enemy's ranks, causing much disorder. Then, when the troops, under General Inclan, arrived and opened fire on the insurgents, the latter beat a hasty retreat over the hills.

The Havana police have detained the Protestant bishop Alberto Jesus Diaz, and his brother, Alfredo Vinton Diaz. These two gentlemen are naturalized American citizens. The police report that they found in their possession certain insurgent documents.

The insurgent leader, Elias Alvarez, has been shot in Pinar del Rio for being an incendiary. A square was formed by a detachment of the Reina battalion for executing the condemned man. He fell at the first fire, but was not killed, and it was necessary to fire three more shots, which are called mercy shots, before the poor wretch was dead. He died bravely.

A. P. A. Plot to Defeat McKinley.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., April 16.—It developed here tonight that there is a well organized plot to defeat McKinley instructions in the Republican convention here on April 29th. The circular sent out by the advisory committee of the A. P. A. denounces McKinley on the grounds that he made appointments of Roman Catholics was read in A. P. A. lodges in this city tonight, and resolutions were adopted denouncing McKinley. A. P. A. delegates to the state convention instructed for McKinley will be asked to violate their instructions. It is stated that Hon. J. Otis Humphrey, who is a warm personal friend of Senator Cullom, and who led the fight in the county convention here for Cullom, but who is a delegate to the national convention from this district, and who is instructed for McKinley, joined the A. P. A. tonight and will lead the fight for Lincoln, the A. P. A. candidate for President.

Hot Wave in the East.

WASHINGTON, April 16.—This is the fourth day over New England and the middle Atlantic states, and the fifth day over the central valleys and the lake regions, of the prevalence of very warm weather for the season, the temperatures over the greater portions of these regions ranging over twenty degrees above the normal, and in New England, the middle Atlantic states and the lake regions on the 15th and 16th exceeding any previous record by the weather bureau during the second decade in April.

Killed Himself With Taxes.

CHICAGO, April 16.—Charles Vieth, a baker, suffocated himself with molasses yesterday. He was very fond of the stuff, and in order to get enough he lay flat on his back on the floor, so that when he opened the slip on the barrel, the syrup would flow into his mouth. Then he opened his faucet and he [illegible] was literally drowned by the syrup. He was found dead with his mouth open and the molasses pouring into it. He was known as a glutton, but was not a [illegible] mentally, because of an injury on the head, sustained by an accident some time since.

Out-Doing the English.

JOHN BULL USED TO BE THE GREAT, TYPICAL GLOBE TROTTER, NOW IT IS UNCLE SAM.

WHY WE GO TO EUROPE.

Americans are undoubtedly the greatest travelers in the world. The great steamship lines between Europe and America were never so well patronized as now. They are all prosperous, and during "the season" every ship is crowded with passengers. During the summer of 1895 seventy-five thousand Americans went to Europe. It is quite the thing to take this trip as a rest. The absolute rest of an ocean voyage, and perhaps the curative [illegible] of the system by a vigorous case of seasickness, is exactly what many people need. We are hard workers over here, both men and women. We work hard even at our play. We are in a great hurry, and there are so many things happening that we want to see in that we are hustled all day and most of the night. If we would only discover some way of living on about three hours' sleep per day, or without any sleep at all, we would undoubtedly do it. Men work hard in business. Women work just as hard at home. Perhaps the rich and the well-to-do work as hard as the poor. The well-to-do work hard to keep up an appearance of richness and the social duties of the rich are as hard as any other work. A woman has plenty to do to wear herself out. The very fact that she is a woman makes constant work, constant nervous strain, loss of sleep and fatigue tell on her in a serious way. Further than that, women are sensitive. It takes them a long time to be sick in bed. It takes a pretty strong case of sickness to put a woman to bed. She will keep moving around on her feet for days after a man would be laid out on his back. Perhaps she bears sickness better than a man does because she is used to it. She puts up with it entirely too long for her own good. Her husband may try to get her to give up her work and worry and take a rest, but often the only way he can do it is to send her to Europe. The absolute rest, and the invigorating sea air bring back health and color. The trip is a good thing. There is no doubt in the world of that. The trouble is that seventy-thousand people are only one-thousandth part of the total population of the United States, and where one goes to Europe, one thousand stay at home—not because they like it, but because they have to. These must find a substitute for the European trip, and even among the seventy-thousand who may take the trip, there are many thousands who really need something else—something more.

