BREVITIES.

The favorite hymn of the New Orleans colored churches has the touching refrain, "I'm gwine to Heaven in a ham basket." They evidently intend to make suitable "provision" for their future happiness.

A rather plain spoken Southern orator recently began a stump speech thus:

"I intend to speak plain English to you. I would like to have you listen to me calmly. I do not come here to stun you with any oratorical eloquence. I want to enlighten you, and it will not take much of an orator to do that."

After repeated refusals to sanction the laws passed in Australia, to allow marriage with a deceased wife's sister, the British Colonial Office has finally confirmed such an act. The Queen always refused her assent, on the ground that the proposition was diametrically at variance with a fundamental principle of English law. Five times the Australian Parliament has passed such a law, and now it is confirmed on the express ground that it met with little opposition in either House, and that there is a strong popular feeling in its favor.

One of the most successful gardeners informs us that the terrible pest, the "cabbage louse," can be prevented from doing damage to garden stuff by following his directions: Boil the leaves and stalk of the elderberry bush, and sprinkle your plants with the water. Commence early, before the lice get a start, and don't be fearful of getting on too much. It is well known that the lice will not touch this bush, there being something about it particularly offensive to them, and as it does not injure the plants in the least, it is well worth the trial.—Ex.

Religion, since the word etymologically signifies obligation, means properly the whole duty of a human being; that is, not only towards God but man, not only towards the church but the world. Religion is a fabric not merely for ecclesiastical or ethical use, but runs with equal thread through the whole texture of civil, social, and individual life. It is the motive power which impels the worshipper to the temple, and leads the laborer to his toil. If a man kneels and prays, and that is called religion, so if he buys and sells, that equally should be called religion. Some sentiments are more spiritual than others, and some duties more devout than others; but to speak of a man's religion, if we speak of it in any large, just and grand sense, we mean the sum-total of all that concerns his obligations as an intelligent and accountable being—his worship of God, his love of his kind, his dealing with his neighbors, his spirit in his household, his manners in society, his methods of business, his attitude towards the state, his studies, his pleasures, his everything. The wide range of a man's whole duty—spiritual, moral, political, social, and individual—this and nothing less than this is religion.—Golden Age.

Clergical Anecdotes.—There is a minister in Vermont who, as one old lady said of him, is particularly neat at funerals. It is not unusual for people in the neighboring towns to send for him for such occasions. In one instance he went several miles on an uncomfortable day to attend the funeral of the wife of a man of some prominence. As he was about starting for home, the bereaved husband took him by the hand and said: "I am very grateful to you for this day's service, and hope I may be able sometime to do as much for you." One day, in passing along the street, the same minister overtook a Quaker lady, and politely assisted her in opening a gate. As she was a comparative stranger in town he said: "You do not know me, perhaps; I am Mr. ——. Haven't you heard me preach?" "I have heard thee try!" was her quick and witty rejoinder.—Congregationalist.

A Berlin correspondent of the New York Nation relates the following: "On the entry of one of the Metz regiments (the Eighty-seventh, which is recruited in Nassau), I witnessed a little incident which is worthy of being narrated here. The regiment was on its way to the Schlossplatz, when a stout, resolute peasant woman broke through the ranks, put away the officer at the head of the squad, and embraced her husband, loudly crying: "He has belonged to you long enough, now he is mine once more, and you will never get hold of him again!" When the other women standing along the street, and eagerly watching for their turn, noticed this unceremonious procedure, there was no longer any restraint; then all broke into the lines, and each of them seized her son, husband or sweetheart. The captain could not defend himself against this invasion, good-naturedly suffered to pass what he could not stop, and led his men and women to the Schlossplatz, where amid the cheering of the people the women assisted the soldiers in unstrapping their knapsacks, or held their needle-guns, while in the other hand each carried a bundle of modest citizen's clothes, and afterward all ate and drank merrily together."

NEW YORK.

The Tichborne Case again.

NEW YORK, 11.—The Liverpool Courier has a story of a gentleman, formerly a commercial traveler in Australia, and who some years ago was lost in the woods and found shelter in a herdsman's hut. The herdsman, in the course of conversation, declared he was the son of a Baronet. The gentleman subsequently returned to England, and when the Tichborne case was being heard at law, in the claimant he recognized the herdsman of Australia. He afterwards had an interview with Tichborne, and it is said will be a witness for him when the case is resumed.

Disquieting rumors from France.

The Paris correspondent of the London Times, on the 28th of August writes: Disquieting rumors continue to arrive from Lyons, and we are beginning to receive from the south of France some accounts of the effect which the discussion on the dissolution of the national guard has produced on the large cities in which that body still exists in full revolutionary vigor and force.

Late journals state the betrothal of the Princess Mary Elizabeth of Prussia to the Grand Duke Alexis of Russia, will before long be officially announced.

The princess is the daughter of Prince Frederick Charles.

Arms being Purchased.

The Paris Constitutionnel, of a recent date, says the government is buying 550,000 chassepots from the minister of war at Berlin.

A new election will soon be held in the department of the Seine.

About the Sedan Surrender.

