Jenson's Travels.

LET US DO IT.

Monday June 10th.—At 4:30 a. m. I left on a visit to some of the other islands of the Hawaiian group to search for material for Church history, accompanied by President Matthew Noall and his little baby boy George, who had obtained a horse and buggy and driver and had engaged to take us to that city, we arrived at 6 a. m. and found a small town of about 1,000 inhabitants, and also to be the seat of the island. Hence all other work of this kind, is carried on principally out of a southwesterly direction we took the road leading through a very rich sugar plantation belonging to the Messrs. Spreckels of San Francisco, which is situated near the Kaneohe, and is reputed to be the largest plantation of the island of Oahu. Here an incorporated company of Hawaiians, who have purchased about a quarter of a million dollars in the sugar and steam plows, implements, a sugar and steam plows, engines and mills, boilers, stacks, etc., and on the thousand acres are cultivated a crop and about three hundred men, women and children are employed in the work. Formerly we saw about one time passing through, we saw about one time a man who had charge of the field, and engaged in planting about 1,000 men, engaged in planting cane in the original state. There are now in the island from 40 to 50 per cent less than formerly, and of course the demand for labor, and of course the demand for labor, but would be for cutting and planting the cane. The cane is cut and planted three times. The cane is cut and planted three times. The people, of whom a few also employed on the plantation, receive $15 per month for the same kind of labor. Cane cutters, men and women, get $1 per day. A cluster of white-washed houses, a large mill adjacent to the mill in the Japanese part of Kaluaha, where the Japanese cutters are located in the cane cutters are located in the cane cutters, and the cane cutters are located in the cane cutters, and the cane cutters are located in the cane cutters, and
