THE TARIFF BILL PASSED.

After a Debate in the Senate for Over Three Months.

An Important Rider Directed Against Trusts Placed on the Measure—The Detailed Vote.

WASHINGTON, July 3.—In the midst of intense excitement, at 10:45 o'clock to-night, after having debated for three months and one day, the tariff bill, amended to take effect August 1, 1894, passed the Senate by a vote of 39 to 34, a strict party vote, except Mr. Hill, who voted with the Republicans against the measure. The Populists divided their strength, two, Messrs. Kyle and Allen, voting in favor of the bill, and two, Messrs. Peffer and Stewart, against it.

A hard but hopeless fight was made by the Republicans under the leadership of Mr. Sherman, to place wool on the dutiable list.

Through the instrumentality of Mr. McLaurin, Democrat, of Mississippi the action of the committee of the whole in exempting the salaries of United States judges and the President of the United States from the operation of the income tax was reversed in the Senate.

A very important piece of legislation in the shape of an anti-trust law was passed on the bill as a rider without even so much as a division. It was designed, as Mr. Voorhees said, to insure "integrity in the execution of the law," it being admitted that any tariff system afforded abundant opportunity for the formation of trusts and combines.

The galleries were filled to overflowing, many prominent ladies and gentlemen being present to witness the final disposal of the bill, and the scene was truly a brilliant one. Half a hundred members of the House were on the floor.

The detailed vote on the final passage of the bill is as follows:

Yeas—Allen, Bate, Berry, Blackburn, Blanchard, Caffery, Call, Cockrell, Coke, Daniel, Faulkner, George, Gibson, Gorman, Gray, Harris, Hunton, Irby, Jarvis, Jones (Ark.), Kyle, Lindsay, McLaurin, Martin, Mills, Mitchell (Wis.), Morgan, Murphy, Palmer, Pasco, Ransom, Roach, Smith, Turpie, Vest, Vilas, Voorhees, Walsh, White—39.

Nays—Aldrich, Allison, Carey, Chandler, Cullom, Davis, Dixon, Dolph, Dubois, Frye Gallinger, Hale, Hansbrough, Hawley, Higgins, Hill, Jones (Nev.), Lodge, McMillan, Manderson, Mitchell (Or.), Patton, Peffer, Perkins, Platt, Power, Proctor, Quay, Sherman, Shoup, Squire, Stewart, Teller, Washburn—34.

The pairs were as follows, the first named would have voted for the bill, the others against it.

Brice with Wolcott; Butler with Cameron; Camden with Pettigrew; Gordon with Wilson; Pugh with Hoar; McPherson with Morrill.

FEATURES OF THE STRIKE.

Mr. Debs Thinks a Settlement May be Made on Saturday.

CHICAGO, July 3.—President Debs, of the A. R. U., stated that a settlement of the strike on a basis satisfactory to all concerned may be made on Saturday. It is thought a meeting of the General Managers' Association and the strike leaders may be held in forty-eight hours.

Mayor Hopkins is negotiating with both sides with this result in view. Late tonight officials of the Chicago & Northwestern announce they have come to an understanding with the men in every department of the service, whereby all through and suburban train passenger service will be resumed as usual tomorrow.

SHOUTS OF "KILL THE MARSHAL!"

SACRAMENTO, Cal., July 3.—Sacramento was the scene of a violent demonstration on the part of the strikers this afternoon.

The Southern Pacific company attempted to break the blockade here and send a west-bound overland train to San Francisco. As soon as a start was made a mob of 3,000 strikers, who had been removed from the immediate vicinity of the train previously, swept down upon the train and dragged United States Marshal Baldwin from the cab of the engine. The strikers knocked him down, and the deputies and police who tried to interfere were powerless. Many in the mob shouted "Kill the marshal!" but the latter drew his revolver, and several deputies who had forced their way through the crowd did the same. The strikers were obliged to fall back, and the marshal finally escaped to the railroad offices.

