THE laying of stone blocks at the foundation of East Temple and First South streets is progressing in a steady and satisfactory manner, while similar work is being pushed on the temple street elsewhere.

THE motion of a citizen north's political party has already been quietly formed for the fall campaign by the manipulators of that element which constantly seeks to throw the Democrats of Davidson. The leaders of the enterprise organization are now believed they will be able to "carry the house" but their purpose is, that soon as the "swing of compromise" and and the secure representation in the municipal government.

NEWS FROM THE ORIENT.

A Russian Corvette Wrecked and Nine Lives Lost.

The North Pacific steamer Tacoma, from Hongkong, May 6th and from Yokohama May 17th, arrived at Victoria, B. C., on Thursday, this morning, with ninety-six Japanese and forty-three Chinese for that port. She had a full cargo of tea, smooth tea and 325 sealskins from the schooner Arestas. Some of the passengers were returning from the East wnthher they had been in search of health.

When the Tacoma left Yokohama the Victoria schooners Amazonia, Arestas and Esmeralda were there, the Arctic being at Hakodate and the rest out sealing. The Hawaiian steamer Alexander has 1500 seins and another, probably the Henry Dendis, over 1500.

About the middle of May the Russian corvette Nilas wnntashore on the Corean coast near Gensan. Nine lives were lost. The vessel's bottom was badly damaged and she seem disappeared.

The Japanese ship Kasuraga Kan, dispatched to investigate the movements of sealers, reports that stories of their depredations are greatly exaggerated. Their cruiser does not lead them in pursuit of seals in the territorial waters of Japan, as they turn off in the direction of Behring sea. The crews of vessels are rough and unscrupulous, and cause annoyance to the inhabitants along the coast.

The news that the Geary law was sustained caused no excitement in China, and was a subject of discussion only among the merchants who read the English newspapers and engage in the shipment of Chinese to America.

The laying of the cable from Nagasaki to the Golo islands has been commenced.

THE ALABAMA MOBS.

What They Did in the Case of the Mormon Missionaries.

ACT OF COURAGEOUS FRIENDS.

The Elders Counsel.—Instructions Given to Missionaries and Care for Their Welfare.

Elder J. G. Kimball, president of the Southern States mission, some days ago received the following interesting communication regarding the recent mobbing of Elders in Alabama, and also the instructions under which the missionaries are proceeding. He says: On reaching Logan on Friday evening, I received a letter direct from the office at Chattanooga, dated May 17th, which explains in detail the dispatch received from Athens, Ga., stating that four Elders had been mobbed, and perhaps killed. The telegram was partially correct, as the following report explains:

"Two more were organized during the last ten days. The first mob was organized in Smith county, Tenn. The Elders were requested to leave their quarters in evening approached, and in doing so the mob were unable to find them, so dispersed without carrying out their wicked plans.

"The second mob, however, were more successful. Elders Miner and Lefkarn had been filling appointments at a small hotel on the line between Etowah and St. Clair counties, and had received a warning not to hold any more meetings. Some time after this they were passing that way, and the postmaster, all clerks of the Elders, persuaded them, contrary to their feelings, and in opposition to counsel given, "to make an appointment at the store place. They consented, and about one hundred people congregated together, and a meeting was held. Next morning a messenger hurriedly approached the post office and stated that a mob was organized, about one hundred strong.

"The postmaster instructed the Elders to remain at the house. He go tered around nine five of the citizens, and went down the road a short distance, prepared to defend the Elders. The mob was met by these staunch friends, and a retreat made to comply with the demands to give the Elders up. The two parties wrangled and parleyed for sometime, and seeing that the friends were determined, a compromise was reached. The Elders, agreeable to the demands of the mob, promised to vacate, which they did, and were escorted danger."

Demonstrations of the above kind are quite common in isolated localities in the Southern States at this season of the year owing to revivals and protracted meetings. The people are kindly disposed and very hospitable, ministers or clergymen, so called, awaken feelings of bitterness, and the poor ignorant people think they are doing God's service.

We have continually counseled—and have also written a circular letter of instructions to the same effect, and mailed one to every Elder in the mission—the missionaries to at once, and without delay, when warned by a representative of a city, village, neighborhood, or county, to leave and not return unless invited or instructed to do so by the president of the conference; also, to avoid debates, unless challenged, to not argue except with kindness and love, and show all to respect others' opinions.

