HYDE IS A CANDIDATE.

Suit Against John Beck of the Bullion-Beck Tunnel Company.

A RESTRAINING ORDER IS ASKED FOR

To Prevent Defendant from Voting 224,000 Shares of Stock Against Alonzo E. Hyde—Emil Levin's Case.

Alonzo E. Hyde filed a suit in the Third district court today against John Beck, in which it is asked that a restraining order issue preventing the defendant from voting 224,000 shares of the capital stock of Bullion-Beck Tunnel company against Hyde, who is a candidate for election as a director of the company.

The complaint alleges that in January, 1897, Hyde transferred to Beck about 44,000 shares of the capital stock of the Bullion-Beck Tunnel company, the consideration being $10,000, and the defendant giving his promissory note for the full amount.

It is then alleged that $5,000 of the amount is still due plaintiff. It is further set out that Beck is the owner of 224,000 shares of stock of the company, and in consideration of the sale the defendant agreed to vote shares in favor of plaintiff for director.

The annual meeting of the stockholders, it is alleged, occurs on June 27, and that Beck declares he will not vote stock for Hyde but for some other person and against plaintiff. Hyde prays for a restraining and mandatory order preventing Beck from voting the stock against him and commanding him to vote for plaintiff.

Judge Norrell issued an order making the case returnable Saturday, July 2nd.

Rawlins, Thurman, Hurd & Wedgewood are plaintiff's attorneys.

The company held its meeting this afternoon, at which Mr. Hyde was regularly re-elected and elected to the directorate. This, it is thought, will settle the matter out of court.

GIVEN ONE MORE CHANCE.

Emil Levin Narrowly Escapes Being Sent to the Reform School.

Emil Levin, a thirteen-year-old boy with a decidedly bad record, was before Judge Norrell today for the third time since last November, in order to show cause why he should not be committed to the State Industrial school for reformation. That Levin is not now an inmate of the last named institution is due to County Attorney Van Cott, who interceded in his behalf and succeeded in getting the court to rescind its order of commitment.

Judge Norrell said that the boy had made so many promises in the past that he hardly felt like trusting him any more. His honor therefore ordered that he be confined in the State Industrial school until he had attained the age of twenty-one years.

Both the boy and his mother here commenced a crying match when County Attorney Van Cott intervened and pleaded for the little fellow, persuading Judge Norrell to see that he kept out of bad company. The court then rescinded its order, but refused to dismiss the case.

Levin will now be required to do penance each day in the county attorney's office. Mr. Van Cott told him to be on hand at nine tomorrow morning, and to bring his lunch with him. "All right," said Levin, and wiping his eyes with a dark colored handkerchief, he walked out of the court room with a broad smile on his face.

SCOTT ON TRIAL AGAIN.

Colored Man Charged with Cutting Out the Eye of John O. Gotthard.

Now that the McMillen case is out of the way, Judge Norrell and a jury immediately took up the case of the State against McHenry Scott, charged with mayhem. Mr. Putnam appears for the prosecution and J. H. Hamilton, Esq., for the defendant.

Scott, who is a colored man, is charged in the information with cutting out the eye of John O. Gotthard, a traveling man, with a razor in this city on the 6th of last March.

The defendant was tried at the last term of court, resulting in the jury disagreeing.

Liability of an Indebtedness.

Judge Cherry and a jury have been engaged today trying the case (on appeal) of B. K. Bloch & Co. vs Thomas Werner et al. Keebs & Hoppaugh appear for plaintiff and S. McDowell, Esq. for the defendants.

This is a suit brought to recover $294.32 alleged to be due C. C. Merritt from T. Werner & Co.

B. K. Bloch & Co., judgment creditors of Merritt's, attached the claim and sought to apply the money upon the judgment against Merritt.

T. Werner & Co. deny any indebtedness to Merritt and this suit is to establish the liability.

Frank Forrester Resigns.

Frank Forrester the obliging and efficient stenographer in County Attorney Van Cott's office has resigned to accept a more lucrative position with the law firm of Dey & Street in the Scott building. Frank is an all round good fellow. He has made a host of friends since he first entered the county's employ, which is several years ago, all of whom wish him abundant success wherever his lot may be cast. He will be succeeded by Mr. H. K. Cobb.

