Mines Around Salt Lake City.

Seated around the bar-room stove—for it is always cold at night in Alta—I asked of several miners how many mines they supposed there might be within fifty miles of Salt Lake City. * *

These miners and others whom I met in other districts agreed on the average with this broad statement. There are around Salt Lake more than 30,000 locations, including working mines and prospects, of which over a thousand are in operation, employing more than twenty first-class and several small furnaces, and ten thousand men in operating the whole.

The value of production is over $6,000,000 annually. To whose benefit does this enormous wealth accrue? Not to the working miners, who are always "prospecting" and always poor, but to rich capitalists and thriving speculators. Doubtless the mountains are full of silver and lead, and if capital could be obtained to work all these thirty thousand prospects and a hundred thousand more which might be found, silver would so glut the world's markets, that its purchasing value would be materially reduced. But only a few of the largest mines are worked to their full capacity, while most of even those are used simply for stock-jobbing purposes.

The proceedings cited in regard to the Emma apply to many of the rest. A mine is bought for a few thousand dollars, and by trickery or false representation is "put on the market" for hundreds of thousands or millions, which, if operated on the basis of its true value, would yield paying dividends. With the present fraudulent system it pays nothing to the deluded purchasers. But the mines will all contribute largely to the prosperity of Utah and especially to that of Salt Lake City, by bringing in population and capital, and enhancing the value of real estate. The safest speculation is not in mines, but in houses and lands.

On the next day, under the pilotage of Mr. Sweeney, I climbed the hills, looked into a hundred small holes or "prospects," talked with the miners, who in their poverty were living on rich hopes for the future, and then, my previous experience in gold mines at Cariboo serving as a warning to be careful, prepared to leave Little Cottonwood without yielding to the temptation of silver.—The Mormon Country, by John Codman.

WASHINGTON NOTES.

In the House to-day Mr. Beck introduced a bill, which was referred to the Ways and Means Committee, to authorize the Commissioner of Internal Revenue to compromise cases arising under the internal revenue laws in which penalties and forfeitures may have been incurred without fraudulent intent. The bill provides that whenever, for an alleged violation of the internal revenue laws, any person who shall be charged with having incurred any fine, penalty, or forfeiture, shall present his petition to the judge of the district in which the alleged violation occurred, or in which the property is situated, setting forth truly and particularly the facts and circumstances of the case, and praying for relief, such judge shall, if the case in his judgment requires, proceed to inquire, in a summary manner, into the circumstances of the case at such reasonable time as may be fixed by him for that purpose, of which the district attorney and internal revenue collector shall be notified by the petitioner, in order that they may attend and show cause why the petition should be refused. Section 2 provides that the summary investigation may be held before the judge to whom the petition is presented, or if he shall so direct, before any U. S. commissioner or internal revenue collector for such district, and the facts appearing thereon shall be stated and annexed to the petition, and, together with a certified copy of the evidence, transmitted without cost or expense to the petitioner, to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue who shall thereupon have power to mitigate or remit such fine, penalty or forfeiture, or remove such disability or any part thereof, if, in his opinion, the same shall have been increased without wilful negligence or any intention of fraud in the person or persons incurring the same, and to direct the prosecution, if any shall have been instituted for the recovery thereof, to cease and be discontinued upon such terms or conditions as he may deem reasonable and just.—Washington Star, May 11.

RED MEN IN HEAVEN.—When Mr. Commissioner Taylor told Little Raven, chief of the Arapahoes, something about heaven and hell, and that "all good men, white and red, would go to heaven, and all bad ones to hell," the chief laughed heartily in the face of the commissioner. On being asked the cause of his laughter, Little Raven said—"I was much pleased with what you said of heaven and hell, and the characters that would go to each after death; it is a good notion, heap good; and if all the whites are like the ones I know, when Indian go to heaven but few whites will trouble him there; pretty much all go to the other place."

THE WAR-SHIP OF THE PERIOD.—The last addition to the British navy, the Inflexible, seems to reach the limit of the weight and power which it is possible to float. The armored part of the vessel is 110 feet long and seventy-five feet wide, rising ten feet out of the water. Attached to this, but completely submerged, is a ball of the ordinary form with a ram bow. This is the fighting part of the ship. On the top of it is an unarmored structure rising twenty feet out of the water which gives shapeliness, seaworthiness and comfortable quarters for the men and officers. The armored part carries plates of iron twenty-four inches in thickness. The vessel is divided into 127 water tight compartments so that she could not be destroyed by torpedoes. She carries four eighty ton guns in turrets. She will steam fourteen knots an hour.—Ex.

The JEWELRY is selected with the utmost care, both for beauty and excellence. The WATCHES are unsurpassable both for strength and good going.
All goods are warranted.
Appended are testimonials from most reliable gentlemen well known in the Territory:
"The Watch I bought of you in 1872 goes most excellently, never varies a minute; has never had any repairs to it since I got it, although it has been exposed to very hard usage.
A. C. BROWN,
Brakeman U. S. R. R."
"The Watch I bought of you last year has proved to be the best article I ever had, having lost it twice in the water, once at the depth of six feet, besides a great many other hardships, and stands all with perfect ease, being always right to time.
JOHN SANDS, Camp Douglas."
"The Watch I bought from you is all that can be desired. As a timekeeper it beats anything I ever had, and stands the jilting and rough usage without the least variation.
