now submitted detailed information relating to the Tulare reservation in California, the Pecos river in New Mexico, the Pike's Peak, Colo., the Flathead and Marias in Montana, and the Minnesota National Park, which they strongly urge the President to create and to provide for their proper protection.

The object for which the reserves from at the headwaters of streams are asked is to retain in the hand of the Federal government those areas upon areas of forests, on the condition of which depend to a great extent the water supplies for a large area of adjoining country.

Importation of Gold to be Encouraged.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30.—The Director of the mint, with approval of the secretary of the Treasury, issued instructions to the superintendent of the assay office at New York that in cases of deposits of foreign gold or bars, such approximation of value as in the discretion of the superintendent may be regarded safe, not to exceed 90 per cent of the value will be paid pending the melting and assay. The purpose of this regulation is to encourage, so far as can be legally done, the Government importation of foreign gold into the United States by allowing importers spot cash value for foreign gold as soon as received, instead of requiring them to wait while the deposits are being melted and the exact gold determined.

Failures in the United States.

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—Dun & Co.'s report for the nine months just closed states that the failures in the United States number 8,929, with liabilities of $130,000,000, a large increase over the same time for the previous year.

The Trans-Mississippi Congress.

Governor Thomas is in receipt of the following self-explanatory letter:

OMAHA, Neb. Sept. 26, 1891.

Hon. Arthur L. Thomas, Governor, Salt Lake City, Utah:

Dear Sir—Enclosed please find a circular giving the basis of representation in the Trans-Mississippi Commercial Congress, provided for at the last session held in Denver, and the details as arranged by the executive committee. The congress will convene at the Grand Opera House in Omaha, Neb., on Monday, the 12th day of October next, and remain in session five days. We especially call your attention to the importance of the subjects to be discussed on that occasion, and their bearing upon interests vital to our great Trans-Mississippi Territory.

We respectfully invite and urge your personal presence at this congress.

We shall be glad to receive any suggestions you may desire to make, and trust you will lend all the assistance you can in securing a full delegation from your Territory, to all of whom you can depend upon receiving the highest recognition by the representatives of Omaha, one of the principal commercial cities of the "Great West," where no effort will be spared on the part of her people to make the congress a grand success, and the occasion one of unusual interest and enjoyment to the delegates.

Looking forward to your esteemed, and we hope early, answer, I remain w th great respect, your servt obedient.

County Court Matters.

The following business was transacted in the County court yesterday afternoon:

In the matter of N. and S. Cooper, an application for remission of taxes, petitioners ordered to file request in writing.

Petition of Mrs. Dickson, to be allowed the charge of the deaf and dumb boy Paschil, committed to the infirmary, denied.

Bond of Tucker & Wallace for liquor license at Alta from August 1 to October 31, approved.

Citation ordered to Bird & Bird to appear before this court on Monday, October 5, 1891, at 10 a. m., and show cause why they should not be discharged as architects of the infirmary.

Application of L. N. Smith for the admission of Norah Egan and child to infirmary, granted.

Phil Stone appointed road supervisor of District No. 12.

Judge Barich appointed a committee to confer with Mayor Scott as to cleaning Eighth Ward square of rubbish, hay wagons, etc.

The following resolution was adopted, to-wit: That the county court hereby ratify and approve of the action of the joint city and county council in awarding the contract to J. H. Bowman and approving his bond therefor.

An appropriation of $5,700 was made payable to the county clerk to pay for the non-half of premium to be received for engine and hose house for joint city and county building, on approval of title by county attorney.

Appropriations for the year 1891, up to date, $95,422.62.

To Tell a Race Status.

It was a young married woman who spoke. She was doing with her husband on the piazza of a hotel.

"If you have any doubts, and want to know the relationship of a man and woman when you see them at a place like this there is one very sure way of settling whether or not they are married.

"When the waiter takes out the chits for the dinner, watch the man who is going to pay it. If he nervously glances at the check, crushes it in his hand and hands the waiter a big dollar bill without waiting to see what the amount is, he is sure engaged to the girl who is with him, and stands in mortal dread of her opinion of him.

"If he takes the check and scans it with some care and then quietly hands to the waiter a sum approximating total, he is very likely engaged to the girl, and is willing for her to think his economies and prudes.

"If, however, he allows the waiter to place the chits on the table, and hands it there for his companion to see and study, then they are married. It is only the married man dining with his wife who will sit back and ponder after the waiter has closed the portfolio and went in full view of the lady opposite. Before marriage he would not allow his mind to realize anything so unromantic as the price of the delicate viands enumerated, and the lady opposite would not permit her to think of such material questions.

"A year after marriage, however, they discuss figuring the prices on the bill of fare, and he is inclined to let his wife do the wondering as to the exact amount he has had to know how much it costs to live. Therefore, the married man allows to dinner checks to remain on the table for his wife's inspection."—New York Letter.

Fishing Terrapin.

In the canal waters along the coast south of Cape Hatteras terrapin are caught in various ways. Dredges dragged along in the wake of a sailing vessel pick them up. Nets stretched across some narrow arm of river or bay entangle the feet of any stray terrapin in their meshes, but these crafts are constant attendants of the fisherman to save the catch from drowning. In the winter, in the deeper water, the terrapin are from three to twelve quarters in solid, sunny days and crawl along the bottom. They are then taken by tongs, their whereabouts being often betrayed by bubbles.

Darting will also at any rate, and usually the fisherman only slips his hands through each basket has his own way of attracting the terrapin. One lender whose I saw uttered a queer guttural noise that seemed to rise from his boots.

