SETTLED IN THREE DAYS.

Gen. Chas. A. Whittier Says the Philippine Problem is Easy.

He Relates the Salient Points in His Interview with Aguinaldo Before Leaving Manila.

New York, Jan. 18.—General Charles A. Whittier, who returned recently from Manila, says:

"Nothing in the world is easier of settlement than the situation in the Philippines. It could be settled in three days. In the first place, there is a wide ignorance of the wealth of Philippines and the character of the Filipinos. The natives are not ignorant; they are not savages. They are adept at manufactures and as accountants, mariners and railroad operatives. They are quiet, most temperate and have shown great ability in their military affairs.

"With Aguinaldo, accompanied by aide-de-camp and half a dozen of the principal positive to bring them under our control.

"We may give them offices of minor importance, both military and civil and try the experiment for whatever number of years may be necessary until they develop their capacity for governing and we can then be guided by that.

"I saw Aguinaldo twice in three days before leaving Manila. He told his people were about equally divided, one half favoring absolute independence, the other half favoring an American protectorate. I said to him in reply to these favoring independence: 'The fact is it must be the wish of all you to develop the country. To do this roads must be built on scientific principles, railroads must be constructed; extraction will be necessary. You have no money, but we have money to pay. The islands are as rich a prize that, apart from quarrels and schisms between the Filipinos, foreigners are most likely to take from you your rights of the possession from time to time.'

"Aguinaldo replied: 'The civilized world would never permit such a thing' to which I retorted, 'How has it been in China, where Germany, Russia, France and Germany are striving at all times to take parts of the country?' He had no answer to this.

"A confidential friend of Aguinaldo, Juan Tabuzo, joined the conference at this point and after talking a while with Aguinaldo expressed very strongly his opinion that the two could never their people to the acceptance of a protectorate.

"Aguinaldo and from Canino added expressions of a desire to see what do they tell they had been neglected and rather given the cold shoulder by American officers since the day after the fall of Manila when they were assured of our friendship.

"My impression is that after the signing of the treaty in Paris, communication should have been established with them and I have no doubt that an understanding could have been arrived at with no impairment of our dignity and with no suggestion that we were going to lay the islands at least for the present.

"Asked his opinion of the appointment of Dewey and Otis and Schurman to investigate the condition in the Philippines, Gen. Whittier replied:

"I think it is a most excellent thing. In a letter to the secretary of state written last September, I recommended that such a commission be sent there to study and report upon the conditions politically, social and material of all the islands and later in my testimony before the peace commission in Paris I made a similar recommendation.

"I then suggested that a bureau of science with the chief chief and staff to be detailed should be at once established to comprehend the departments of geology, zoology, botany and ethnology and that there should be appointed a commission of a department of land surveys and works. The present commission seems to fulfill these requirements.

"It might be readily adapted to the British colonial system and it would be well to consider which of the many forms might be advantageously adopted. The British colonial empire has very diversified independent governments. Of these church have elective assemblies and responsible governments, others have elective assemblies and responsible governments, others are divided into many classes.

"In any form of government under a modified form of self rule, there would be advantage, probably, to make one of the native leaders a commissary of natives. In this or any event the governor general alone or with the commission should have absolute power.

Gen. Whittier sent to Manila with General Merritt and there served as collector until the end of October. He reached this way of Paris and on his arrival in this country recently, his first duty was to make his report to Gen. Corbin, adjutant general. This done, he now feels that he is sufficiently freed from official obligations to speak of affairs in the Philippines. His position here gave him ample opportunity for observing the conditions in the islands.

The number of men in the mine last night was about 100. It is not known working beyond where the fire is supposed to be.

The extent of the fire has not been seen and may be imprisoned.

Fagan Convicted.

Washington, Jan. 18.—It was stated at the war department that an announcement would be made today of the action of the president in the case of Fagan, ex-Commissary General Cagan. H. Weber, "the man of many crimes," went came forward and listened to the reading of an information charging him with embezzlement, in which he entered an emphatic plea of not guilty.