The attempt to move the train, however, had to be abandoned for the time being. The strikers cut the train in two, and then they commenced to sidetrack the cars and disable the engines in the yard.

MILITIA NOT TO BE DEPENDED ON.

SACRAMENTO, Cal., July 4.—Throughout the day the most intense excitement has prevailed here. The celebration of the nation's natal day was completely overshadowed by the stirring events arising from the desperate struggle between the Southern Pacific and the American Railway Union. At 10 o'clock this morning two regiments of state militia from San Francisco and two companies from Stockton marched into the city. They had abandoned their train two miles out of the city. The troops marched direct to the armory, around which the local militia companies had established a strong guard.

Soon after the troops had breakfasted the city became wildly excited over a report that several men had been shot. Many of the strikers were wild with rage. It transpired, however, that the shooting was accidental.

At 1 o'clock the troops moved toward the depot, where a large force of police, deputy sheriffs and deputies under United States Marshal Baldwin were already on guard. The strikers and sympathizers to the number of several thousand had preceded the troops. The appearance of a militia surgeon, laden with his instrument case and a bundle of bandages, did not helped to improve the temper of the strikers.

When the soldiers arrived they were greeted with derisive yells and harsh comment.

It soon became known that General Superintendent Fillmore had announced his intention to start train, under military protection. The strikers at once became demonstrative. Chairman Frank Knox, their leader, saw the gravity of the situation, and addressed the men, urging them not to molest the militia. Notwithstanding his conciliatory talk, the great body of strikers loudly declared that no Pullmans should be moved.

Finally three companies of militia were ordered to drive the strikers from the depot. The scene was at once tumultuous and the situation threatening. For a moment the soldiers hesitated, then wavered, and then came a blunt refusal to move against the excited strikers.

A few minutes later all the troops turned their backs upon the turbulent mob at the depot and quietly withdrew to the armory. A deafening shout announced the second victory of the strikers over the railroad company, and their first victory over the state's militia.

Soon after this it became known why the militia had retreated. United States Marshal Baldwin and the railroad officials had insisted that the troops refrain from shooting, and that they remove the strikers by physical strength. This plan the officers of the militia positively refused to sanction.

When the troops had withdrawn to their armory and the jubilant strikers and their sympathizers were loudly celebrating their victory, a new source of danger became apparent. A body of fifty strikers appeared on the streets armed with rifles and ammunition. It was learned that the Garibaldi guard had turned the contents of its arsenal over to the strikers.

TO PROSECUTE DEBS.

CHICAGO, July 4.—Tomorrow an order will be entered in the United States court for a special grand jury to investigate the railroad strike. The government has determined to prosecute Debs.

Edwin Walker, the special counsel for the government, said that Debs's punishment is certain. A charge of criminal conspiracy will be brought against all the officers of the A. R. U. In addition to that they will be charged with violating the injunction and inciting to riot. The grand jury will get after the leaders.

A telegram was received by District Attorney Gilchrist this afternoon from Attorney General Olney, directing him to lose no time in calling the special grand jury.

DEPUTIES ATTACKED.

UNIONTOWN, Pa., July 3.—A mob of strikers attacked G. H. Phillips and Frederick Wyant, two deputies, at the station this morning, threatening their lives. The two deputies took refuge in the waiting room, but were followed by the strikers and the officers drew their revolvers to defend themselves.

One of the mob attempted to take Phillips's revolver, and in the scuffle three shots were fired, wounding William Fallon, and a policeman and a butcher whose name could not be learned. Assistance then arrived and three of the strikers were arrested. The others fled.

War in Transvaal.

PECHORIA, Transvaal, July 4.—The war between the Boers and the supporters of the Zoutpansberg chief, Malaboch, continues.

Malaboch and his followers are hidden in caves, where they cannot be reached by the Transvaal troops, and refuse to yield.

