EDITORIAL NOTES.

A Governor and Congressman-at-large are to be elected in Oregon on the 5th of June.

Professor T. W. Tobin made an address in Louisville the other night in which he demonstrated that flour is about as explosive as gunpowder. The absence of humidity in the atmosphere of a flour mill is, he said, favorable for an explosion.

It is said that the Canyon Diablo bridge, on the Atlantic and Pacific Railroad, north of Prescott, Arizona, is the highest bridge in the world, with one exception. From the bottom of the canyon to the centre of the bridge the distance is about 230 feet.

A new State House at Albany, which has already cost $4,000,000, and is likely to cost $20,000,000, shows unmistakable signs of having settled, and a committee has unanimously reported that the whole matter should undergo an examination at the hands of experts.

A few years ago there was not a single bicycle in the United States. Now according to the New York Herald. there are over 12,000. Several large manufactories are building the machines, and they are so overwhelmed with orders that any one who wants a bicycle not found in the small stocks now on hand, has to wait for it one or two months.

Look out for bogus butter. The manufacture of oleomargarine in St. Louis has been investigated by the board of health, and proof was obtained of the use of fat from horses and dogs. The oleomargarine factories of New York have a producing capacity of 116,000,000 pounds annually, while the production of dairy butter in the State is only 111,000,000 pounds.

Agent Llewellyn, among the Mescalero Apaches sends this dispatch to the Indian Commissioner; "The starvation of the Indians at this agency will begin July 1st. Nothing short of an overwhelming military force can make them starve in peace and quiet. Therefore, I recommend that the control of the agency be transferred to the army before the process begins, as by this means much trouble may be saved." Llewellen may be a Welshman, but he talks pretty plain English.

"A GREAT WRONG TO BE REMEDIED.

THE American Register, a very able paper published at Washington, and an advocate of true democratic principles, has some severe things to say upon the election returning boards, which were part of the reconstruction system in the Southern States, "to enable Republican partisans to change and control the results of the elections of the people in those States." The Register shows that by the means of similar trickery the defeated Republican candidate for President at the election of 1876 was declared elected, and he was installed in the Presidential chair, and says the question is now, "When and how can this great wrong be remedied and the supremacy of the people vindicated?"

We suggest that it never can be remedied while such measures as the Edmunds bill, establishing a returning board for Utah, can be enacted, scores of Democrats sitting by without raising a voice or planting a vote against it. They did not and could not vote in favor of the iniquity; but they had not the manhood to vote against its passage, and sat neutral and mute.

The commission to regulate elections in Utah, so as to take the issue out of the hands of the people, is authorized on the same principle—or rather defiance of principle—by which the returning boards in the South and the electoral commission were framed. Only, the former is endorsed with more arbitrary powers and with less appearance of regard for the rights of citizens than the others were. The Utah commissioners may give a certificate, which is the only evidence of election, or not, as it suits them, and are not even required to decide in favor of the person receiving the greatest number of votes, but of the person who "appears" to have been elected.

If the Register and other democratic persons and papers wish to "right the great wrongs" that have been perpetrated, let them be ready to raise their voices and use their influence against a repetition thereof, no matter against whom the wickedness is designed. The "Mormons" have rights under the Constitution, as well as other citizens, and when they are assailed under cover of congressional law, there is as much principle involved as though it were the people of the Southern or the Northern States who were to be affected. Wrong cannot be made right by the unpopularity or numerical weakness of the people sought to be injured. Let the Register take this matter to heart, as well as the questions of the returning boards and the electoral commission.

A CURIOUS AND INTERESTING WORK.

PLATO, the Greek philosopher, who lived four hundred years before Christ, left at his death an unprinted work on the history of Atlantis, the island in the western world where civilized man first flourished—which had been partially described by Solon, his ancestor, from traditions he had learned in conversation with Egyptian priests and sages. Plato's work has generally been considered merely legendary and mythical. But a volume has just been published by the Harpers, with the purpose of demonstrating that Plato's story is substantially true; that a remnant of an Atlantic continet was known to the ancients as Atlantis; that it was the true antedeluvian world, the site of the Garden of Eden described in the Bible, and of the sacred gods of mythology; that the gods and goddesses of the ancient nations were exaggerated and confused representations of real persons on Atlantis; that it was the original seat of the Aryan, Semitic and Turaman races; that it perished by a convulsion of nature and was sunk in the depths of the ocean, only a few persons escaping who gave to the world the traditions concerning the flood, etc.

Plato's story is given in full. Then its probability is discussed and testimony is adduced from the sea and from the flora and fauna of the old world as seen in fossils recently discovered. The deluge as described in the Bible, and the various traditions of the flood are pressed into the service. A mass of evidence is collected from many nations, ancient men's inscriptions, hieroglyphics, relics, etc., from the eastern and western hemispheres, the pyramids of Egypt and of Central America; religious emblems, coins, pottery, weapons, implements, etc., in great number, with illustrations, are brought forward in a very interesting manner, and a strong argument is built up to establish the propositions laid down.

We do not pretend to accept the views of the author, Ignatius Donnelly, neither shall we attempt to deny or controvert them. The book is well worth reading, and contains a vast amount of useful information. Apart from the theory wich it is intended to substantiate, and as a literary work, it is worthy of great commendation.

SEX IN MINERAL VEINS.

THE London Mining Journal publishes an article from the pen of J. Van Cleve Phillips, giving an account of investigations based on the idea of sex in mineral veins. The writer was led to his theory from reflecting on the subject of sex in plants. He made critical examinations of the lead fields of Missouri, Wisconsin and the Upper Mississippi. He found that the east and the west veins had regular cubes, the north and south veins had the edges of the cubes truncated, and the horizontal veins had the solid angles of the cubes cut off or truncated. The ores from the clay were amorphous, and this form of crystallization was duplicated in each lead basin.