We further advise all to use the months of July and August in visiting the Saints and remaining closely among their friends. No Elder is permitted to travel alone. At the office in Chattanooga we receive a report from each conference once a week. The presidents of conferences receive a report once a week from each pair of Elders. We have, also, a correct post office address of each Elder throughout the mission.

A strict watch is kept as to the health of missionaries, and if sick they are either transferred to healthier localities, or at once released. Our authority and power reaches no further. We regret very much that such reports are circulated and parents' hearts almost broken, for it causes a fear to creep into the minds of our people and a prejudice is thus engendered against the southern people.

The Elders have the faith enjoyed by our fathers and are brave. They are in the hands of God and He will care for them. Our mission is in a flourishing condition, nearly every conference reports baptisms and new converts. The prospects are very bright indeed.

I write the foregoing explanation for the benefit of fathers, mothers, relatives and friends of our Elders. Should anything happen, which is possible, we trust our people will believe we are awake to our duties and are caring for our beloved brethren.

PROVO.

M. I. Association Conference.—Festival.—Silver Discussion.—Divorce.—Recede From Drowning.—Diphtheria.

Regular Correspondence.

PROVO, June 3.—The general Y. M. M. I. A. conference convened at the Utah Stake Tabernacle in this city on Saturday at 10:30 a. m. The morning session was devoted principally to the answering, by representatives of several of the stakes, of the following questions:

1. What is the comparative condition of your association?
2. What does your association need?
3. How many of your ward associations are ready for part II of the Manual?
4. Why has there been no general response to the City cost time?
5. To what extent has your association taking advantage of the normal training class lessons?
6. How many of your association are composed of young men?
7. What special advantage has the missionary work been to your stake?
8. Are your stake and ward organizations working in harmony with and recognized as helps to the Priesthood?

The associations generally were reported to be in better condition than ever before. Very few of them were ready to take up part II of the Manual, preferring to continue their labors for a time yet with part I. The reason assigned for the non-payment of the 50 cents fund were various, among them being full tithing members instead of young men and negligence of officers. The work of missionaries was recognized as a great help, and in every instance it was reported that the associations were working harmoniously with the local Priesthood.

The afternoon session was partially devoted to hearing the reports of M. I. A. entertainments, which were of a favorable nature. Elder G. H. Brimhall spoke in regard to man's free agency, more especially in relation to mutual improvement work. Choice melodies and pertinent conditions. We have our free agency to choose what course shall we take, but we cannot choose what the results of that act are. It behooves us then to attend well to nothing worthy of our time. Hence the new terms, "Young Men's Mutual Improvement Association." Association—the word denotes equality and comparable skill. Improvement—it implies progressing. Mutual—we are come together as a band of brothers. Young Men's—that does not mean children nor young men; not to draw the lines too closely, those from about fourteen to about forty-five. The meeting was closed by a few remarks by Elder Edward Partridge and President Joseph F. Smith.

The time on Sunday forenoon was occupied by President Joseph Smith. He explained that the M. I. A. did not usurp any of the authority of the Priesthood, but as with the Relief society and Primary association, was designed as an aid to the Priesthood. The special mission of the M. I. A. was the training of young men and women in the principles of the Gospel and qualifying them to become honorable men and women, and useful workers in the kingdom of God. The growing evils of Sabbath breaking and profanity were referred to. The taking of the name of Deity in vain, especially, received the attention of President Smith. If there was one sin in the world at present it was that the people did not honor God. Elders in the gospel frequently meet the name of Deity to evil. Whenever there was occasion to use the name of our Heavenly Father, it should not be thoughtlessly done, but with love and reverence. The young people were further reminded that all will be held accountable for every idle word that is spoken. They were urged to be careful not to violate the least of God's commands, for wickedness grows rapidly, and one has rejected of, darkness will come upon us.