If some one, by the use of subtle alchemy could condense the benefits of an ocean voyage, and put them in a bottle for general use, a great fortune would await him. Practically this very thing has been done, and a fortune has been built from it. The ocean voyage soothes the nerves, purifies the blood, helps the digestion, and gives sound, healthful sleep. These are the things essential to health. A lack of these things is the cause of all disease. No matter how the trouble shows itself, figure it back to the start and you will find it among these causes. No matter what the disease is called, find a cure for the cause of it and the trouble ceases.

That is the best theory that can be followed in taking medicine. It is a simple theory and physicians are everywhere adopting it more and more. Every year some symptom which has been considered a separate disease is discovered to be the mere indication of something different. Physicians find that they have been treating symptoms, instead of treating the real disease. They find that they have been hacking at the branches, instead of killing the roots.

Only comparatively few medicines are needed to cure all diseases that can be cured. Every physician has a limited list of medicines which he uses in almost all cases. Many physicians have found that they need use for only a dozen different drugs, and that with these, and their various combinations, they could treat any disease that presented itself with a fair chance of success,—with as much chance of success as if they had one-hundred drugs, instead of twelve. Ask any physician you like, and he will name instantly half a dozen drugs that he will say that he could not possibly get along without. He uses these same drugs hundreds of times during the year, and no these half dozen drugs, all physicians will agree. It is, therefore, not so very strange that one single preparation may be—and has been—remarkably successful in the cure of almost any known disease. Ninety-nine cases of sickness out of one hundred are traceable to the same cause, and the same sort of treatment will cure in every case.

People who are losing flesh, who are becoming nervous, irritable, thin and weak, are on the direct road to consumption and other wasting diseases. A strong, healthy body, and pure, rich blood, and perfect digestion are certain safeguards against diseases. When weakness and emaciation comes the continuity of tissue, the body is ready to give way to any germ that may attack it. It is not strong enough to ward off the assault. Whatever will make the digestion strong, the assimilation and nutrition perfect, the blood pure and rich, the nerves steady, will in the same degree drive out disease. This is what the "Golden Medical Discovery" of Dr. Pierce does. It will cure practically all diseases and will be a positive remedy for ninety-eight per cent. of all cases of that dread disease, consumption. It would seem that all roads lead to consumption—it would seem that all diseases and all symptoms lean to the production of this one disease, and one-sixth of all the deaths that occur are caused by consumption. More people die of consumption than are killed in wars—more people die of consumption than of cholera, or yellow fever, or any other dreaded epidemic. And consumption can be cured.

It is perfectly reasonable and logical and natural that a remedy that will cure consumption will cure the things that lead to consumption. Over thirty years ago, Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., then, as now, chief consulting physician of the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, of Buffalo, discovered and placed before the public what he justly styled the "Golden Medical Discovery." It has been proven that it will cure ninety-eight per cent. of all cases of consumption in which it is taken properly. That statement necessarily means that it will cure a very large percentage of cases of all other ills. Thousands upon thousands of people have been voluntarily testifying that in the result they have received from this wonderful medicine. It puts the benefits of an ocean voyage within the reach of every man and woman. It does the same thing as the ocean voyage does, and it does it quicker. It begins where the ocean voyage would end. It starts where the ocean voyage would be absolutely useless. Because of its use, hundreds of people are alive and well and happy today who, before they used it, had been told that they could not live. It is only natural that doctors should disapprove of it. They say that people should not take a secret preparation, because they do not know what it contains and yet they write prescriptions and people have them filled at drug stores, and not one in ten thousand know what the prescription contains. It is just as much a secret preparation as anything that is put up in a bottle, with a label on it. As a matter of fact, it makes not the slightest difference in the world what the medicine is made of if it cures. Something that will effect a theoretical cure, and not an actual cure is utterly worthless. If the "Golden Medical Discovery" were merely pure water, and cured, it would be worth all that any one could pay for it. When you buy Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, you are buying health. Health is the real thing you are buying. That is what you are paying for; that is what you hope to receive for your money; and that is what you will receive.

