CONGRESSIONAL.

SENATE.

WASHINGTON, 2.—At the expiration of the morning hour the Senate took up the bill to repeal the resumption act, and Ferry, in charge of the bill, read a lengthy argument in favor thereof.

Conkling, from the commerce committee, reported adversely on the House bill to provide for United States vessels hailing from places where they are owned or built. Indefinitely postponed.

Ferry, Paddock and Saulsbury were appointed a conference on advertisement of mail lettings.

Ferry explained the amendments of the finance committee to the bill repealing the resumption act. The equivalency of gold and greenbacks was hastened by the passage of the silver bill. Should the bill reported by the finance committee pass, it would give the country $990,000,000; it would restore commerce and make the people the bondholders. He did not anticipate any scarcity of gold, and believed gold and paper would be at par by July 1st. He said New York City did not possess all the wisdom of the country in finance matters.

Voorhees read a lengthy argument in favor of repealing the resumption act, recitting the woes inflicted by the act.

Gordon took the floor and will speak on Monday.

Maxey, from the postal committee, reported an amendment to the post office appropriation bill, establishing a semi-monthly Brazil steamship line for mails. Referred.

Saunders moved to reconsider the indefinite postponement of the question of the appointment of additional Paris commissioners. Rejected after a long debate—yeas 14; nays 34. Adjourned till Monday.

HOUSE.

WASHINGTON, 2.—Vance moved to restore the salaries of the examiners of the patent office to the amount now paid. Adopted.

Lathrop moved to increase from $50,000 to $75,000 the appropriation for contingent expenses of the patent office.

Atkins opposed it and said, although the democrats were for economy yet they were voting for these amendments that would swell to enormous amounts.

Conger accused Atkins of dictating to the democrats and rebuking the republicans for offering amendments.

Atkins defended himself and warmly denied the charge.

After further debate by Lathrop, Durham and others, the amendment was rejected.

When the sections in regard to the surveyors general was reached Wigginton offered an amendment declaring that on and after July 1st, 1879, the offices of surveyors general shall be abolished and the archives of the offices turned over to the governments of the several states and that all further necessary surveys shall be made by competent engineers to be employed by the commissioner of the general land office.

Page made a point of order that the amendment changed the existing law and could not be received.

The chair sustained the point of order and the amendment was not received.

Mills, in discussing the amendment in regard to the number of clerks in the postoffice department, said his idea of economy was to relieve people of taxation by statesmanship. The leaders of the democratic party had never yet found the means to relieve the people but only cut down the machinery of the government and gave the savings to the Paris exhibition or Philadelphia show.

After disposing of ten pages in the bill the committee rose and the House took a recess until 7.30. Evening session for debate only.

EVENING SESSION.

Wright advocated his bill for a government farm to the laboring classes to make settlements on public lands.

Chalmers favored the Texas Pacific Railroad and other southern improvements. It was a necessity of the country and if the northern democrats fear to do justice to the southern democrats, the latter may be displaced by republicans in the next election. To the silver men he said that the south is a producer of her gold staple, but she united with them through sympathy, and now appeals to them to sympathize with her and build up the waste places of the south, give tone and vigor to that portion of the body politic emaciated by the war and the currency accumulated at money centres, like blood unnaturally forced to the heart, will be gently diffused through the paralyzed limbs. Adjourned.

EASTERN.

Appropriations for Clerk Hire.

WASHINGTON, 2.—The appropriations granted by the House to-day for clerks in the Pacific Coast Surveyor-General's Office are as follows: California, $10,000; Oregon, $4,500; Washington, $4,000; Nevada, $3,000; Idaho, $2,500; Montana, $3,000; Utah, $3,000; New Mexico, $5,000; Arizona, $3,000. The salaries of surveyors-general are uniformly fixed at $2,500 each.

Reduction of Land Office Clerks.

The House of representatives have cut the land office down to 161 clerks. In 1855 there were 134 clerks. The work is much greater than it was at that time, comprising 200 land grants to railroads, canals, and States county land grants to soldiers of the late war; grants for agricultural college, besides business pertaining to the settlers on public lands. The clerical force being too small, the office is now nine months behind in its correspondence and four years in the patenting of public lands.