Verdict in Favor of Defendants.

The jury in the case of Amanda J. White vs N. R. Waterman et al has found the issues for the defendant. Plaintiff brought suit to recover a piano, valued at $600, which was taken by defendants in default of certain regular payments.

A New Citizen.

Charles Johnson, a native of Sweden, now of Tooele county, was admitted to citizenship by Judge Norrell today.

PROVO.

PROVO, UTAH, - JUNE 27, 1898.

More About Maxwell.

Sheriff Storrs is doing everything in his power to find out the identity of the bank robber who was shot at Springville. He is sending out pictures of the dead bandit as well as the prisoner, Maxwell. The following letter was received from Sheriff Preece of Uintah county, who thinks he knows the dead man, and tells more of the notorious Maxwell:

Vernal, June 25, 1898.

George A. Storrs, Sheriff Utah County:

Dear Sir:—I received your letter of the 15th inst., also the photo of Maxwell and the dead man and will endeavor to tell you all I know about the two. The dead man, as near as I can find out, was a Mexican by the name of Polato. He stole some horses here four or five years ago. He had a partner with him, whom they captured but the Mexican got away. There are two men here that positively identify the dead man as the same Mexican. I think it is a good job he is dead.

"Maxwell is known as a bad man in this country. He was in Laramie, Wyo., [illegible] the same time 'Dutch' Cassidy was there. He went by the name of 'Dick Carr' there. Some time in April Maxwell was captured by a sheriff up in Wyoming, near Lander, for stealing horses, and got away from the officer. He had a woman and little girl with him; I don't know whether it was his wife that he got here or not, I think it was.

"He went with a man by the name of Johnson some seven or eight weeks ago to Nebraska to sell some horses, and he got away with the money [illegible]. He also went by the name of Johnson himself at that time.

He did not come back to this country until about the time Matt Warner was in jail here. He was called then by the name 'Greenman.' You want to keep a close watch on him. He is a bad man and will try and get away from you. He will kill you if he gets a chance. He has got away from several sheriffs. His wife is now in Massachusetts, visiting relatives. That is what her brother told me, but I will try and find out more about him.

Respectfully Yours,

WILLIAM PREECE.

When showed the letter, Maxwell smiled, and denied that the dead man was a Mexican referred to, adding that his identity would always remain a mystery. When the man was first shot, several men who viewed his remains said that he undoubtedly was a Spaniard. Sheriff Storrs does not believe it to be Polato, the Mexican.

Fourth District Court.

Judge Dusenberry transacted the following probate business Saturday afternoon:

In the matter of the estate of Elbert Eastmond, deceased, the petition of final distribution was ordered, and final accounts approved. The administrator was discharged.

In the estate of Benjamin Wing, deceased, of Mapleton, after the hearing of evidence, letters of administration were granted to Joseph S. Wing, his bond being fixed at $1,500.

George Patten was appointed administrator of the estate of Mary Jane Patten, deceased, and his bonds was fixed at $600.

Julius Jensen Captured.

The escape of an inmate of the asylum, which was reported in Saturday's "News," is again safe within the walls of that institution. He turns out to be Julius Jensen, the man who assaulted a young lady in Salt Lake some time ago. The man was making good headway towards home when he was captured by the constable of Alpine, about twenty miles from Provo.

Notes and Personals.

George Lay, who was arrested some time ago, charged with assault upon one of the Manhattan boys, was Saturday afternoon found guilty.

Justice Booth this morning found Lewis [illegible]. The defendant handled his own case and kept two opposing attorneys busy offering objections.

Bert Hodson held the lucky number which drew the fine gold watch at the end of the first week's engagement of the Spooner Dramatic company.

The board of trustees of Benjamin awarded the building of the new district school house at that place to J. Mr. Heath of Spanish Fork, the lowest bidder was Ed. Snyder of Provo, whose bid was $675.

A large crowd of friends gathered at the Lake View meeting house yesterday to pay their last respects to the late Archie Bunnell, who was accidentally killed by falling down the winze of the Mammoth mine at Eureka, on Friday last.

Mary Worthington, an inmate of the insane asylum, who was committed last December had a hearing before Judge Dusenberry, who discharged her from that institution at once, under $100 bonds, which her husband furnished.

