CAUGHT IN HIS OWN TRAP

And for nearly twenty minutes we sit in judgment upon the biographer of Frederick the Great, till the clocks of seven, booming from the town below, warn the professor that it is time to be going home.

"You must come with me, Mein Herr," says he, rising from his seat; "no excuse, I beg of you. It shall never be said that Justus Weissenbart met with a friend of the Herr Carlyle without making him welcome; and besides, I've got something to show you which I think will interest you."

The old man's hearty manner was not to be resisted; and a quarter of an hour later I stood before the door of a tall grim-looking stone house at the corner of the market plats, the curiously carved front of which showed that it had seen more than one century. But if its outside was stern and unpromising, its inside was comfortable in the highest degree; and so I thought when I found myself seated over a substantial German supper, in the professor's snuggery, and heard the old man's cheery voice bidding me fall to and spare nothing.

While eating, I found time to glance around the room, which (save for its antique furniture and heavy cross beams of oak) differed but little from the countless other laboratories that I had seen in various towns of Southern Germany; but one object arrested my attention—a human skeleton planted upright in a corner, presenting a pistol menacingly with its fleshless hand. The professor noted the direction of my eyes, and smiled significantly.

"That's the curiosity I was speaking of," said he; "it has a history of its own, which is worth hearing. When we have finished supper I'll tell it to you."

And, accordingly, as soon as the meal was over, Herr Weissenbart settled himself comfortably in his great easy chair, lighted an enormous German pipe, which the most seasoned "fox" in the university would have found it hard to smoke out, and began as follows:

"At the time that I bought this house, mein Herr, I had just entered upon the happiest period of my whole life. I had at length attained the modest competence for which I had long labored in vain, and could say to myself when I sat down in the easy chair in the evening and lit my pipe, 'Now, Justus Weissenbart, thou hast done all that the earthly and corporal parts of thee demand for its sustenance; henceforth thou art free to serve the cause of science, and it may be, even to add a little grain of knowledge to the sum of human learning.' I went to work with all earnestness. I filled my house with rare plants, rare fossils, rare minerals. I paid high for curiosities of every kind. Yes, I once paid a handful of thalers for the carcass of a donkey, which exhibited a singular malformation of the spinal column. It's dissection led me to one of the most interesting discoveries which I have ever made. Ah, mein Herr! you, who are a man of amusement and adventure, cannot fathom the delight I felt in cutting up that glorious donkey!

"But once before in my whole life did I experience the same pleasure, and that was when I was called in, a little while after I first came here, to treat a patient whose case exhibited some very unusual and perplexing symptoms. I examined him; I reflected; the truth flashed upon me, I flung my hat on the ground, and embracing the sick man with rapture, cried out: 'I congratulate you, my friend! You have received a disease which has been unknown for the last six centuries!'

"The idea of such consolation administered to an invalid was too much for my gravity. In spite of all my efforts to compose myself, I laughed till I was fairly exhausted; and Herr Weissenbart very good humoredly joined in the merriment, though evidently without the least suspicion of having given any cause of it.

"Well, mein lieber Herr," he continued, "you will doubtless have remarked it as a singular law of nature that whenever a man lives all by himself in a particularly old shabby-looking house, he invariably acquired the reputation of being immensely rich. Perhaps my paying so high for fossils and skeletons gave some color to the myth in my case; but at any rate I was soon known in Heidelberg as the 'rich Professor Weissenbart,' and my friends began to warn me that if I did not take care I might some day chance to get robbed.

"Now at that time I had but one servant, who had been with me many years, and was getting old and feeble. Every one said that he was not enough to take care of the house himself, and that I'd better have a younger man to help him; but I didn't like to vex poor old Johann by seeming to think that he was past work, so I just let things go on as they were. He was a capital servant, and did his work well as man could do; but he had one failing. Every now and then when the chance offered, he would"—a significant gesture of the professor's hand as if lifting a glass to his lips, completed the sentence.

"H'm! rather a bad fault in a man upon whom the safety of the house depended," observed I.

"So I thought," answered the professor; "and more than once I doubted whether it might not be as well to take a friends' advice after all, and engage a second servant. But I kept putting it off, and putting it off, till at last I got punished for my hesitation, as you shall hear.

