The Coming Presidential Campaign May Become Either an Auxiliary or a Waterloo.

REPUBLICANISM OF THE FUTURE.

Harrison Will be Nominated and Cleveland will be His Antagonist.

HUTCHINSON, KANS., May 27.—At a meeting, yesterday, of Republican editors of the Seventh congressional district, a letter from ex-Senator Ingalls was read. Among other things the letter said: "The republicanism of the future must readjust itself to the changed conditions of American life, or it will perish. I wish to save it from this fate by recalling the spirit of energy and aggressive and patriotic force of the founders, to the campaign. Harrison will be renominated and Cleveland will be his antagonist. If we have courage and confidence it will be an "Armageddon." If we cater to popular errors and compromise with unprincipled leaders and cover at home of differences of judgment and opinion, it will be a "Waterloo."

An Interesting Circular Concerning Liquor Selling.

CHICAGO, May 27.—Following the decision of the Supreme court in the "original package" case, an interesting circular comes to the collector of this customs district from Commissioner of Internal Revenue Mason.

The commissioner states that he has received many letters stating that in many parts of the country retail liquor dealers claim to hold a government license to sell liquor and that they defy the local or state prohibitory laws. The commissioner says a belief is evidently current that the United States license liquor selling, and adds: "Once for all this office wishes it understood that the government does not license liquor selling of whatever description and only puts a yearly tax on liquor sellers and does not seek to interfere in prohibition districts.

THE REPUBLICANS.

Appointment of a Temporary Territorial Committee.—An Appeal.

The following call has been issued to "The People of Utah:"

"The sentiment in favor of organizing political parties in Utah in harmony with those of the nation, has attained such force and expression that it cannot be delayed or resisted. The Liberal and the People's parties were the offspring of the conditions existing when they were formed, but the changed conditions of political affairs in Utah have so relieved ground for their continuance, and so cemented honest differences between and among them, that old associations with their kindred, their current fields of discussion, and their memories of social and political bitterness.

"The Republicans of Salt Lake City have organized and appointed a local committee, and have appointed the undersigned a temporary territorial committee to act in behalf of organization until the Republicans of Utah, in general convention, can complete their organization, formulate their platform and appoint their executive.

"We now ask the aid and active co-operation of all citizens of the Territory who are willing to unite with us in organizing the national Republican party in Utah, and we extend the greeting even to all.

"But the time has come to direct local organizations and form parties upon ground of those who hold political opinions in harmony with national parties, irrespective of regard to their former political affiliations.

"But the general principles of the national Republican party are so broad and liberal as to permit the widest latitude of opinion on all questions of local interest, and to accommodate honest differences among those of the weaker and the stronger.

"The principle of protection to American products and labor is of the highest importance to the vast agricultural, wool growing and stock raising interests of our Territory.

"It is of equal interest to our great mining interests, which furnish employment to a large and constantly increasing number of our people as an important part of our business.

"Without protection we cannot successfully compete with foreign labor and capital. With it we may hope to witness the development of mineral our Territory affords and employ the labor it should be used in.

"The Republicans of Utah will be unanimous in the favor of the protection of home and of the free coinage of American silver. They will also claim that the American people should be consulted as to the way in which it is adopted, notwithstanding its use as a medium of exchange, under the Republican principle of protection.

"They will also assert and recognize the equality of home rule and the right of power of Territories to protect its interests.

"Our home industries and enterprises, who contribute to the material goods, are justly entitled to the preference in all purchasers, and that Utah's work should go to Utah workmen.

"In view of the peculiar history of Utah in the past, and the fears of many of its citizens for the future, the Republicans of Utah will announce their accepted as the acknowledgment of any claim except that of merit, and they shall have been convinced by the process of time, and that they will labor for the free exercise of the power of suasion to all citizens disinclined on account of polygamy or polygamous relations, who will obey and uphold the laws of the United States.

"In uniting with the national Republican party we join a party which can point to a history and achievements unequalled in the history of any other political party of the world. Since its first organization it has been the advocate of freedom, equal rights to all citizens, and the leader in all the progressive measures which characterize nearly a third of a century, and which are an unsurpassed national prosperity. We need have no fears which mining politically with such a party.

