PAYSON.

PAYSON, UTAH, - OCT. 19, 1894.

Social, Personal and Business Notes.

The marriage of Mr. William L. Wrosenecroft, the young hardware merchant of Payson, to Miss Lizzie John, daughter of President David John, of Provo, is the social event of the day. The marriage ceremony was performed in the Salt Lake Temple and a reception will be given at the residence of the bride's parents in Provo and another one at the residence of the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Wrosenecroft, of this city. All unite in wishing the worthy young couple a happy and prosperous voyage through the sea of life.

The daily Times has been changed to a semi-weekly paper and if the report that the press on which it is printed will be removed to a new days by its owner to Eureka, is correct, it will soon not be issued at all. The paper has always been bright and newsy and it is hoped that the boys will find some means to continue its publication.

A special meeting was held at the First ward meeting house on Tuesday evening to consider questions of finance connected with the building.

John Donovan and Jos. Morgan, formerly of the Model Candy company, are making a big payout home at Hawk's fruit ranch east of town, where they are engaged in gathering a heavy crop of winter apples.

Several parties have been down from Clifton during the week. They report harvesting at an end and the crops the finest for many a year.

Mr. L. O. A. Colvin is carrying one arm in a sling, the result of an accidental injury to his shoulder a few days since.

An infant child of Thomas Cloward's is reported ill.

Frank McCaw, the popular jeweler and watchmaker has removed his business to the building next door to Page & Sons. The building formerly occupied by him has been removed by its owner, Nottman Fillmore, to the rear of his store, where it will be fitted up for residence purposes.

A great many of our farmers are engaged in harvesting and loading on the cars an unusually fine crop of sugar beets.

PARK CITY.

PARK CITY, UTAH, - OCT. 19, 1894.

Politics at the Park.

The political pot has been boiling during the entire week, and the various candidates have been kept busy. From now on until Nov. 6th, there will be no cessation to the work.

During the week the Democratic party has established headquarters adjoining those of the Republicans on Main street, and the Populists are now negotiating for space in the near vicinity. The principle of this appears to be that in union there is strength, but which party will get the strength has not been fully demonstrated yet.

Last Tuesday night at the opera house Hon. F. J. Cannon and Judge C. C. Goodwin held forth to the great and appreciative audience ever gathered together in Park City to hear a political speech; not half of those who rushed to hear the speakers could get near the entrance doors, the hall was so crowded. The band was stationed on the outside during the entire evening, and the outside crowd was kept in good humor. The speech of Mr. Cannon was of two hours' duration, and during the entire time he held the closest attention of all present, and music enthusiasm was shown by the great audience. Judge Goodwin followed with one of his characteristic speeches, and the close of the meeting demonstrated how the speakers were appreciated. From now on until the close of the campaign the Republicans will hold meetings nearly every night.

From a distant view it looks as though there will be a great amount of trading on both sides to secure the delegation to the constitutional convention, and the candidates for the county offices are not at all pleased with this turn of affairs, as it puts them all in a position where it is hard for them to decide how to act.

In Mine and Mill.

After a cessation of several months the Ontario has resumed the shipment of first class ore, and the amount stored at their bins will now be sent to the sampling mills, and later on to the smelters. The second class class ore is being hauled for storage purposes at the mill in preparation for the bad roads which will be the rule in the mines.

The large compressor engine and wheel for the Silver King was taken to the mine during the week and when fully in place it will be the next largest compressor in the camp, that at the Crescent being the largest.

A greater amount of mine timber is being delivered here than has been known for several years, which indicates that the mine owners have decided that during the low prices of the metal, they will do more repair work, in anticipation of the increase in prices of the metals before a great while.

A communication appeared by the stockholders of the Crescent property, accompanied Manager Duncombe's to the mine this week to inspect the same and report upon the needed improvements at the mines with the intention of commencing the work rapidly, and getting the mine in shape to ship ore. The Comstoblies reports finding the property up to their expectations, and they will recommend that additional machinery and supplies be immediately purchased so that the same can be delivered at the mine before the heavy falls of snow.