NOTICE

IS HEREBY GIVEN that I Daniel H. Wells, Mayor of Salt Lake City, U. T., did on the first day of November, 1871, enter in the Land Office at Salt Lake City, U. T., for the several use and benefit of the owners and inhabitants thereof, the following described land, namely: Lots 1 and 2 and E ½ of Sec. 31, all of Sec. 32, the W ½ of Sec. 33, T 1 S, R 1 E, also N ½ of Sec. 25, the E ½ of Sec. 26, and Lots 3 and 4 in Sec. 31, all of Sec. 5, T 2 S, R 1 E, also Lots 1, 2, 3, 4, in Sec. 4, all of Sec. 5, all of Sec. 6, N ½ of Sec. 7, N ½ of N E ¼, and N W ¼ of Sec. 8 and Lot 5 in Sec. 9, T 1 S, R 1 E, also all of Sec. 1 Lots 1 and 2, S ½ of N E ¼ and S ½ of N ½ and S ½ of Sec. 2, the S ½ of N ½ of Sec. 11 and N ½ of Sec. 12, T 1 S, R 1 W, containing in all 3,720 acres and 40 hundredths.

Any persons or persons having claims in the above tract of land will file the same with the Clerk of the County Court of Salt Lake County before the first day of May, 1872, as prescribed by law.

DANIEL H. WELLS, Mayor.

Salt Lake City, Nov. 24, 1871.

TO ALL CONCERNED.

NOTICE is hereby given to all persons claiming to be entitled to any portion of the lands platted in the survey of the town site of Salt Lake City, made by Mess. D. H. Wells and Truman O. Angell, that the Clerk of said City will be present at his office, and after the 15th day of December next, to file any declaratory statement, as contemplated by Sec. 3 of an Act passed by the Legislative Assembly of the Territory of Utah, approved Feb. 17, 1869, prescribing rules and regulations for the execution of the trust arising under the Act of Congress entitled "An Act for the Relief of the Inhabitants of Chicago, and Trustees upon the Public Lands," approved June 2, 1860.

Persons intending to file such declaratory statements should have their property staked out, particularly and definitely describing the lands, lot, block, or share or parcel thereof claimed, before presenting them for filing, as in no instance will the clerk be the agent or attorney of any party in drawing up or preparing the same.

E. SMITH,
Probate Judge for Salt Lake County.

Salt Lake City, Nov. 27, 1871.

CUTTING GOODS—PRICES REDUCED TO MEET THE TIMES!—The merits of this system for Cutting all kinds of garments worn by Ladies, Gentlemen and Children are known by scores of ladies in this City and Territory, but the sure way is to prove it for one's self which may be done without charge. This system removes all anxiety regarding the FIT of garments, as all its directions are absolutely positive. There will be no aligning—no taking up or letting out, which not only injures the material but destroys the proportions and often ruins the garment. The system is very simple and can be learned in a few hours.

☞ CASH and PRODUCE taken.

☞ MRS. JOSEPH BULL, 12th Ward, Agent.

☞ CUTTING and FITTING done to all to satisfaction.

NOTICE.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN: That each entry No. 108 for the City Site of Provo, Utah County, Utah Territory, made Oct. 14, 1871, embracing the S W ¼ N W ¼ Sec. 13, S E ¼ Sec. 14, S E ¼ N E ¼ Sec. 15, N ¼ of N E ¼ Sec. 25, N E ¼ N W ¼ and N W ¼ N E ¼ Sec. 36, TOWNSHIP 6 South, Range 3 West, containing 320 acres, and being in trust for the inhabitants of said town, and is now ready to be disposed of in lots to any person or persons entitled thereto.

All persons claiming to be owners or possessors of any portion of said entry, will take this notice and make the application as provided in the statutes of Utah.

EDWARD DALTON, Mayor.

"GREAT UNKNOWN!"

BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS!

IN CASES where the health is not good and the blood is impure, it is wise to take something internally to rectify this as the action of the Hair Restorer must of necessity be slower where the patient lacks in vitality or is troubled with foul stomach or impurity of blood. After consulting with some of our best physicians on this subject, I take pleasure in recommending THE

Epigœan Blood Purifier

As a most efficient remedy, containing the finest ingredients for giving tone to the stomach, purifying the blood and building up the system generally.

Please read the following testimonial:

"I hereby certify that I have a perfect knowledge of the component parts of the EPIGŒAN BLOOD PURIFIER, and that it contains nothing but what is an Excellent Tonic and Blood Purifier of the Highest Order, and must be conducive of good results wherever used.