A foreign paper says, General De Wimpfen, who succeeded McMahon in command of the French army on the day it capitulated at Sedan, is strongly of the opinion the army might, by a bold and sustained effort, have broken through the bonds that encircled them at Sedan; and gives the following as the text of the famous letter addressed to Emperor Napoleon: "Sire; rather than be imprisoned at Sedan I have decided to force the line extended before the positions of General Lebrun and General Ducrot. Let your Majesty place yourself in the middle of your troops; they will hold it an honor to open a passage for you." He adds, while he was preparing for combat, he suddenly discovered a flag of truce over Sedan. Had the Emperor followed his counsel, a large portion of the army might have broken through. He states that when, by the Emperor's order, he opened negotiations with Bismarck, the latter demanded as terms of peace an indemnity of four milliards and the cession of Alsace and Lorraine.

The Municipal Frauds.

A great crowd assembled in the court house to-day, to witness the proceedings in the injunction suit against the city officials. The corporation counsel, O'Gorman, appeared for the city officials, and said his clients desired no delay. They were ready to meet the charges. The personal counsel for Tweed desired delay, in order to put in a separate answer, as he had failed to secure any specific statement of charges against him. The great crowd necessitated an adjournment to the circuit court-room, where O'Gorman read the affidavits. The affidavit in behalf of the supervisors was first read, and contained a general and specific denial of the charges made against them, and was signed by A. Oakey Hall, President of the board of supervisors. O'Gorman next read the demurrer served on counsel for plaintiffs, to the effect that plaintiffs have not legal capacity to sue; and the second complaint don't set out the facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action. The next affidavit, by Mayor Hall, was read. He states that among the allegations of plaintiffs are several to the effect, that he, as Mayor, is pecuniarily interested in the New York Printing Company, Manufacturing Stationers' Company, the Transcript and the Leader, and that he employed the same to his emolument against the law and against good taste. He protests against the impertinence and malicious spirit of said complaints, and declares he never has been and is not now, and does not expect to be, directly or indirectly, pecuniarily interested in said publications or companies, or has employed the same to his emolument. He asserts that since being mayor he has never received emolument or been interested in the payment of money from the treasury, except for former services as District Attorney, and his salary as commissioner of the sinking fund. He protests against the necessity of making this affidavit, and pronounces every allegation of, or inference from, the complaint, that he derived pecuniary benefit at the public expense, other than his salary as mayor, to be scandalous. The affidavit of Comptroller Connelly, denies that Jas. Ingersoll was a confidential agent for him or Tweed, or in any manner agent. Ingersoll's claims were made out in the usual form, certified, and paid by deponent without any suspicion of their being fradulent, irregular or exorbitant. Deponent makes the like statement in relation to the claim presented by A. J. Garry, Keyser & Co., and J. W. Smith.

MAINE.

Election News.

PORTLAND, 11.—Nine towns give Perham 486 majority. The same towns last year gave 305 of a Democratic majority. This includes Bangor, where the Republicans gain largely, the Democratic candidate last year being a resident. Androscoggin county goes Republican by 1,200 majority, against 500 last year.

FOREIGN NEWS.

GREAT BRITAIN.

Various.

LONDON, 11.—The strike at Newcastle is virtually defeated. At least half the usual number of operatives are now at work, and the full complement will be obtained within a fortnight.

Napoleon arrived at Torquay this morning, and was received with much enthusiasm.

Late advices from Rio Janeiro show that the discussion in the Brazilian Legislature, on the clauses of the emancipation bill, had terminated, but the measure will not probably become a law during the present session.

FRANCE.

The Evacuation.

PARIS, 11.—Thiers proposes to the Assembly to take a recess from the 17th inst. to the 1st of November.

It is now decided that the evacuation shall commence at Fort Charenton, which will be first delivered to the French by the German commander.

Francis Joseph and Episcopacy.

The Emperor Francis Joseph has written a letter, expressing his disapproval of the attitude of the Episcopacy.

Charles Gustavus, of Sweden, was besieging Prague, when a boor of most extraordinary visage demanded admittance into his tent; and being allowed entrance, offered by way of amusing the King, to devour a whole hog of one hundred pound weight in his presence. The old General Konningsmark, who stood by the King's side, and who, soldier as he was, had not got rid of the prejudice of his child' ood, hinted to his royal master that the peasant ought to be burned as a sorcerer. "Sir," said the fellow, irritated at the remark, "if your Majesty will make but that old gentleman take off his sword and spurs I will eat him immediately before I begin the hog." General Konningsmark (who had, at the head of a body of soldiers, performed wonders against the Austrians, and who was looked upon as one of the bravest men of the age,) could not stand this proposal, accompanied as it was by a most hideous and preternatural expansion of the frightful peasant's jaws. Without uttering a word, the veteran suddenly turned round, ran out of the court, and did not think himself safe till he had arrived at his quarters, where he remained about four and twenty hours locked up securely, before he got rid of the panic which had so severely affected him.

Advices from Berlin state that after the acquisition of such vast numbers of rifles and cannon as the last war yielded to Prussia, it turns out that there is absolutely no room for storing them, especially as the infantry is to receive a new kind of fire-arm. To get rid of some of this unprofitable wealth, Government has determined to part with it to its new friends in the east of Asia, and Japan has made the beginning by purchasing 80,000 rifles. In Japan, according to Prussian accounts, an army is forming on the Prussian system, and to this the 80,000 breech-loaders will prove very acceptable.