An elderly man entered the office of Ward & Sons Lumber company last Saturday, about noon, and after sitting there for a short time, fell over in a fit. The officers were notified and the man was taken to to the City hall, where he was given something to eat. He said that he had just walked from Sandy, and said he had nothing to eat in the evening.

FATHER OF FORTY CHILDREN.

Wonderful Record of a Connecticut Resident.

Levi Bradshaw who lives in the Sparks district of Killingly, Conn., is 59 years old and father of forty-one children, forty of whom are living. Bradshaw came from Canada. He has lived in this town about thirteen years. He was scarcely 21 when he married his first wife. Since then he has married twice. By his first wife he had six children, including twins. His second wife presented him with twenty-four children, half of whom were twins. His present wife has had eleven children. Most of the children have married, and the second generation has settled the old patriarch a round number of 200 grandchildren.

Bradshaw is a very little man. He speaks English with the French Canadian accent. He enjoys good health and says he is able to provide for his family yet. He scorns public charity, and although the family live plainly, they have always had food and clothing in sufficiency for their needs. The older children are scattered all over the country. They are well to do and thrifty. All of the Bradshaw's descendants are healthy. The old patriarch hopes to live long enough to see all his children and their children gathered in one grand family reunion.—New York World.

THRONE TO BE HAD CHEAP.

A South American "Kingdom" Without a King.

Antonian Aurelius, king of Araucania, the first and the last of his dynasty, had once his day of fame. He was the man who would be king, and for a short time he was one. Aurelius began life as an ambitious Frenchman; he ended it as a German, under the name of Herr Von Tounens—dying in great poverty at Marseilles—but for a brief period in the fifties he was king over the Araucanian Indians in South America. When Von Tounens founded his monarchy he found it necessary to have his court; so he traveled over to Europe and created his own orders and titles. Then he reigned till his court was broken up by the government of Chile, and Aurelius as a roi en exile returned to Marseilles.

And now M. Henri le Bulx, the French explorer, has found the court of Aurelius I still surviving among the Araucanian Indians, by whom the European ceremonial is administered with gravity and dignity. The titles and orders still remain, but the court is in a bad way of business and "lives chiefly by a primitive agriculture." Vacant thrones are not found every day. Any one desiring a kingly crown to gain should apply to M. le Bulx—present address, Patagonia.—Pall Mall Gazette.

At the suggestion of Mrs. Greenleaf, wife of the surgeon-in-chief of hospitals in the field, the Red Cross league has undertaken to start the collection of money for the purpose of a hospital ship for the troops at Manila. The plan is to raise the sum by popular subscription in all the states west of the Rockies and to present the ship to the United States government.

Mrs. Oliver Moore of Pleasant Valley, Ore., who is insane, Saturday poisoned her two children by putting strychnine in the milk. The unfortunate woman confessed that she had planned to kill the children and then commit suicide.

John Rhodes, a coal driver of East Las Vegas, N. M., shot his wife and then killed himself. Rhodes came home under the influence of liquor and commenced quarreling with his wife. He became abusive, and his wife rushed from the house, followed by Rhodes, who fired one shot at her, striking her in the side. He then turned the revolver on himself, killing himself instantly. It is thought his wife will die.

Private Oscar Kirkland, a Tennessee volunteer, lies at the point of death at San Francisco from a pistol wound accidentally inflicted by First Sergeant Williams, whose weapon exploded when he pulled the trigger to see how it worked. The bullet struck Kirkland in the groin and passed entirely through his body. After the accident Colonel Smith ordered that all pistols in the camp should be seized, and his instructions were carried out.

It was thought that the steamer Coptic from Hongkong and Yokohama via Honolulu would bring over the body of Capt. Charles V. Gridley, the commander of the Olympia, who died shortly after the battle of Manila bay, but it was learned Saturday from the officers of the Coptic that the remains had been cremated in Hongkong. The ceremony took place on May 7th and was marked by impressive scenes. The ashes were deposited in the Hongkong English cemetery to await the wishes of the relatives.