"We invite all citizens who agree with us in these general principles to hold precinct meetings and appoint precinct delegates to county conventions, which will appoint county delegates to a Territorial convention, where the Territorial organization can be completed, and the platform of the party formulated.

The History of Charity.

Among the few books, writes Walter Besant, which remains to be written is a history of charity. I have not the time at present to undertake this great work, but there are the chapters into which it will be divided when it comes to be written: 1. In prehistoric times. When you gives a beggar a penny because he is a beggar. 2. When you build a monastery which shall give a bed and a square meal to every beggar because he is a beggar. 3. When the beggar increases and multiplies and blackens all the roads in consequence of this humane treatment. 4. When you hang the beggar, drop the beggar into the river, pillory the beggar and flog the beggar because he is a beggar. 5. When you found societies to relief but continue to dog the beggar because he is a beggar. 6. When you send checks to the societies but continue to flog the beggar because he is a beggar. 7. When you send the beggar to prison because he is a beggar, but give him a penny when nobody is looking. 8. When you resolve to assist none but the deserving. Yet the beggar continues because he is a beggar. 9. When you give up sending checks about, give nothing to the beggar because he is a beggar and by personal service among the classes which feed the beggar. We are now beginning the last chapter and it really seems hopeful.

A RARE FIND.

AN ANTIQUARIAN DISCOVERS SOME VALUABLE WASTE PAPER.

A curious occurrence took place in the year 1865. An antiquary bought some odes from one Jay, a fishmonger in Old Hungerford Market, Yarmouth. The odes were wrapped in a large, stiff sheet of paper torn from a lithographic volume which stood at the fishmonger's door. When the purchaser unwrapped his purchase his eye caught the signatures of Lauderdale, Godolphin, Ashley and Sunderland on the large, stiff sheet of paper. The wrapper was a sheet of the revolving charges for prisoners in the Tower in the reign of James II. The signatures were those of the ministers. The antiquary went back at once to Jay's shop. "That is good paper of years," the said, meaning an old theft forence. "Yes, but no stiff. I've got a lot of it too. I got it from Somerset House. They had ten tons of waste paper, and I offered £7 a ton, which they took, and I have got three tons of it in the stables. The other seven they hung till I was ready." "All this time" added the antiquary, his heart in his mouth, "Poky much," replied Jay; "all odds and ends." Jay obligingly allowed the antiquary to carry home an armful of the rubbishy papers. His head swam as he looked on scraps of the exchequer office signed by Henry VII and Henry VIII, warrants secretary of Queen Anne, diplomat receipts signed by Pope and Newton, a treatise on the Eucharist in the handwriting of Edward VI and another on the Order of the Garter in the scribby handwriting of Elizabeth. The government in selling their papers to Jay had disposed of public documents which contained much of the history of the country from Henry VII to George IV. The antiquary went back to Jay. Little by little he was acquiring the whole pile, but he intuitively whispered the word about, and it became no longer a secret. The government was arrested to a sense of its loss, and the public clamored for a commercial inquiry. It was then found that three boxes by which Lord Mountnairle, director of the exchequer, and that the papers which had been sold for £50 were at the least, worth some pounds, but most of them had by this time been lost or mutilated or scattered beyond recognition.—Lippincott's Magazine.

It Will be the Deepest in the World.

One of the most important scientific explorations into the depths of the earth ever undertaken will be carried out near Wheeling, within the joint auspices of the United States government and the city of Wheeling.

Some months ago the Wheeling Development company began drilling a well over this city in search of oil or gas. It was determined to bore as far as possible. The hole has already reached the depth of 3,000 feet, within 500 feet of the deepest hole in the world. In this distance a dozen of which veins of coal have been passed, oil and gas both sinks, but not in paying quantities, and gold quartz, iron and many other minerals found. The hole is eight inches in diameter and the largest in diameter of any deep well in the world.

Today Prof. White, State Geologist, arrived from Washington, where he had succeeded in interesting the Government Geological Survey officers interested in the exploration, and the result is that the hole will be driven to a depth of one mile. The Government will take up the work, under the direction of two expert officers of the Geological Survey and drill into the earth so far as human skill can penetrate.

The idea is to take the temperature and magnetic condition as far as possible, and to pursue an instrument constructed for the purpose, a complete record of the progress and all discoveries made will be kept.—Philadelphia Press.
