Man Ground to Pieces Under a Railway Train.

A SAWYER'S BODY CUT IN TWO

Steamship Arrives in Tow on a Pacific Line—Dropped into the Sea—Legs and Arms Cut Off.

It is said that the Colusa, Cal., sugar factory will spend this year $125,000 for crude petroleum fuel; will take 140,000 tons of beets, practically thereform 18,000 tons of sugar worth $1,305,000, and pay the farmers about $150,000.

William Grant, a sawyer in the sugar pine sawmill near Roseburg, Oregon, met his death in a shocking manner Friday. While turning a log on the carriage he fell on the saw, which cut his body completely in two lengthwise.

The body of Frank S. Kinney, aged 64, a member of the G. A. R., was found on the tide flats at Seattle, Wash., Friday. It is believed that he fell off the bridge into the bay when the tide was in. He formerly lived in San Francisco.

A man was run over in the Colfax, Cal., yards Friday morning. Hips and arms were cut off and his body horribly mangled. A coroner's jury developed the fact that the unfortunate man was Joseph Sargent, lately of Truckee, Cal., aged 45 years.

Angus McDonald, a laborer on the Fort Custer ditch, Montana, was crushed by lightning yesterday. The bolt struck his left temple and passed down the body to the ground, the body and head being almost entirely stripped. The watch chain on his vest was melted. McDonald's injuries were fatal.

John G. Nola, a prominent Portuguese citizen of Mendocino, Cal., was fatally injured while at work in the Cooper woods Thursday. The cable which is used to haul logs out of a gulch broke and the flying end caught Nola's head, mangling it in a frightful manner. He was taken to the hospital, but died that night.

Patrick O'Connell died suddenly at Iowa Hill, Cal., Friday night. He came from Sierra county and was engaged in peddling hams. He was walking ahead of his team when he returned and stated to his driver that the walk was too much for him. He was taken with a severe hemorrhage of the lungs and death resulted in a few minutes.

Wm. Carrico of Yreka, Cal., was drowned in Scott river Friday morning while attempting to ford the stream where it empties into the Klamath. He was taking a load of freight to Happy Camp, and in some manner missed the ford. In attempting to get his team out he was kicked by one of the horses and thrown into the river. The body has not been recovered.

A San Francisco paper says that Eben L. Mitchell of Riverside, Cal., while pruning out his hedge quite severely, and on going to the house found quite a chunk of flesh missing. He went back to the tree, found the piece, and, picking it up, slapped it on to the wound and tied it up. A few days later he unwrapped the member and found that he had put the piece of flesh on wrong end to, but it was growing fast, just the same, and promises to be healed over in a few days.

Thursday afternoon a young man named Burntrager was drowned in Marble creek, Cal. Young Burntrager was engaged in carrying a board across a foot log over Marble creek when by some means he fell from the log into the stream and was drowned. He did not arrive at the place where the other men were at work and search was made for him. He had was seen floating in a pool of water below the log, and shortly afterward his body was found. The water was only four feet deep, and it is thought he either struck his head when he fell or that he was attacked by heart disease, as he had been complaining of heart trouble.

A dispatch from Tacoma, Washington, says the steamship Arizona, of 5,144 tons register, formerly of the Guion line over which line the bulk of Mormon emigration traveled for years, which held the record for speed between New York and Liverpool twelve years ago, is being refitted at Glasgow, Scotland, at an expense of $500,000, for service on the Tacoma-Hongkong line. She will have accommodations for fifty firstclass passengers and will increase the Northern Pacific's fleet to five regular steamers, the largest number operated by any of the transpacific lines.

Cornelius Frederickson of Petaluma, Cal., employed a son-in-law, named Hallie royal with a vicious stallion Friday. Frederickson saddled the animal and took him on the road to exercise as was his daily custom. Another farm hand was riding the stallion while Frederickson was leading him by the halter. Frederickson reached down to adjust the blanket and the horse caught him by the arm and shook him as a terrier would a rat, throwing him to the ground, pawing him, but still retaining a hold on his arm. Frederickson's cries of pain brought assistance and the infuriated animal was beaten into submission.

A shocking accident, resulting fatally to a man named Kummerfeldt, occurred Thursday at Rancho Omelo, near Mendocino, Cal. Kummerfeldt was with a party of campers who came to the coast from Sacramento a few days ago. In company with a companion named Burger, he was fishing, and while attempting to scale a cliff of rocks lost his footing and fell, striking upon his head on the rocks below. He rebounded into the sea and Burger succeeded in dragging his body into a cove. The unfortunate man's skull was crushed and death must have been instantaneous. He leaves a widow and son in Sacramento.
