OBITUARY.

HEBER C. KIMBALL.

FILLMORE CITY, Utah, May 24, 1897.—Died at Kanosh, Millard county, at 1:30 a.m., May 20, 1897, Heber C., the son of the late A. A. and his wife, Mary Eliza Kimball; born November 12, 1879. This young man contracted a cold which produced a gathering upon his neck resulting in general debility, but owing to his cheerful and uncomplaining disposition, it was thought that nature would right itself and all would go well. But the sudden passing away as in a sleep, created a profound sensation, and sorrow especially among the young people of the ward.

"Hebe," as he was affectionately called, was a splendid specimen of youth, upon whom much promise centered. Witty, and wise in jovial companionship, without the appetite for strong drink or tobacco, which so frequently mar the pleasant rounds of youthful associations, he naturally became a leader and a lover among his immediate associates. His late grandmother thought that Heber could do no wrong, and being the oldest boy at home the family respected his counsels, and his call to a higher work has bent their loving hopes down in the dust.

The funeral service took place on Saturday, the 22nd instant, presided over by Bishop Jesse Hopkinson, who is in quite delicate health and was a comforting manifestation of the love and esteem in which the deceased was held. The speakers were Elder James M. Gardner, George Crane and Jos. D. Smith of Fillmore. Patriarch Elias Blackburn, in whose administrations Heber had much faith, had been telegraphed for and arrived in time to dedicate the grave, to which the body was borne by eight young men as pall-bearers, followed by twelve young ladies dressed in white with black sashes, then followed twelve young men, companions of similar ages, the family mourners and a long cortege of the general public.

While viewing in procession the youthful white-clad marble corpse, an aged hand gripped my own and drew me aside and pointing to the mortal clay, said: "I saw the Prophet Joseph Smith lay in his coffin looking just like that," and as I again looked at the form, six feet one inch tall, and caught the graceful contour of that whitened face, a response was quickened in my own mind, to the sorrowful memory of that in Brother Thomas Charlesworth's. G. C.

JAMES WOODS.

James Woods departed this life May 4, 1897, at his home in Erda, Tooele county, very suddenly, having worked in his garden all morning, came in at noon, ate his dinner, immediately after complained of a pain in the direction of the heart, and after suffering for two hours and a half quietly passed away. Funeral services were held in the Tooele meeting house on May 8th. Consoling remarks were offered by President H. S. Gowans, Bishop Bates and others of his immediate acquaintance, all testifying to his integrity to the truth and willingness to do whatever was required of him. He was the son of James and Harriet Woods; was born at Chobham Surrey, England, September 13, 1830; was baptized into the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints when quite a boy; afterwards moved to London, where he resided some two and a half years and became deeply interested in the spread of the Gospel; emigrated to Utah in 1859 in company with his sister, the late Mrs. C. E. Dye. He first obtained employment in Salt Lake City with the late Elder William C. Staines, taking charge of his business while he was engaged filling a mission in England. In 1862 he was one of a company of twenty-five sent, at the request of the government, under Gen. Robert T. Burton, to Laramie, to protect the mail service against Indian depredations. In 1864 he made a home in the Ninth ward, Salt Lake City, where he resided until 1883, when he moved to his farm home in Erda, Tooele county, which he beautified by his labor and direction. He was clerk of the ward where he lived, and one of the presidents of the Forty-third quorum of Seventy. At a meeting held by the members of his quorum the Sunday previous to his death, he was chosen as one suitable to go on a mission. In 1890 he was called and set apart as Sunday school superintendent of Erda ward, the duties of which he took the greatest of pleasure in performing up to the time of his death; he was also superintendent of the religion class of the ward. His remains were followed to the graveyard by a large concourse of friends, and by the Sunday school in a body. He leaves a large family and a great many friends who mourn the loss of his society.—[Com.

DAVID CANFIELD.

Died at Hamblin, Utah, May 8, 1897, David Canfield. He was born May 8, 1812, in Gorham, Ontario county, New York. He joined the Church in Toronto, Canada, and was baptized in 1843 by Parley P. Pratt. Went to Nauvoo in 1845 and helped to finish up the Temple as far as it was completed. Came to Utah in 1850; settled in Provo; was in the Indian war there; was called on the Dixie mission in 1861, and first settled at St. George; was a willing worker and a true Latter-day Saint. He was the father of ten children; had forty-two grandchildren and one great-grandchild. His last illness of four weeks was severe, but he bore his suffering patiently, and has gone to rest leaving a record of a man who never failed to respond to the call of God's servants, and who was ever true to the trust reposed in him. May his children do as well. —[Com.

ALANSON WILLIAMS SOPER.

Died at Oceanside, Long Island, N. Y., May 12, 1897, Alanson Williams Soper in his 32th year, of consumption. He was the son of William H. Soper and Mary Eliza Brower, both of old and well-known Long Island families. The funeral services were held at the house of the deceased, May 16th, and conducted by Elders Watts, Burton and Hanks, from the Brooklyn office. About two hundred relatives and friends assembled.

Last April he became a member of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints and his closing days were brightened by the expectation of a joyful resurrection. He leaves a most estimable wife and three young children.

IMPROVED BOOKKEEPING

Mr. E. T. Mower, a practical, expert accountant and teacher of ten years' experience, and author of "Mower's System of Penmanship," has recently invented a very short system of bookkeeping. It is adapted to all lines of business, including banking, and is indorsed by all leading educators and business men. The leading features are: A great saving in time and expense of learning; bookkeeping done in half the time required by the old, long method; as far in advance of all other systems as the electric light is of the candle. No extra charge for penmanship. Evening and day classes are now being organized. Private lessons if desired. Special low rates for public school and college pupils during vacation. As the size of classes will be limited, application should be made at once. For information call or write.

Horses Kick

in self-defense. It is their most vigorous form of protest against the abuse of split Nails that are driven into their feet to hold on their shoes. Blacksmiths often use such nails in ignorance of the danger that is liable to follow.

This is what happens: One part comes out where it should be clinching, the other goes into the tender foot. Such nails are the result of the Cold-Rolled and by which the fibres of metal are separated and can often be pried apart with the finger-nail. This kind of a nail can be easily distinguished by the rough edge along the sides near the point.

Putnam Nails

are exclusively Hot-Forged and Hammer-Pointed, precisely like the old-fashioned hand-made nail. This process welds all particles of iron closely together into a compact, firm nail that cannot Split, Sliver or Break and is Absolutely Safe.

Examine the nails in your smith's shop. [illegible]