This great remedy may be had from any druggist. The man who tries to sell you something which he says is "just as good," may be honest in other things, but he is not honest in this. He offers you something else because he makes a greater profit on that something else—that is the only reason he can have. There is no reason why he should not keep the "Golden Medical Discovery." He can get it just as easily, and just as easily as any other drug. As it is your health and not his profit that you are looking for, you will be wise if you insist on having what you ask for.

"Consumption is hereditary in my wife's family; some have already died with the disease. My wife has a sister, Mrs. E. A. Cleary, who was taken with consumption. She used your 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and to the surprise of her many friends, she got well. My wife has also had hemorrhages from the lungs, and her sister insisted on her using the 'Golden Medical Discovery.' I consented to her using it, and it relieved her. She has had no symptoms of consumption for the past six years. People having this disease can take no better remedy. Yours very truly, W. C. Rogers, M. D., Stamps, La Fayette Co., Arkansas."

Mr. Anton Kratz, of Crawford, Dawes Co., Neb., has weak lungs, cough and catarrh, with profuse expectoration, difficult breathing, lasting from one to eight hours. He writes: "I took sick and went to the doctors. They gave me medicine, but it did not help me so I got two or three bottles of 'Golden Medical Discovery' and some 'Pellets.' After a while I got better, until three winters ago I got sick again so I could not do anything, and I wrote to you giving my symptoms on one of your question blanks, and asked you about my case. You told me to take your 'Golden Medical Discovery.' I took four bottles and got well and have been well ever since."

"I was not able to do my work for nearly two years," writes Mrs. B. F. [illegible], of [illegible], [illegible] Co., Mo., "and I tried four different doctors and grew worse all the time. Then I began on your medicine and took twelve bottles of 'Golden Medical Discovery' and one of 'Favorite Prescription,' and am able to do my work and feel as well as I have felt in years. Physicians called my disease dyspepsia and consumption."

"I was troubled with chronic indigestion and constipation for ten or twelve years," writes J. S. Ball, Esq., of Lamonta, Van Buren County, Ia. "I was constantly taking physics, and the last thing I did before retiring was to take a pill. About three or four times a year I had a bilious attack. In the Fall of '93, I had a very severe attack of bilious fever, and the physicians told me I must either travel in the mountains or go to Europe, but as I was a poor man I could not afford to go.

"A neighbor advised me to write to Dr. Pierce and get his advice. I soon got an answer from him as to the treatment of my case, together with instructions in rules for diet, with a recommendation to take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. I had but little faith in it but by the time I had taken one bottle I was able to be out of bed and to go around and I soon began to mend. After taking a few bottles I was cured and have not been troubled with biliousness since that time.

"I write this for the benefit of sufferers from stomach or bowel troubles, and would urge them to give 'Golden Medical Discovery' a fair test. Don't condemn it without trial."

"Please find enclosed herewith 31 one-cent stamps, for which please send a copy of Dr. Pierce's Medical Adviser in cloth covers.

"I have been taking Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery for the blood and think it is the best blood-purifier in existence. James Trent, Clarendon, Donley Co., Texas."

One of the most interesting and thoroughly books ever published is Dr. Pierce's free book "The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser," a large volume of one thousand and eight pages with over three hundred illustrations and colored plates. It is a complete medical library in one volume, giving the latest information on the human body in health and disease, discussing physiology, [illegible] subjects in perfectly plain and [illegible] language and giving many valuable receipts and prescriptions for home treatment of simple diseases. More than half a million copies were sold at $1.50 each, [illegible] the profit on which ——— enables Dr. Pierce to [illegible] distribute a [illegible] edition absolutely free ——— to any one who will cut out this notice and send it with twenty-one one-cent stamps to pay the cost of mailing only, to the World's Dispensary Medical Association, at Buffalo, N. Y., of which he is President. If you want a French cloth, embossed and beautifully stamped binding, send ten cents extra (thirty-one cents in all) to defray the expense of this handsomer and more durable cover.