The New Era, of Blackfoot, Ida., says: A five-year-old boy by the name of Craig, was drowned in Snake River Sunday morning, about eight miles down the river on the west side. We are informed that his older brothers were drinking and, thinking it would be fun to get the little fellow drunk, did so. He was playing near the bank of the river after he was left alone and fell in. The last we heard from there his body had not been recovered. If justice could overtake these older brothers where would they go, if this report be true?

All the transports of the third Manila expedition except the Valencia are now in readiness to sail at a moment's notice, having their troops and supplies on board. Work on the Valencia is not yet completed and she may delay the departure of the other ships until Tuesday. That the vessels will all leave together was made evident when the First Dakota regiment was ordered to break camp Monday morning and march on board the Valencia. The exact time of the sailing of the fleet will not be known until after a conference between Generals McArthur and Merritt, when they expect to have positive orders from Washington.

After the departure of the North Dakota volunteers at noon today (Monday) and the arrival of the Wyoming artillery tonight, there will be left at Camp Merritt 10,229 soldiers, while 1,116 more are expected in scattered squads, completing the necessary number of recruits for all the commands in the army for the Philippines. Beside these troops the Fourth United States cavalry and other forces may be taken from the Presidio. It will require at least fifteen transports to carry these men, and as so many vessels are not now obtainable, the departure of the fourth expedition may be delayed.

MADE INSANE BY RICHES.

An American Waiter Becomes a Miser and Then a Lunatic.

Millionaires are envied, go wherever they will. Filthy lucre is worshiped in every corner of the globe, yet its possession is not invariably the blessing our poor neighbors would believe. Sudden accession to wealth produces unhappiness in hundreds of cases, and frequently it lodges the fortunate in the lunatic asylum.

A fortune of $22,000 was bequeathed to a poor Lancashire waiter by a relative, who years before had gone to Australia but was believed to have died abroad after landing, nothing having been heard of him from the date of his arrival. When the news reached the humble toiler he was so agitated that for some weeks the necessary business with the lawyer was postponed, he being totally unable to transact it. On recovery he went about in a dazed condition, exhibiting great distress when the money was mentioned, though confessing himself thankful for his good fortune.

Distrustful of banks, he kept hundreds of pounds about the house, and adding to his agitation by guarding his hoard in the most curious fashion. In the end he worked himself to a pitch so extreme that he was regarded in the village as a dangerous character, his sister having him taken away to insure the safety of his motherless children. He died in the asylum a few weeks ago, his chief amusement while there being the counting of imaginary money and binding his money in old scraps of paper, believing them to be documents.

Fortune was responsible for suicide in another case, a clerk benefiting by the will of an ancient aunt to the extent of nearly $7,000, and, never having handled more than his weekly 15 shillings, his head was turned in the fullest sense of the word. For a time he led a high life, and had the usual crowd of scheming friends helping him to dissipate his money, and in a very short time he saw nothing before him but going to a carter's friends. Discovery of this kind haunted him, and in a fit of despondency he shot himself in his bedroom, having incurred many debts and completely exhausted his aunt's legacy.

When one nephew was recognized in his late uncle's will, another, who considered his claim quite equal, was entirely ignored, and, deeming that his brother's portion of $2,000 should be divided between them, he tried fair means and foul to bring about the result.

At first the heir avoided him, but having a veritable fiend to deal with for the sake of a quiet life he handed over his wealth. Instead of using his hundreds to advantage, the wild fellow squandered money broadcast and subsequently was reduced to his last penny.

Infuriated with drink, he sought his benefactor, but his protests availed him nothing. This time the brother was invisible and, incensed with rage, the prodigal struck his generous relative. Arrested and imprisoned within six months of his release, he was being strictly guarded in a lunatic asylum, where today he still remains, being reckoned one of the most dangerous of inmates. Yet his brother states that previous to their fortunes death the relative was steady-going and thrifty. The possession of so much money ruined him, and his fortune made of his life effectually unhinged his brain.

A poor old lady was remembered in the will of an old schoolmate, who from girlhood had traded abroad, to the tune of £1,800. Friends reached the legatee that the deceased lady had secured the bulk of her wealth through horse betting and card playing and this fact upset her so deeply that she inquired carefully into the matter. Discovering this to be the case, the money was distributed among various hospitals, and even then her conscience troubled her.—Pearson's Weekly.