The Mexican Revolutionists.

GALVESTON, Texas, 2.—A telegram from General Sweitzer to Gen. Ord says: The Mexican revolutionists crossed from Texas into Mexico on the night of April 27th at Peterna, Capote and Lapalma, it is supposed to the number of 800, under direction of Colonel Munoz of Escobado's staff. It is the programme for a party to cross near Rio Grande city and take Comargo, but it is not believed they will be able to do so. The garrisons of Alma and Matamoras are expected to pronounce against Diaz.

Terrific Explosion—Destruction of Life and Property.

MINNEAPOLIS, 2.—At 7 o'clock this evening the city was shaken as by an earthquake by a terrific explosion, which was promptly traced to the groups of great flouring mills in what is known as Platform, just above St. Anthony's Falls, where the entire flouring district of the city is concentrated. The explosion came from the great Washburn mill, from which a column of flame was seen to shoot up several hundred feet, followed by a crash, which crushed the immense structure like an egg shell. Secondary explosions instantly destroyed the Thompson & Hoyt and Humboldt mills, and the flames immediately burst out, communicating to the Galaxy mills, those of Pettit, Robinson & Co., Cahill, Ankeney & Co., L. Day & Sons, Day & Rollins, Buell, Newton & Co., Gorton, Hayward & Co. The Washburn A and B mills, and the lesser structures down the bank of the river, nearly to the Minneapolis and St. Louis railroad shops. The destruction from the shock of the explosion extended much further, glass being wrecked for several squares and buildings shaken down throughout the city.

At 8:30 the fire was raging within these limits, and the firemen were working valiantly to subdue the flames. The immediate theory of the explosion is that it took place in the gas generated in the patent middlings purifier process.

The loss of life is undoubtedly great, but full details are lacking in the confusion that surrounds the scene. The first rumors made the dead at from 70 to 80, but this is not borne out by inquiry. The explosion took place at the hour of changing the day for night hands, and many of both were undoubtedly in the building. Twenty-two men went on in the Washburn mill at 6:30, none of whom have been heard from up to 8:30. Many others of the day force must have been in the building.

Later.—Investigation confirms the opinion that the first estimates of the loss of life were exaggerated. The number of dead is now placed at 17. There were many thrilling incidents and narrow escapes. Daniel Day was blown the whole length of Pettit & Robinson's mill and through a rear window and escaped. One poor fellow who could not be recognized, had escaped alive from the explosion and was observed crawling through the darting-hungry flames toward the track of the Minneapolis and St. Louis road directly into the rear of the Washburn mill. He managed to reach the road, and there evidently became exhausted, and fell back into the raging hell behind. It now appeared that most of the day force had gone home and only a small night force remained.

The loss to property is enormous, but the confusion is too great for an intelligent estimate. At present, a rough calculation places it at $1,500,000, of which $100,000 will fall upon the milling interest. The loss throughout the city by the breaking of glass, etc., is $10,000. Five flouring mills and a planing mill were destroyed, besides adjoining property.

Going to Have a Peace Talk.

CHICAGO, 2.—Several Nez Perces Indians passed through here, today, en route to Canada, where they will have a talk with the Indians who have left their reservations and agencies, and will urge them to return.

Trappers Murdered.

LINCOLN, Neb., 2.—Intelligence reached here, to-day, that Luther Holbrook, Herman Allen, and two brothers named Sutton, who were encamped, some two months ago, on Dismal River, for trapping and hunting purposes, had been found dead with bullet holes through their heads. A neighbor named Hargraves, who had threatened them is suspected. Parties have gone out to investigate.

WESTERN.

Death of W. S. O'Brien, the Millionaire.

SAN FRANCISCO, 2.—W. S. O'Brien, died at San Rafael, this afternoon, after a lingering illness of several months. His death will, in no manner, interfere with the business affairs of the firm. About a year and a half ago all the property of the firm was divided, with the exception of the mining stock business, which remains in common. Mr. Flood having the management of the interest of the deceased, this arrangement will continue in force for the present, and the business will go on as usual. Mr. O'Brien's death has been hourly expected for several days. He leaves a will, the conditions of which are yet unknown. He was a bachelor, but he has a sister and niece, and a nephew in this State; the sister and niece are in Paris, en route. His property is vaguely estimated at from $15,000,000 to $20,000,000, but it is estimated that, as usual, rumor has magnified his wealth.