Holt Jr. The offense is alleged to have taken place in the city of the 13th inst. Before the following colloquy took place between Judge Norrell and the defendant:

AMUSEMENTS.

The fact that the Bergen Bunkert is something of a novelty in Salt Lake, caused a fair gathering to turn out at the Theater last night. The opera is a charming one of the light order; but it can hardly be said that it received an ideal interpretation at the hands of the Dorothy Morton Opera company. As to the other work, about the entire credit belongs to Miss Morton and Mr. Wilke, the others showing inefficiency plainly, and several of the principals being positively bad.

At the Grand Mr. Clark's second night in this city continued to draw a very fashionable audience, one that looked larger than the first night's gathering. The play went with the usual thrill of laughter, despite the very evident fact that Mr. Clark was not in the best of form, owing to his prolonged illness.

The sale for Clementine De Vere began at the box office this morning at the Theater, with very good indications for a large turnout.

CHURCH NOTICES.

EMERY STAKE CONFERENCE.

Elder C. G. Larsen Released from the Presidency and Elder B. S. Miller Appointed.

Price, Utah, Jan. 17, 1899.

To the Editor:

Elder F. M. Lyman and myself have just returned from the quarterly conference of the Emery Stake, held last Sunday and Monday, at Huntington. It was the best attended conference I have witnessed in the Stake. Short pithy sermons were delivered by a number of Elders, which were listened to with the closest attention. Elder F. M. Lyman was in his usual happy vein, and his practical teachings and good fatherly counsel will long be remembered by the Saints. The business transacted was of great importance to the Stake, and this was, no doubt, the reason for so large an attendance. All the wards but one were well represented.

The health of Elder C. G. Larsen, who has presided over this Stake since its organization, over eighteen years past, has for some time been failing, and on this account he expressed to the First Presidency of the Church his desire to be released from the arduous task of presiding over the large Stake. To visit the different wards required much hardship by team over very rough roads and subjected him to exposure to the weather, which was detrimental to the present condition of his health. The First Presidency considered it wise to grant him his wish and directed that he should be released as President of the Stake and that Elder B. S. Miller be his successor.

During the morning session of the meeting was called, which was unanimously attended, and the brethren were called upon to be ordained high priests. A vote was taken to give Elder C. G. Larsen and his counselors, Orange Seely and William Herbert, an honorable release, in accordance with the resolutions expressing their thanks to them for their faithfulness, their untiring labors in behalf of the kingdom of God.

Elder Larsen has been actively engaged in the ministry for a period covering nearly half a century, as a missionary, Bishop, president of the Scandinavian mission and president of the Stake. He is a man of great faith, and a man of strong integrity and unwavering loyalty to the Lord's work. His faithfulness to his duties as Elder Orange Seely, was the pioneer of Emery county, and ever since the first Church organization in the county he has held a prominent place among the people, and has always been in the front ranks of those who stand ready to promote the welfare of the people.

The second counselor, Elder William Herbert, has also served faithfully in his calling, and the Saints have shown their confidence in him by honoring him with some of the most important offices in their gift.

It is pleasing to those who are retiring from their positions to realize what a warm place they have won in the hearts of the people.

Bishop C. Miller was then presented to the people as the successor to Elder Larsen and was unanimously sustained.

In the forenoon meeting on Monday the action of the Priesthood meeting was ratified by the conference. John Pace and Henry H. Mathes were ordained to Elder Miner's counselors. There was not a dissenting vote. All the officers were sustained with the usual good feeling and the counselors felt confident that they will make an efficient and harmonious presidency of this Stake. They are to be the prime of life and possessed of much executive ability, and the Saints are encouraged, God-fearing men. They should feel much encouraged in entering upon their new duties, from the hearty reception they received from the people.

Elder C. G. Larsen and ex-Bishop Charles Pulsipher were sustained and ordained as Patriarchs to the Stake.