Elder F. M. Lyman was the first speaker in the afternoon. He heartily endorsed the remarks of President Smith, and added some additional suggestions in regard to profanity. He also spoke upon the subject of marriage. It was impossible for men to obtain salvation and exaltation without marriage. As man's life was but a short span, he should not delay marriage too long. He thought young people should be married at least by the time they were 24. A man cannot make a success of life until he is married. He may not then, but he cannot before. Marriages should be for eternity and not simply for the brief span of life. He did recognize only those marriages which are for eternity, and the children whom are not born of marriages for eternity are not legitimate heirs of God. The young people were urged to carefully guard their virtue. The illicit sleeping among young people was denounced in emphatic terms, as being the fertile cause of immorality. Rising should not be indulged in until after marriage.

President George Q. Cannon related an instance of the serious consequence of taking the name of the Lord in vain, and urged the young people to be very careful in the use, not only of the name of Deity, but of the Savior. He referred also to sexual sin. He has observed that unless persons who were guilty of this sin repented, they invariably apostatized. The young men were informed that there was plenty of room for their ambition in the Kingdom of God, if their ambition was a proper one; that is, not to hold office and occupy high positions, but to be useful and work for the advancement of this work. The advancement of women was referred to. It has been called women's day. She has now the right to hold property and possesses many social and legal privileges which she did not possess a short time since. The young ladies were urged to use these privileges wisely and not even to go too far. They are not entitled to hold the Priesthood, and it is not their prerogative to dedicate dwelling houses and so on. In conclusion, President Cannon referred to the educational status of the day. Institutions of warning should be established in Zion. It was not safe for young men to go East to study unless they were thoroughly grounded in the principles of the Gospel. The text books and theories contained truth and error so closely mingled that it was difficult to separate them, and erroneous ideas might be fastened which it would require a life time to eradicate.

In the evening a session was held for the presentation of reports, sustaining of officers and the transaction of business connected with the association.

BRIGHAM.

Tool Crushed—Romantic Marriage.—Wool Clip.—Cruelty to Animals.—Notes.

(Regular Correspondence.)

BRIGHAM, June 3.

This week, Sol-man Olson's ranch north of Point Lookout has been a scene of busy activity. Nine plowmen, with as many teams, have been actively engaged making the land fly. They are breaking twenty acres a day.

The excavation for the proposed new meeting house for the Fourth ward was begun Wednesday, so we were informed by O. N. Redd. The people of the quarter of the city will eagerly watch for building, lest by lack. They are in need of the commodious place of worship this building will afford.

A decidedly romantic marriage was solemnized last Saturday out in the quiet little town of Snowville, this county. The groom is a widower and the bride a widow; he is from Box Elder county, Idaho, she is from the plains of Kansas. The two had corresponded for a year, but had never beheld each other as they met to their marriage. Notwithstanding all the ice had to be finally melted now they are said to be as happy as two young doves cooing in their nest.

Last week C. W. Knudson got one foot badly crushed under a wagon wheel. While walking alongside of the vehicle he slipped and his foot was caught under the wheel. There were nearly two tons of material on the wagon. Mr. Knudson was fortunate in escaping with no more serious an injury.

Yesterday, ex-Mayor J. M. Jensen stated that the shearing season is now well almost way in Box Elder county. Eight flocks, aggregating 20,000 head, are being sheared beyond Rocky Dugway, in the mountains east of Brigham. There are four more flocks in the vicinity of the Corinne flats, west of here. Nearly 100 shearers are employed at these places. They are flowing about 6000 sheep a day. Each of these corrals will handle some 20,000 head, the four aggregating 80,000. This shearing season. The clip will average 8 pounds the sheep, which makes the total yield from the 320,000 sheep being handled in this vicinity amount to 1,280,000 pounds. At 12 cents a pound the value of this wool is $153,600. Tens of thousands of sheep not herein in these estimates are being sheared further west in our county. The low price of wool is making our sheepmen look rather glum.

A complaint of an unusual character has been made to Marshal Hudson this week. The charge is that several boys of this city are in the habit of taking frequent excursions down into the pastures west of town, where the several thousand milch cows of this city graze by day. The purpose of these little jaunts is to practice shooting with their 22-caliber rifles. But instead of choosing legitimate targets they select out the cows with largest ears and best looking tails and vie with each other to see who can put the most little bullet holes through them. The boys have been apprehended in this pernicious practice and roundly upbraided by persons by. The marshal now has the goes in hand and will make the kids suffer if he catches them engaged in their cruel sport.