FOREIGN.

GREAT BRITAIN.

Eastern Land Notes.

LONDON, 2.—A St. Petersburg correspondent says: It is not at all probable that anything in the shape of an ultimatum will be sent to the Porte for the present, at least, although there may have been some such intention a little time ago, when it was believed England had determined on war and was merely endeavoring to gain time. Now, however, the extreme scepticism in regard to the pacific assurances of some of the British ministers seem to be diminished. Russia is not likely to precipitate a crisis as long as a reasonable chance for a pacific solution remains.

A well-informed St. Petersburg correspondent says: The important decisions which caused this favorable change in Russia's attitude were arrived at in a great council, presided over by the Czar, April 28th.

A Vienna correspondent says: The conviction had at that date arisen that it was necessary either to give way or precipitate a rupture, as delay was giving Turkey and England time to collect their forces. The same correspondent states that towards Turkey, however, a great irritation prevails at St. Petersburg on the question of the fortresses. Turks now, having no fear of the occupation of their capital, justify their non-surrender of the fortresses by asserting that the Russians have no right to remain at Tchataldja, not to mention San Stefano. The Turkish argument on this point appears to be well founded. It is also said that Fazil Pasha, commandant of Shumla, has openly declared he will not surrender it. The Turks are also raising difficulties in regard to dispatching commissioners to assist in pacifying the Mussulman insurgents. It is stated that the Russians are removing stores.

A Bucharest dispatch says: The report is widely current that the Russians have ordered eighty trains for homeward-bound troops. A later dispatch from Bucharest says: The trains have really been ordered but, of course, the order may be countermanded.

The Agence Russe, says: Intelligence continues to be received of an improved state of pourparlers through Germany as intermediary for a simultaneous withdrawal from the vicinity of Constantinople, as well as the negotiations with Austria concerning her special interests. The principle of a direct exchange of views between England and St. Petersburg on the questions interesting England has been agreed on.

Brigadier General Keys and Quartermaster General Adams have arrived at Lavaletta, Malta, to arrange for the reception of the Sepoys from India. The ironclads Minatour and Resistance have sailed, it is supposed for Port Said.

The news of the appointment of Prince Labanoff to be Russian ambassador to Turkey, is confirmed.

Challis Pasha, not Ismid Pasha, is to be the Turkish ambassador at St. Petersburg.

The Tagblatt says: In consequence of the concentration of Russian troops near the Transylvanian frontier, it has become necessary for Austria to take precautions. According to reliable information, the question of concentrating an Austrian army in Transylvania is being seriously considered.

The Political Correspondence states that a revival of negotiations between Russia and England relative to the congress is due to the former. The negotiations will be based upon larger concessions than hitherto acceded to by Russia.

Todleben has resumed negotiations with Admiral Hornby in regard to the details of withdrawal. He has also resumed negotiations with the Porte for the evacuation of the ceded fortresses, but as yet without result, Safvet Pasha declaring that the Russians have not carried out the San Stefano treaty.

WEST INDIES.

The Spanish-German Difficulty.

HAVANA, 2.—A decree has been issued that the German residents are to pay half the contribution assessed on property and industry, according to the arrangement between the Spanish and German governments. This settles the long standing difficulty between Spain and Germany which, at one time, threatened to become serious.

NOTICE.

CONFERENCE VISITORS.

I BELIEVE that the Citizens of this Territory could afford to pay a committee $10 per day to examine into the merit of machines offered, thus preventing the palming off of inferior articles on the market, and the consequent loss of thousands of dollars, to be repeated semi-occasionally by making a few changes and names to said machines. When this time comes the Branson Knitter and New American Sewing Machines will take a front rank for simplicity of parts, durability, ease of learning, quick, Etc.

You are respectfully invited to call at the Idaho Store, see them work, buy one on a guarantee, and be learned to operate them free of charge if buying one.