Commander Joubert, however, has decided to blow up the caves if the rebels refuse to come forth. He will first notify Malaboch of his intention, and will give time for the women and children to escape.

The Pope Sick.

LONDON, July 3.—The correspondent of the Times at Rome says the Pope's health seems to be failing. He has delivered a sealed packet, supposed to contain his last wishes, to a cardinal with instructions that it should be opened after his death.

THE FRENCH CHAMBER.

The Reading of the President's Message Causes a Row.

PARIS, July 3.—First Vice President De Mahy presided in the Chamber of Deputies while the premier read the messages of condolence upon the death of President Carnot which had been received from the foreign governments.

Deputy Vailland, a socialist, ascended the tribune and attempted to speak, but was inaudible, owing to constant interruptions. M. Millerand, another socialist and editor of the La Petite Republique Francaise, followed, but the shouts of the assembly compelled him to leave the tribune.

Premier Dupuy announced he wished to speak, but the socialists made such an uproar he could not be heard. The premier then declared as he was not allowed to make an explanation, he would take his seat. [Applause from the centre and yessads from extreme right and left.]

M. De Mahy appealed to the Chamber to keep quiet, saying that Vaillant wished to move the appointment of a committee of thirty-three members to prepare an address in reply to the President's message. This caused much additional disturbance, many of the deputies loudly demanding that the previous question be put.

Premier Dupuy declared that the President's message was countersigned by himself and that explanations should be demanded of him.

The uproar led to an unpleasant scene between M. Dupuy and M. De Mahy. As the shouting of the socialists prevented the premier from making himself heard, he turned to M. De Mahy and testily appealed to him to restore order. But M. De Mahy affected to ignore the premier, whereupon the latter resumed his seat, saying hotly to M. De Mahy: "You do not preside; you do no insure respect for the government or the tribune."

This caused M. De Mahy to retort with equal warmth: "Be silent; listen to the speaker."

The previous question was voted—430 to 77.

The election of a president of the Chamber to succeed M. Casimir-Perier has been fixed for Thursday next.

COXEYITES AT WASHINGTON.

They Bury the Goddess of Liberty in Front of the Capitol.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 4.—The Coxey Commonwealers went through the spectacular performance of "Burying the Goddess of Liberty" in front of the Capitol at noon today. It was the sequel of the demonstration of May 1st, when according to Coxey and Browne, Liberty was mortally wounded and lingered until she expired on the Fourth of July.

Captain Austin and a force of ten mounted and six unmounted police were on hand with two patrol wagons. A small crowd was attracted by the novel performance.

The Commonwealers marched four abreast, 216 strong, with many banners and devices. At their head rode Carl Browne in a remarkable disguise. His beard had been removed and his face powdered. A wig of yellow hair fell to his waist, his arms were bare and powdered. A Liberty cap was on his head and his body was bound with emblematic garments of Liberty. It was not intended that Browne should be known in the disguise.

Filing through Pennsylvania avenue, the army formed around the Peace monument, where the Goddess Browne delivered an apostrophe to the bronze goddess on top the Capitol. As he closed his address he flopped in a badly simulated swoon from his horse and his comrades catching him, placed him in full length with flags and crepe over him. The hearse was inscribed, "Liberty Is Dead."

The procession then moved away to Willigan Hill, where the goddess stepped from the hearse and the commonwealers closed the day with dancing and speeches.

Wrecked a Saloon.

GUTHRIE, Okla., July 3.—"False Jack" partner of the late bandit Dalton, and a gang of six men, rode into Ingalls last night and declaring that Bill Dalton had been betrayed by a saloon keeper named Nicholas, proceeded to demolish his saloon. The place was a wreck within three minutes. It is said that Nicholas gave the officers the information as to Dalton's whereabouts, which led to his death.

Fluttering, No Appetite, Could not Sleep, Wind on Stomach.

"For a long time I had a terrible pain at my heart, which fluttered almost incessantly. I had no appetite and could not sleep.