The theory he deduced from the facts set forth was:

"That the north and south veins were the positive or male veins, and the east and west the negative or female veins. The north and south veins were few in number, the east and west veins many, and the north and south veins always pointed towards the basins of the east and west veins. This law is noticed in the animal and vegetable kingdoms, in the sheep and goat families, and in the cherry and apple trees, the males being in the minority. In applying this law to iron ores we suppose the magnetic ores are the positive or male ores, other varieties the negative or female ores. In the silver fields, the Comstock, being a north and south vein, would be a positive or male vein, and the east and west veins of New Mexico and old Mexico the negative or female veins."

Mr. Phillips feels assured that this law of sex, which by the by appears to be polygynous, obtains in the silver and gold-bearing fields, and applies to all the families of veins which, as a rule, are "aggregated around a central knob or boofa, which forms the water shed of individual families of veins," and that by close observation the prospector and explorer may profit by its application.

Frank James.

ST. LOUIS, 29.—The Post-Dispatch will publish a statement this afternoon showing that Governor Crittenden has been in negotiation with Frank James for the past ten days for his surrender, and that that noted outlaw will be pardoned within a week. Sheriff Timberlake and Police Commissioner Craig of Kansas City and an attorney representing the James family, accompanied by Frank James and three of his friends, were in St. Louis on Friday and Saturday. It is stated that Frank James has nominally surrendered to Sheriff Timberlake under a flag of truce, and that Governor Crittenden has promised full and unconditional pardon to the famous outlaw. Sheriff Timberlake was registered here at the hotel under an assumed name, but was recognized by a Post-Dispatch reporter, and both Police Commissioner Craig, and the attorney admitted that negotiations were pending for Frank James' pardon. They were in St. Louis for the express purpose of meeting Governor Crittenden on his return from New York, but the latter passed right through to Jefferson City. They further stated that the delay in the negotiations is occasioned by the friends of Frank James insisting that full pardons should also be secured from the governors of Minnesota and Texas where the outlaw is under the ban of the law and steps are now being taken to that end. These pardons are necessary for fear Crittenden's successor might deliver up Frank James on requisition from either of the said States. There is scarcely a doubt that the negotiations will be successfully consummated.

Consumed by Lightning.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., 29.—During the storm to-day the Rochdale woolen mills, owned by the estate of Elias Titus, were struck by lightning and totally destroyed. Loss estimated at $50,000; well insured.

GREENFIELD, Mass., 29.—A tornado passed over here last night severely injuring several persons and partially wrecking a number of residences and barns.

After Vanderbilt's Money.

NEW YORK, 29.—Mrs. Mary A. Lebanberger, sister to the late Cornelius A. Vanderbilt, will contest his will upon the ground that it was fraudulently procured by Terry and others who were left property.

Sensible but Expensive.

NEW YORK, 29.—The Graphic's Washington corresponden says: A St. Louis gentleman named H. R. Helper, has a bill before Congress providing for the appointment of commissioners to go to Central and South America and inquire into the commercial condition of certain States with a view to building a railroad to reach them. Belford, of Colorado, introduced the bill. This is a small beginning for a tremendous project which Helper hopes to see carried through within ten years. He hopes to utilize the information obtained by the commissioner for the construction of a railroad beginning at the boundary of Guatemala and the Gulf of Mexico, to continue southeast through Central America into South America through Columbia, Equador, Bolivia, Peru, and into the Argentine Republic, passing along the eastern slope of the Andes. He would thus connect with the Mexican system of railroads in progress of construction, and thence to the United States, making a direct line of railway from St. Paul to the boundary of Patagonia, some 8,000 miles in extent. Helper claims this is the only way to solve the problem of the balance of trade with South America, now largely against us. For 1880 the balance against the United States was $116,000,000. The projector thinks that from the manner in which the Pacific railroads have diverted trade from the Isthmus, that this line would take the commerce now carried in English ships, and thus the question of commercial domination of South America would be settled. The bill has been referred to the committee on foreign affairs.

Stopping Hebrew Emigration.

The World's London special says: I hear from Constantinople from a source not likely to be misinformed on such a subject, that the Sultan refuses to permit the Russian and Roumanian Hebrews flying from the most horrible persecution, to emigrate to Palestine in large numbers, or to form permanent colonies there. Many families are ready to proceed to the land of promise, but the Turkish consuls at Odessa and Bucharest refuse them passports. Two hundred families of emigrants are now in Constantinople, literally at the point of starvation.

The inhumanity to the Jewish refugees now at Constantinople daily becomes more marked and inflicts heavy sufferings on these helpless miserable people. English influence at Constantinople, as I need hardly say, is dead to all intents and purposes, but possibly a few words from the United States government might induce the Sultan to show some mercy to the scores of wretched families now likely to perish at his palace gates of hunger. It is certainly horrible that in this century of alleged civilization men, women and children are driven from their homes by a persecution as cowardly, cruel and revolting as anything recorded of the worst days of the middle ages or of the Indian massacres in the new world, should find no help or shelter anywhere.

Threatened Destruction.

In consequence of a report that an attempt would be made to destroy the government magazines at Purfleet, containing 50,000 barrels of gunpowder. The garrison there has been strengthened and the public have been warned to keep to the main road.

At present the Union Pacific locomotive department has at the shops in Omaha nearly 700 men, or about 80 less than there were in February. The car shops have fram 700 to 800 men, being double the number that they had a year and a half ago.
