THE NEWS'S TENTH YEAR.

The NEWS congratulates the directors and stockholders of the Home Fire Insurance company on the celebration of the decennial of the company, which occurs today. Organized on September 30, 1886, with a view to checking at least a part of the great outflow of money paid foreign companies for insurance premiums, the Home has been a success from the start, and even in a depressed year like that through which we have just passed, it has made a phenomenal record. Its assets are invested in the best class of dividend paying investments, it is managed conservatively by a board made up of the most successful business men in the community, and its record for promptitude and fairness in settling losses is of the highest character. We learn that it is among the probabilities that the Home will soon be compelled to extend the insurance fields in other states, thus serving a double usefulness in not only keeping money at home, but bringing in money from the outside. The Home Fire and the Utah Sugar company are two local institutions of whose success every citizen of Utah is proud, and the NEWS hopes that both may continue to celebrate many decennials.

ARMENIANS IN FRANCE.

In a dispatch from France the condition of Armenian refugees now in that country is described as pitiable. There are in Marseilles about 500 of them, who have escaped the scenes of carnage in Abdul Hamid's country and made their way to the western shores of Europe to the hope of being able to cross the ocean that intervenes between them and relatives and friends in America. In France, however, they learned that the "land of the free" is not open to them, on account of the strictness of the immigration laws, and now they are in France without friends, soliciting on public or private charity, suffering and dejected.

European philanthropists are knocking lustily at the gates of the United States in their behalf, suggesting that the emergency demands an exemption from the rule. Perhaps they are right, since by the glorious traditions of this country it claims the distinction of being a place of refuge for oppressed humanity. But there is another side to the question, which should be recommended to the consideration of Europe's professional philanthropists and statesmen. It is the European powers that, by their contemptible oriental policy, are under the strongest possible moral obligations to care for the suffering Armenians. They should not look to America for relief from a burden it is their duty to carry.

There is no need for the spectacle now presented of starving Armenians inundating European seaports. The region of Asia Minor, which is their by right of inheritance, is a rich, beautiful country more than capable of sustaining the population. It is not an amount of bad steps or epidemics of earthquakes that they have been driven away from their mountain homes, but by bitter persecution and most cruel oppression. They have been their fathers and kindred slaughtered in and about their modest and sincerely turned at the sword, their children, even the infant, cut to pieces or pierced by spears. Their homes have been burned and their fields laid desolate. Extermination stared them in the face. And all for such a crime! Has ever been visited on at the very threshold of Christian civilization, Europe taking all the time conscious at her power and her duty to stop the outrage, but refusing to do so. The chief responsibility, it is now conceded, rests with Abdul Hamid, who has contrived to make of himself one of the most sanguinary monarchs of Mohammedan blood-stained annals, but so far from the responsibility is to be traced to the powers on whose sympathetic ears he leans. They should not, therefore, now, when a new manifestation of the violence of their selfish policy appeal to them for a piece of reason, ask the United States for charity's sake to take the poor wretches off their hands. They would not do so, were their honor first consulted.

The Anglo-Turkish agreement of 1878 is still in force. England secured the island of Cyprus in order to enable her to execute the engagement entered into by that convention, and she still holds the pledge and with it the obligation it implies. According to the treaty entered into the other powers joined to protect the Christians in Armenia and elsewhere in Turkey, and England undertook to see to it that these promises were carried out. This is where the matter still rests, and until England evacuates Cyprus, Armenians have a right to look to Great Britain especially for aid and protection.

AN EXTENSION OF TIME.

The City Council did a proper thing at its session Tuesday evening, in extending the time in the terms granting Pioneer square to the railway company intending to build from this city to California. When the company first asked the concession on the part of the city, everything appeared bright for an immediate pushing of the road westward, so the time upon which the square was granted were made close to insure speedy work and the first to be finished, that of grading a certain number of miles within a given period, was complied with by the company. But circumstances which the railway company could not control intervened; one of the most active promoters was called away by death; the financial condition of the country were so disturbed by the issues arising in the presidential contest that capitalists would not move till after the election, and deferred the fulfilment of all contracts to treat until subsequent to that event. Time, and other reasons of a secondary nature, checked the railway enterprise and compelled its owners to ask an extension of time from the city.

It is right for the municipality to give tangible encouragement to a great railway system which proposes establishing its terminus here and which is conceded to be a great public good—and in this case the common sentiment and judgment say that it is right—but it is as proper that the proffered encouragement be upon reasonable terms to suit it effective. In this case the former specifications appeared reasonable at the time they were made, but subsequent developments rendered a change necessary, if anything was to be accomplished in the way of building the railway referred to. The City Council has taken a common sense, liberal, business view of the change that have taken place, and in order that all that the municipality may be reasonably expected to do towards the gigantic enterprise may be done, the Council has granted the request for an extension of time, and has opened the way so far as it can for the building of the railway and to proceed at the earliest possible date.

OFFICERS WITHOUT COMPENSATION.

There are times and places when it is consistent to require public officers to serve without pay to money. This is in cases when the business of the office may be made to feel that the honor of serving or the opportunity of accomplishing a public end is sufficient reward for the time, labor and thought expended in the duties of the office, and where the individuals selected to perform those labors are among those whose business interests are not made to suffer thereby. O ith's case are state boards of charities and in some cases of educational institutions. For those, the compensation is usually small number required can be found among people to whom financial remuneration for time needed would not be a consideration of importance.

