A DEADLY CYCLONE.

20 Persons Killed and Others Injured in Its Path.

HOUSES COMPLETELY DESTROYED.

Dead Horses, Cattle, Hogs and Chickens Scattered All Over the Wheat Fields.

WICHITA, Kan., May 1.—A special from Haskell to the Eagle says: At 4 o'clock today a severe cyclone visited Haskell and vicinity. It came in a strip of country several miles wide and at least six miles in length, killing six persons outright and seriously injuring several others, while many have received slight injuries.

The cyclone first struck the house of Mr. Fry, a widow, who lives about one mile southeast of Haskell, completely demolishing it but only slightly injuring Mr. Fry.

It next visited the house of John Sullivan, and scattered it in every direction. The Rev. Twombly house of Joseph Weir, which had not recently been built at a cost of over $2,000, was entirely swept away, killing Mrs. Weir, Jesse Weir, aged 17, Hermione Weir, aged 6, and a five-weeks-old baby. Mr. Weir had left the house, and when the cyclone struck it was about fifty yards away and stunned for a time. He received injuries which the physicians say may prove fatal. Joseph Weir Jr., was also alone. Hard were the only ones in the family who took to the cellar, escaping with only slight bruises.

The home of E. B. Caldwell, which was fifty yards to the west of the Weir house, was demolished and the south side torn away. The family escaped by going to the cellar in time.

The next house in the path of the storm was that of William Armstrong, which was completely wiped from the face of the earth. Mrs. Armstrong and Miss Rosa Armstrong seriously and probably fatally injured, and Manchester Coughlin, who was there visiting, was killed.

About 100 yards from the house, the large family residence of D. E. Pritchard was picked up, as was also a large country house of J. H. Pritchard across the road, and both together, with all the outbuildings were completely swept away, leaving enough debris to show that a house had stood there. The last place visited was the house of Dennis William White, which was entirely demolished, one wing of the house being torn away.

Some Hines's horses were in the line of the storm and was carried away. At the Dogs district school had just let out for the day when the cyclone came. Mr. Bogh brought the children safely out of the path of the storm with his family. Had they not so done some of them would have had a great loss of life. The fury of the storm seems to have done its work and five miles west of Haskell, and all six of the persons were killed near the Pritchard home. Dead cows, cattle and hogs and chickens are scattered all over the wheat field.

Men who first saw the tornado did nothing say it made very slow motion, traveling not faster than a man could run, but it seemed to wear for in one direction then to other. Had it not been so, the Weir family could have gone to the cellar out of the house, where they would not be crushed.

The cyclone could be plainly seen for miles, and the Santa Fe passenger train No. 4 waited in the Haskell yards until it crossed the track. Hines town several telegraph poles in which carried, as far as could from, contained a distance of eighteen miles, with the county clerk and lawyer in company. Twenty residences, nearly all of them large, were completely swept.

The loss will reach not less than $100,000, besides the six dead, and the injured, two of three of whom will probably die.

Miss Inez Neff, aged about 16, has died from her injuries.

The storm crossed the Santa Fe railroad about three miles west of Haskell. The engineer of a westbound through Pacific express saw the whirling tornado emerge from the south and stopped his train and looked out. This prompt action prevented a wreck, for the wind would so certainly have struck the cars had it proceeded.

DESERT AND BLANCHE.

Sensational Testimony Given in the Inquest.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 1.—The inquest upon the body of Blanche Lamont occupied now than three hours today, but the evidence developed was considered overwhelming, and the jury returned a verdict charging Theodore Durrant with the murder. Two new witnesses were produced at the inquest and testified briefly, but it was evident the prosecution is adding as much of the evidence as possible to reserve.

Until today no one had been produced who saw Durrant in the vicinity of Emma Park on Sunday morning with the unknown girl in the afternoon of April 3rd. This missing link, seemingly so out was lacking to complete the chain of circumstances forming the large circumstantial evidence against the accused, was supplied at the inquest.

Martin Quinlan, an attorney, gave unexpected positive testimony that he saw Durrant and a girl, talking earnestly with the description of Blanche Lamont, walking towards the church, and only a few yards distant, at 3:15 o'clock on the afternoon of the disappearance. Quinlan explained that he was waiting to keep an appointment with one Clarke, who subsequently corroborated the witness.