NO EMIGRANTS NEEDED.

(Collier's Weekly.)

There is one of our new territorial acquisitions to which American citizens will feel no hesitation to emigrate. In Hawaii there seems to be no opening for professional acquirements such as Ohio, or for skilled, or even unskilled labor. It is probably true of all countries that there is room at the top, but in the Hawaiian archipelago, the top is unusually crowded with native-born or long-resident competitors. There are not opportunities for persons commanding large amounts of capital to engage in the production of sugar, coffee, or fruit for export, but those Americans who have the necessary amount of money at their disposal would be not to do quite as well at home. As for laborers, it is well to remember that the Hawaiian bar comprises some seventy members, a number more than equal to the current needs of the business of the country. Of physicians and dentists, there are already as many as are at current rates of pay can be found in communities of similar size in the United States. Of white mechanics, there seems to be already more than the demand. The natives, Europeans and American mechanics possess a common jealousy of properties in the trade of the islands, and they are subjected to sharp competition from the Chinese and Japanese. Skilled and semi-skilled labor is in the hands of the Chinese and Japanese, and Americans have no chance of cutting them from that field of employment. The supply of unskilled labor the market is overstocked, and American citizens would not submit to work for the wages with which the Portuguese and native Hawaiians are content. On the other hand, there is room for a good many more men, so far as those of our countrymen who have to earn a living are concerned.

WHY IT WAS NAMED RUBBER.

Philadelphia Record.

A recent report from a British consul in one of the Central American states gives the following as the origin of the name rubber, as applied to vulcanite: An English artist, discovered in 1770 that a piece of gum elastic was admirably adapted for rubbing out pencil marks. He wrote a paper on the subject and informed his colaborateurs that a piece of India rubber, when used for rubbing out pencil marks for about half a century after the discovery, bears the same number. As a result of the introduction of the raw material and the scientific description of the plant by Fonchoux, it was first manufactured into waterproof clothing in France toward the end of the eighteenth century. Later on the firm of McIntosh of Manchester greatly improved on the process, and manufactured waterproofs on a large scale, and "macintoshs" is the name by which waterproofs have been known since that time.

A RESTAURANT PROBLEM.

Providence Journal.

Why are restaurants patronized by men exclusively better than those open to both sexes? This is the question a correspondent of the New York Sun wishes to have answered. Perhaps it would be necessary first to show that his assumption is justified by the facts. If we leave the hotels of the country out of the reckoning, we may conclude without any great danger of contradiction that he is right. Except perhaps in the cities, women do not patronize restaurants as a general thing. The eating is better, they say. This is a question of taste, of course, but it is admitted fact that men, as a rule, are much more particular about their food than women are, and are also disposed to spend more money upon it. Women have improved of late years in the matter of restaurant patronage, but they still have much to learn. Probably the great bonus that are open to men and women make most of their money out of the men.

Platform Collapses in Denver.

Denver, Colo., Jan. 18.—Gov. and Mrs. Wolcott, Senator and Mrs. Thurston and Mr. Bryan were present at a reception in Lincoln, Neb., this afternoon. A portion of the platform, two feet high, from which the speakers delivered their address at the Coliseum last night, fell down under the weight of 50 people, who were seated upon it. The people named some confusion for a few minutes but at no time was there any danger of a panic. The ladies fainted in sympathy. Bishop, president of the Scandinavian mission and president of the Stake, and Elder Orange Seely, a man of strong integrity and unwavering loyalty to the Lord's work. His faithfulness to his duties as Elder Orange Seely, was the pioneer of Emery county, and ever since the first Church organization in the county he has held a prominent place among the people, and has always been in the front ranks of those who stand ready to promote the welfare of the people.

The second counselor, Elder William Herbert, has also served faithfully in his calling, and the Saints have shown their confidence in him by honoring him with some of the most important offices in their gift.

It is pleasing to those who are retiring from their positions to realize what a warm place they have won in the hearts of the people.