But when it comes to one other office, the form of the fee is overcome by that of other transition. This is now being shown clearly in practice in the effort to fill position officers. The law provides that "judges and clerks of election shall serve without compensation." In the division of election precincts throughout the state, the conditions are such that, to secure good election officers in the positions described, care must be made upon people who cannot afford to devote the time required to the county or state, in comparison with the fact that their services are paid. They are persons who, in many cases, in order to do the work must be relieved from regular employment at a loss to themselves, they are of the laboring classes, have never sufficed to bear the loss out of any day for the honor there is in the office, for there is neither glory nor satisfaction in the irksome and responsible duty of judge or clerk of election. Therefore we have the spectacle of many acceptable persons declining to have anything to do with it. Some there are who, out of a desire to see the work go on right, respond to the call once, but even these feel that the right thing is not being done by them. As a result there is almost a necessity to seek for some judges and clerks of election among persons who would not be first choice if the whole field of citizenship were available.

If the State, county, or other political district receives valuable consideration in official service, it is as proper to pay for it in the case of election officers as in any others. The public has no more real desire to receive something for nothing in this way than it has to pay salaries to persons who do not earn them. The law requiring judges and clerks of election to serve without compensation ought to be changed, seemingly also that making the same requirement of members of boards of adjustment. Neither of these offices should go begging for efficient incumbents and be compelled to accept persons obligated to some financial or political loss, and who take the office to make it subservient to that obligation. The honor is so worthy of his hire by the way of salary in the duties of these offices as in any others, and more so than in some where there is a considerable of honor and prestige partially or wholly to compensate the incumbents. The next Legislature ought to remedy the defect now existing in this particular.

THE SHOOTING SEASON.

The shooting season—that is, the time in which to hunt wild fowl—opens tomorrow, October 1st. Today many eager hunters have made preparations for a trip this evening to the lakes and ponds within reach, with a view to being early in the sport and bagging a large supply of fat ducks. We will not assume that these sportsmen intend to do any shooting of game birds, for we know if they do it will be a violation of the law, and some of the county fish and game warden's many representatives are likely to haul the offenders into the courts. After today, shooting will be open, and not many days hence edible fowl will be scarce in the Territories readily accessible to hunters.

The legislative restrictions on the hunting and fishing season in this State have had a very salutary effect on the quantity of game and fish now in reach of the people at stated times. If it had not been for the laws in this particular, the probability is that Utah would have been almost devoid of wild fowl and other game, and of the more delicately flavored members of the finny tribe, such as trout, which even now are none too plentiful. The progress of the past, however, shows that with the enforcement of the fish and game laws there is a continuous improvement in conditions. The enforcement sometimes is very difficult and seemingly futile, yet the general results are of such a decidedly encouraging character that all those officers who have displayed nerve and persistence in maintaining the law even under disparaging circumstances have reason to feel highly gratified at the good which has been accomplished.

One of the remarkable phases of the Turkish enigma is the fact that every time Abdul Hamid places a new menace on Christians, the ambassadors at Constantinople notify their governments that the reforms so much spoken of will be carried out shortly and that the Turkish question has lost "much of its acute character." The sultan must be a great reformer by this time, able to build himself a cave of shells like the other reformer, the king of Ashantee.

Recital

The violinist, assisted by Miss Pauline Stein, soprano, and Mlle. Rescioff Baker, pianist, at the Congregational church, Thursday night.

Some days nothing will "come right," from the time you first feel you retire. Too to one, the trouble is yourself. Your blood is in bad condition, and every organ suffers in consequence. What you need is Hood's Sarsaparilla, to establish the health of your blood, invigorating it. Remember of Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

The sense of security against sudden emergencies from croup and scrofula, felt by those who are provided with a bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, would be cheaply purchased at ten times the cost of that remedy. In all lung complaints, it is prompt to act and sure to cure.

Dandruff forms when the glands of the skin are weakened by age, or neglect, baldness is sure to follow. Hall's Hair Renewer is the best preventive.

Feed the Nerves

Upon pure, rich blood and you need not fear nervous prostration. Nerves are weak when they are improperly and insufficiently nourished. Pure blood is their proper food, and pure blood comes by taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, which is thus the greatest and best nervetonic. It also builds up the whole system.

HOOD'S PILLS are the favorite family cathartic, easy to take, easy to operate.

Mrs. M. A. Kell, of Pinnacle, Cal., had the bad luck to sprain her ankle. "I tried several liniments," she says, "but was not cured until I used Chamberlain's Pain Balm. That remedy cured me and I take pleasure in recommending it and testifying to its efficacy." This medicine is also a great value for rheumatism, lame back, pains in the chest, pleurisy and all deep-seated and muscular pains. For sale by druggists.

Last August while working in the harvest field I became overheated, was suddenly attacked with cramps and was nearly dead. Mr. Cummings, the druggist, gave me a dose of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy which completely relieved me. I took less than a bottle of the remedy lately. A. M. RUSSELL, Unionville, Wash. For sale by druggists.

Mrs. E. E. Dyer, of San Miguel, Cal., says: "I am trying to a testimonial to praise the manufacturers of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for the great good that remedy has done me. For years I was a constant sufferer from weak lungs and bronchial asthma. My rest at night was disturbed by a harsh cough, so that I felt miserable the greater part of the time. Many remedies recommended by friends were tried, none of which proved sufficient to give me relief. I did not experience any benefit at results until I began taking Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. After two bottles of the large size have been used I am pleased to state, my health is better than it has been for years. The worst cough I ever had yields to it and I can breathe easily. If anyone can do so much good that I want all who are suffering from lung trouble, as I now do, to try it for themselves." For sale by druggists.

Why is it,

If catarrh is a blood disease, as some claim, that no physician ever gives the cause of it and seems to be suffering? Catarrh is a climatic affection, but nothing but a local remedy is a cause of climate will cure it. Ely's Cream Balm is so efficient as to do away with the necessity of leaving home and friends, seeking health elsewhere and is a real cure of catarrh.