J. J. Daly came out from the city Wednesday, and reports affairs at the Daly-West in splendid condition. Nothing definite has been decided upon yet, as to the Daly-West mill, its character, size or location.

Work on the Alliance is now fully under way, and rapid progress is being made. The property will prove to be an ore shipper before many days.

The Ontario tunnel during the coming week, and then the water from the mines will be turned into it, relieving the many pumps after years of incessant labor. But these latter will all be put in repair so as to be ready when deeper developments are decided upon.

Notes.

The laying of the water pipes has commenced on Main street and that thoroughfare is in a very much torn up condition at present. When these Main street pipes are in place, water will be turned into the entire system, and the work will be completed.

But one new claim is reported during the week, but this has fallen in to barren times.

The social event of the week was the wedding at Miss Pearl Young and Frank A. Bird, which took place at the Episcopal church, before a large audience. Major Bird and wife, to Salt Lake were out for the event.

Weaver of Night Eagle, the Salt Lake "wizard," held forth at Ontario home before a large number of people. He was well received and very much appreciated.

W. G. Leach, superintendent of the Mercur mill, and bride have returned to the Park after an extended visit in New York. WILL.

DANGER FOR TURKEY.

SHORT ATHOS CONVERT ONLY FORTRESS—IMPORTANT POINT IN POSSESSION OF THE CZAR.

Some time ago a well known military authority, Captain Brassey, drew attention to the ease with which Russian could "reach" the Dardanelles and capture Constantinople. Another well known German military writer, Herr Otto Wenne, now draws attention to the Russian monastery at Mount Athos, which he decates is nothing less than a Russian fortress short the guise of a religious establishment.

Since 1878, when the Czar confiscated the vast lands of the Order of Mount Athos, and devoted the money to endowing the convent of Mount Athos (Hagiotod), the latter has completely changed its religious character. The three monks were expelled, and their place taken by over 3,000 pretended Russian monks. The convent at Pantelleimon contains 1,100, that at Serios 900 and that of the Lavra 2,500.

They are under command of the Russian Greater Ascetic, who has metamorphosed the three convents into military fortresses. There are in addition seventeen other monasteries occupied by the former Greek monks. But according to the possession or threats of the Russian consul these, too, have opened their doors to Russian soldiers disguised as pilgrims.

It has been proved that since 1891 the Russian fleet has been transporting war material thither, and that the convents in question are nothing but fortresses, with casemates, armorals entrenchments, communications, Herr Wenne is of the opinion that nearly 900 of the pilgrims are Russian officers in disguise, and the praying, singing of hymns, etc., is nothing but a comedy. Not the patriarch, but the vice commander is Mount Athos. "From Russia to Mittel Sinai and from there to the Propont Euxe" everything is undermined and prepared for a coup de main.

Herr Wenne discloses that the convents commanded magnificent strategic positions, either for attack or defense, and would serve splendidly as a rover for an army in retreat or as a base of operations for an offensive force.

The maritime importance of Mount Athos is even greater than the military value. The bays of the Gulf of Hierissa and the bay beside the Island of Mudtaro would furnish magnificent and safe anchorage for a fleet, especially if the canal of Xerxes were reconstructed. The Russians would then be able to command the road to Salonica, the Dardanelles and the Piraeus. The Bay of Torona would also give protection to a fleet. The stations of Hartenstein would sweep the waters of Torona, Sanathrak, Doumos, the Gulf of Stavros and Thessalonian territory up to Gyrapos.

When Troy fell the news was announced by the Eros of the Greeks on Mount Athos. According to an old legend, the royal insignia of the Byzantine empire is here, and the possession of Mount Athos confers upon the right to the heritage of Constantinople and the Turkish empire.

Herr Wenne is of the opinion that Russia is again negotiating at Paris for the cession by Turkey of Mount Athos. He attributes, from this point of view, a certain importance to the visit which the Russian ambassador N Iswolsky has just made on board the gunboat, the Kniaz, and to his inspection of the convent and to the fact that Admiral Avelane paid the colony a formal call to meet the Ryuda.—New York Herald
