CATARRH

Catarrh of the Nasal Cavities, Acute, Chronic, and Ulcerative, Hay Fever, or Rose Catarrh, Catarrh of the Eye and Ear, and Catarrh of the Throat.

SUCCESSFULLY TREATED WITH

SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE.

CATARRH is a disease of the mucous membranes. Temperaments and constitutions vary in severity in individual cases. Catarrh may arise from a cold or a succession of colds, quick sudden changes of temperature, wearing wet clothing, or exposure to inclement weather, and becoming thoroughly chilled when the digestive organs are in a morbid or inactive condition, and the strength and vital forces exhausted. The disease may arise from a constitutional condition of the blood, from Scarlet Fever, Measles, and Diphtheria, in which cases the eye and ear are generally involved and discharge quantities of mucus, which, if not arrested in time, the distinctive feature in all catarrhal cases from whatever cause they arise, may be thin and watery, and so acid as to cause inflammation and excoriation of the skin with which they come in contact, or thick and yellowish, emitting a foul odor, or clear and white like the white of an egg. The nose may be an entire lack of sensibility, the surfaces being dry and feverish, the face, fronts and upper part of the head feeling heavy, and the brain being encircled by a tight, unyielding band. This latter phase is called Dry Catarrh. The free secretory discharges of catarrh are changed by the cold weather, thickened, rendering breathing through the nose difficult or impossible, and the sufferer finds it necessary to breathe through the mouth, the air penetrating cold and to pass directly to the bronchial tubes and lungs. The moist catarrh, or thickened secretory discharge, causes a tickling and excoriation to throat and nose, but when the membrane is dry and fevered, and secretion ceases, the pain from the nose and throat, the mucous membrane hard and forms into scales, incrustations, and hard crusts, which adhere firmly to the nose, ear, and throat as to require very persistent efforts to dislodge them. The eye in sympathy becomes inflamed, red, weak, and watery, or in the opposite phase the eye is dry, and the secretion of the lachrymal gland is secreted in more or less quantity. The ear also participates in the general disturbance. The secretion of mucus, besides being vitiated by the most virulent acrid poison, clinging frequently in tenacious masses, gives rise to a hoarse cough. The throat, bronchial tubes, and lungs are in many cases affected by catarrh, and when prostration of the nervous system is superadded, such affections become alarming.

A brief survey of this mysterious disease warns all who are afflicted with its malignant presence to prepare for its treatment before it becomes chronic. The advantages offered by SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE are confidently believed to be not found in no other remedy. Every step in its preparation, every line in the direction, mark it as a scientific remedy, calculated to meet every phase of the disease. The numerous testimonials from the best people in the United States attest the extent in which it is held by those who have been freed from the most destructive and dangerous disease with which mankind is to-day afflicted.

EVENING NEWS.

Correspondence.

The Channel Islands.

No. 1 OXFORD ROAD, Saint Helier's, Jersey, October 1st, 1878.

Editors Deseret News:

After one year and three months' travel on the Channel Islands, I desire to give you an outline of my work before I go home. I expect to start from Liverpool the 19th of this month. During my stay I presented the cause of the gospel to the people of Jersey, Geurnesy, Sark and Granville in France, all of whom received me with much kindness and respect.

I first presented to Sir W. R. S. Norpott, Governor of Jersey, the Book of Mormon and other Church books, with the DESERET NEWS and Millennial Star. The Governor received me with kindness. Then the 12 Jurats began to investigate the law of the Lord; this gave me an opportunity to be introduced to the 12 bailiffs, and sentlemen and ventiniers in the Governor's chateau. I have been many times a guest in the government house, but all their business is done in the French language. The French librarian has taken into his library, the Book of Mormon and five of the Voice of Warning in the French language. He lends them out for six sous a week, that is 12 cents. Through the kindness of Carmelites, I was admitted into the monastery to learn a little French.

I received some views of Utah, streets in Salt Lake City, the Tabernacle, Temple President Young's houses, taken by Bro. Savage. Those views, in the hands of a man of wisdom, will do much good. The gospel has been taught from the Governor's sanctum to the cottage of the fisherman. The result is, in the wisdom of God, four have been added to the Church. But whatever the result of the future will be, I will have this consolation, I have done to the best of my limited ability. The spirit of the Lord is striving with the people.

