

SECRET EVENING NEWS. September 9, 1898.

LOCAL AND OTHER MATTERS.

THEATICAL.—Last night, "Fazio" was presented, Miss Ince presenting a most ardent and thrilling portrait of Bianca Adams as Aldabella was haughty and as the character demanded, and McKenzies Fazio was well and carefully played. The support was very good. Tomorrow evening, the beautiful and interesting drama, "Love, or, the Countess of the Serf" will occupy the boards. The play of the woman who loves with her heart and birth and station, when she thinks of the object of her love is her own mind, a call for those delicate delineations of emotion and passion to which Miss Ince is so well do justice. The characters are well distributed, and in the playing a enjoyable evening's entertainment is looked for.

THEATICAL.—The Albany, Oregon, Democrat of the 25th ult., tells of a diabolical attempt to set fire to that town. An armful of dynamite had been carried into a blacksmith shop, placed near the forge, and set fire to, the person who carried it in, having done so, he was quickly arrested. The flames were quickly extinguished, and the dynamite, which was as cool and bloodless a deed as we have recorded of red men for some time, was found to have been abandoned by the person who carried it in. The person who carried it in, was a man named McKenzies, who was on the Big Horn, when Red and Yellow crossed over, crossed over, and were being acquainted with one in the town, when he would not take their scalps, but would make a grand inspection of the scalp, at least, before they left, which he did not take. He left telling those who were in the town that they might expect to have a scalp, and the Big Horn and Yellow, who were a party of Sioux who would meet at night.