These witnesses furnished the sensational feature of the inquest, but Durrant maintained his usual nonchalance during the testimony. The police and the district attorney are confident of a conviction, claiming that they did not put in nearly all of their cases yet. Mrs. C. C. Noble, aunt of the murdered girl, testified as to the frequency of Durrant's visits at her house and his attentions to her niece. Durrant had proposed marriage to Blanche for December, but had been refused when the girl learned he was engaged to another young woman. C. C. Noble, uncle of Blanche, testified Durrant had suggested that correspondence with Blanche was unlikely in a house so sickness, and offering to obtain for her among the diplomatic scenes.

A great car conductor and three school girls identified Durrant as the man who had escorted Blanche from the school, taking the car to the point of interest on route for her home. George H. King, organist of Emmanuel church, who wrote the letter to Durrant, repeated the story of seeing him to the church, six and eight, on the afternoon Blanche Lamont disappeared, for J. E. Harris, who produced the original, dated Dr. Hoarle died of appendicitis. Hearst it was impossible for her to have come in a delicate condition. Notes of an stranger's finger and wounds were on one side of her face and five on the other.

Detectives told of Durrant's contradictory statements concerning his whereabouts on the day Blanche Lamont disappeared, and of his evasive feel to answer before the grand jury as an accomplishment with her, and the case went to the jury with unexpected celerity.

THE SILVER QUESTION.

Senator Jones, Chairman Brown and Sen. Elkins Discuss the Subject.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 1.—Senator Jones, of Arkansas, one of the members of the United States delegation to the proposed international monetary conference, has returned to Washington. He says he knows of no progress making towards the holding of such a conference, and in an interview expresses the opinion that the next Democratic national platform will contain unequivocally for the coinage of silver independent of action by other nations, and that the Republican platform will declare in favor of bimetallism and an international agreement.

AS SEEN FROM HERE.

CLEVELAND, O., May 1.—Hon. Chauncey M. Depew, of New York, was in the city today attending the annual meetings of the Lake Shore and Nickel Plate roads. Asked about another ticket, he said:

"The only to discuss national politics, nothing has developed yet."

"Which do you favor for the Presidency?"

"I am from New York state and we are for Governor Morton."

"Who do you know, is for Governor M. Kinley?"

"Ohio might to be for Governor McKinley. He is an able man. There will be but one name, hard times and sound money. The Republicans will nominate a ticket. The tariff will silver question will be settled every into the campaign, but they will only be the central issue."

CONVENTION.

LEAVENWORTH, Ind., May 1.—United States Senator D. H. Kolsen is in the city. In speaking of the silver question he said:

"We all know that silver is settled. It is essential whether the Republican party will succeed in the next presidential election. I have great confidence that the Republican party will solve this question satisfactorily to the majority of the American people. Congress will have to do something in the matter because it is intolerable, and it seems clear to the rights of the people, and it is one of the largest business interests of silver and one of the largest bimetallism of the white metal commodities. If Congress will not point out the way, I think we can get through it. I do not believe that what the compromise should be, but that it would be much better for the silver men to give something, even if the silver men should have stolen it in the convention. Would it not be a good policy to conserve something to the gold men, and then hold their support to it? Democrats ought to give everything and lay their support."

Price of Stock Advanced.

BOSTON, May 1.—Sensational trading was manifested in the Boston Stock Exchange this afternoon at the United States Rear Sale and sold to meet bidders to fill orders for the Pittsburg Reduction Company, which advanced from 10½ to 23 cents per pound.

Two Alleged Embezzlers.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 1.—Harry H. McKinney, a messenger employed by Lion Claus National Bank, is accused of embezzling the amount of $1,000, and was bonded for the amount of $2,000, and was bonded for the amount. The embezzlement is said to date up for some time. It is alleged McKinney for the money speculating on the Chicago board of trade.

Later this afternoon Mayor Dewitt issued the arrest of ex-City Treasurer Chas. Green for embezzling the funds. The amount of his shortage is thought to be between $20,000 and $30,000.

Status for Higher Wages.

BLUEFIELD, W. Va., May 1.—The strike in the Pocahontas and Bluefield strike for another 10 per cent increase. A meeting of 12,000 miners was held at Bluefield today to consider the matter, and it was decided to refer the matter to the Pocahontas, W. Va., men to join the strike.

The direct question concerning for Virginia miners at this place is not been out. It is the effort of the men to join the strike, some doubtful will be attempted.

BRADFORD, Pa., May 1.—In accordance with the general decision of last fall, work in all the union mines in Ohio was suspended last night, and will not be resumed until the miners now being made at the Columbus convention, is signed. The suspension is not only in the Massillon district, but embraces the entire state.

MINERS' CONVENTION.

COLUMBUS, O., May 1.—Under the new scale, which has been signed by the Ohio miners, now in session here, the Ohio Miners' association, auxiliary to the United Mine Workers of America, met today with President Haselton in the chair. The convention is called "the dead white pine convention." "The dead white pine convention."