Your brother in the gospel,
JOHN MCCARTHY.

Annual Mountain Trip of Students of the B. Y. Academy.

Editors Deseret News:

Under the direction of the Principal, a committee of five had been appointed who took charge of our party, consisting of about 20 young people, who were going for a day's trip in the mountains. About six o'clock on Saturday morning, we left the town, and soon reached the mouth of the cañon. Here we rested a few minutes, while asking the blessing of God to rest upon us through the day.

Going up Rock Cañon, we could not refrain from expressions of pleasure and delight at the beautiful scenery surrounding us. About 8 o'clock the sun bade us good morning, and a few moments after, we camped for breakfast. All were quite ready to do justice to the repast spread before us. This over, after much laughter, and some singing, we commenced the ascent of the mountain proper. Oh! the "aguilstic" feelings of many of the company as one almost perpendicular hill rose after another. Some of our party ran off and became as lost. One lady completely gave out, and so the prancing steed which "bore our burden (i. e. grub) up the hill," was pulgust without much difficulty and upon the lady, and seated herself, with a flourish of arms on the top of the pack, like some Indian. The [illegible] miles, and with joy we see at last our destination. A level smooth plateau, with plenty of trees and a spring of clear sparkling water, looked the embodiment of rest to our weary eyes. Soon, now, all is bustle and excitement. Boxes are unpacked, fires made, coffee put on the blaze, and our rural meal is ready. Gentlemen exhibited great dexterity in using their fingers in place of forks, and ladies quite forgot the existence of table-etiquette. Suddenly, one of the young gentlemen gave a fiendish yell, and dashed up, executing a highland fling with variations. "What's the matter?" called out a half-a-dozen voices. As soon as the young lady who sat next our dancer could get her breath, for laughing, she held up an empty tin cup, the contents of which had been boiling hot coffee, and, by a slight mistake had meandered all over the gentlemen's pantaloons in search of a resting place.

Order was once more restored and the meal proceeded quietly. After dinner we proposed to transform ourselves into gipsies pro tem. and instituted a game of "pomp." The rude, merry games of our childhood were entered into with zest, and "blind man's buff" with "steal sticks" varied our fun. Tired out, we flung ourselves, at last, down on the sward and formed picturesque groups around the blazing fire. Mountains, trees and rocks soon re-echo our song of "Beautiful Zion." Song after song followed. And now, tired of resting and thirsting for glory, the boys proposed jumping over our high-built camp fire. One after another sailed safely over, and at last the "length-iest" funniest subject essayed the leap. With a regular clown's jump he simply threw one limb over the fire, swinging around facing the fire. Quickly drawing back and pulling a wry face, we beheld each individual hair in eyebrow, eyelash and cranium bristling with the rich hue of the flame. Inspired by the crackling, leaping blaze, we sprang up and catching hands, unite in one free, lively dance around the gleaming pile; some crooning Indian songs, and some singing popular melodies, we gaily circle round and round, until, at last, the call of "time to go," brings to our minds the rapid passage of time.

Preparations are hastily made, and we commence our steep descent. Jest and laughter make the time fly, and when about half way down the cañon, the lovely lake is visible between the cliffs in ahead. Around us rise in majesty and sublime quiet the towers of nature. Hundreds of feet below lie in peaceful beauty the blue waters of Utah Lake. The setting sun throws a mellow light on crags and peaks, and makes a scene too grand for human tongue to describe. But twilight warned us to hasten on, the innumerable stumbles, trips and slidings-down of our journey down the rocky water course forcibly reminding me of the cataract of Lodore. One who remembers the description of the water tolling down will know a great deal about our downward journey.

With aching limbs, yet merry hearts, we once more reach the foot of the mountain, and quietly lifting our hats one of our number returns thanks to Almighty God for His loving protection.

Our team is waiting for us, and scrambling in, we ride quickly home, chanting with spirit "Home, sweet home." And at 7 o'clock we end a day's pleasuring in the mountains. SUSIE.