According to latest agreements Ohio miners would be made before the coming summer. The important question now is that the differential of Pennsylvania mines. Officials, as well as miners, believe that the mines in stopped work long in Ohio are only recommendation of their organization officers, and a change is effected. This morning was consumed in disappointment of committees. The convention then adjourned, pending the preparation of the designated report.

Green Mint Vaults Sealed Up.

CARSON, Nev., May 1.—It was reported this afternoon that a draft had been issued by the United States Treasury from to the assay office, the mint, cashier and superintendent, superintendent Adams said to such draft and such date. Orders had been received from Washington to that effect, but he has not heard them or superintendent. Workmen are sealing up the vaults under special Mason's supervision this afternoon.

DEATH'S MISTAKE.

A British Lady Administers Poison to Her Patients.

FORT SCOTT, Kan., May 1.—At Hackville, a small village near here, half a dozen people are in a dangerous condition as a result of the treatment administered by a handsome, stylishly dressed woman who came there several days ago and advertised as Mrs. Dr. Alberta Oberlin, claiming to be a social traveling from St. Louis. Mary Gibbons, a little girl, the operating lady also applied some liquid to the gums of a number of her patients. Soon after the operation they were invariably taken ill, their faces and hands becoming discolored, their tongues swollen and their stomachs affected.

When the local physicians declared that their changes were suffering from poison, the inquiry was made for the woman dentist, and it was discovered that she had fled. The prosecuting attorney issued a warrant to be found or her arrest, and telegrams to her apprehension have been sent in all directions.

TRAINS HELD UP.

An Engineer Killed by the Bandits—All Captured.

SOMERSETVILLE, Ill., May 1.—Night express No. 5, on the Chicago & Atlantic railroad, northbound, was stopped about 12 o'clock, about two miles this side of Carbondale, by three masked men, who had climbed upon on the platform of the third baggage car supposedly at Carbondale. The men climbed over the tender and ordered Engineer Frank Holmes to stop the train, and immediately began firing. Holmes was killed at the first fire, throwing Frank Tuggle overboard.

The remaining, after killing the engineer, jumped off by the train and escaped. Fireman Tuggle then ran the train back to Carbondale. It is not known whether robbery was intended or not. Engineer Holmes this morning, when going south at Carbondale, compelled some tramps to get off the train, and also had some trouble with them on the previous day. It is thought that some of these men were his assassins. Holmes's home is in Bloomington.

All the wounded robbers were captured within a short time, the escaped Engineer Holmes being caught by a mail train, as he was getting off the car.

A LIVELY BATTLE WITH ROBBERS.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., May 1.—Two men fatally wounded and another severely bruised in the result of a frustrated attempt to rob a Burlington train coming into this city. Pat some days ago a gang of tramps had been hanging around St. George, a suburb of this city, and late night information was brought to the Burlington officials that the Omaha express was to be held up. William Hoag, the hotel man, furnished the information, and the officers met gangs, who frustrated the attempt.

Late this evening, while Richard Hoe, an employee of Hoag, was sitting in the saloon of Hoag's place, Thomas Fatman, one of the men, drew inside the door, while the others, was given the cues of Joe Howard, walked up the sidewalk, a word and shot through the window, killing a man named. As Farrell, stepped out at the door to ascertain the cause, "I have shot the dog, sure," meaning that he had fired at Hoag, who had given the information.

Several citizens who were lounging in front of the saloon, ran out on the railroad tracks towards the Kansas bridge. As the fugitives neared the bridge, each drew a Colt's and Policeman Berry, who found the firing, jumped into a buggy and gave chase, catching up with the men. The men then turned and fired at the office of the village. Carson a trusty Howard with his revolver and Lessig also in succession.

Berry, who had fairly attempted to stop Jim Farrell, who stepped out into the street and began firing, shouted the officer through his arm. Tom Farrell drawing the blood from Charles Berry's face with the stock of his revolver. Jim Farrell, who had shot Hoag, and a half a dozen others, was shot through the lungs, through the back, and cut with a knife. Tom Farrell, who had shot Hoag, was shot through the back, and cut with a knife.

Right Arm Paralyzed!

Saved from St. Vitus Dance.

"Our daughter, Blanche, now eleven years of age, had been nearly paralyzed for two years, and was entirely helpless in the result of a frightened attempt to ride a Burlington train coming into this city. For some days she had a gang of tramps had been hanging around St. George, a suburb of this city, and late night information was brought to the Burlington officials that the Omaha express was to be held up.