Whatever the noise, all turtles within hearing—whether terrapin or "snapper"—will put their heads above water. Both are wonderful and are quickly sent to the marketman. The snapper slowly appears and disappears, leaving scarcely a ripple, and the hunter cautiously approaching usually takes him by the tail. The terrapin, on the contrary, is quick, and will dissemble in an oblique direction, so that a hand net is needed unless he happens to come up near by. If he is near enough the man jumps for him. The time for hunting is the still hour at either sunrise or sunset.—St. Nicholas.

Why It Is Popular.

Because it has proven its absolute merit over and over again, because it has an unequaled record of cures, because its business is conducted in a thoroughly honest manner, and because it combines economy and strength, being the only medicine of which "100 Doses One Dollar" is true—these strong points have made Hood's Sarsaparilla the most successful medicine of the day. 6

The New Discovery.

You have heard your friends and neighbors talking about it. You may yourself be one of the many who know from personal experience just how good a thing it is. If you have not tried it, you are one of its staunch friends, because the wonderful thing about it is that from once given a trial, Dr. King's New Discovery ever after holds a place in the house. If you have never used it and should be afflicted with a cough, cold or any Throat, Lung or Chest trouble, secure a bottle at once and give it a fair trial. It is guaranteed every time, or money refunded. Trial bottles free at A. C. Smith & Co.'s Drug Store. 6

STORY OF A PIANO.

A Course When Found Difficulty in Keeping a Vow to the Sweetheart.

Probably the strangest ordeal that person can undergo is to be deposited of the exercise of its powers. M. de Pourmartin had a pathetic illustration of this in his acquaintance with one of the greatest pianists of the present century. He relates the strange story in "Les Souvenirs d'un Vieux Critique." Thomas set a player himself. M. de Pourmartin had a fine piano. One day the proprietor of the village hotel called to say that the evening before a gentleman, apparently of the European or an American, had arrived at his house, a person about M. Pourmartin's age, elegant of appearance and wearing an expression of trembling melancholy.

In the morning, it seemed, the stranger would take no breakfast but brought M. Pierson, the hotel keeper, for a piano, saying that circumstances had prevented his touching one for a year.

A little later the stranger was seated at M. Pourmartin's piano, and it was soon satisfied that he was not only a wonderful artist but an inventor of new methods, whose touch tripled the power and volume of the instrument. He played on and on. Shortly before midnight he seemed to put his whole soul into improvising a funeral march, which ended with a finale of wonderful tragic beauty just as the village clock struck 12.

"Adieu and thanks," said the strange guest, not waiting to hear M. Pourmartin's exclamation: "It is I who thank you! My piano is saved! Immortal!" The next morning he was gone, leaving M. Pierson not to ask his usual name.

The following year, just after leaving Liszt, M. Pourmartin called on his friend Zimmermann. He was explaining to the incredulous musician that his admiration for the great Liszt was tempered by the memory of an immortal pianist whom he had heard at Avignon, when there was a knock at the door, and as the entire relation, "I heard a voice that thrilled me say, 'May I enter? Sigismund Thalberg,' cried Zimmermann in joyful surprise.

"I recognized my mysterious visitor, but my delight was checked by the sadness in his face. He told to me. 'My dear sir, I owe you an explanation. On the 30th of April I promised Catherine B——, a beautiful girl whom I loved, that I would not touch a piano until April 30 of the next year; this is an evidence that my piano and my art were and feel to be my rival. At the end of the year she was to become my wife.

"'Well, you know the rest. I thought that terrible year would never end. I traveled constantly to distract my mind and to pass the time more profitably. I reached Avignon the 29th of April.'

"He stopped. 'And Catherine?' I asked.

"'She died on the 30th, at the very hour when I finished the funeral march, just as the clock in the belfry struck midnight.'"

Didn't Remember the Name.

At the time when Napoleon was the most prominent figure in Europe one man at least was little impressed with his greatness. The emperor's name actually slipped his mind, so slightly did the matter concern the world that for the artist remained in his memory.

Edgar Quinet relates that when he went to Germany he visited the old sculptor, Dannecker.

"Wrinkled," he says, "of art, and the sculptor was eloquent over his theories. Suddenly, wishing to fix a date, he stopped, reflected, and finally said:

"'I think it was in the time of that man—what is his name? you know the man; the one who has won so many battles. I've forgotten the name. You must know it?'

"'Are you speaking of Napoleon?' I asked.

"'Yes, yes, that is it,' cried the artist, and went on with his interrupted statement without giving the hesitant a second thought.—Youth's Companion.

An Unpardonable Fault.

A temptation to avoid is the constantly recurring one to repeat the funny sayings of one's own children, especially before them. A painful production occurs of a nervous, only child, whose active brain led her often to make extremely bright speeches, which were repeated with much glee by her uncle mother, whether the child was present or not. One day after this had occurred the child lifted up her shell voice from the corner of the room where she was sitting, and said, "Ma'ma, tell 'em that funny thing I said the other day about God?" The mother was much shocked, and it is hoped profited by the lesson thus taught her.—Housewife.

The Largest Meteor.

Probably the largest meteor that ever reached the surface of the earth lies on the plains of Brenham, in South America, where it fell. It measures 7 1-2 feet in length and weighs between fourteen and fifteen tons. Perhaps the next largest is the one, well known to travelers, that lies at the foot of a lower mountain of the Alps range.—New York Recorder.

A Introducer.

"Why do you permit such impudence?" said the Pullman traveler to his companion after a quarrel with the porter.

"Can't help it. He's the porter. I'm only a director in the company."—New York Epoch.

WHAT IS A GUARANTEE?

Many merchants and salesmen are in the habit of indiscriminately "guaranteeing" their wares with no thought of being called upon to make the "guarantee" good. It is a pernicious and foolish custom more respected in the breach than in the observance.

A guarantee, to have any value, should be made with knowledge of the meaning of the word and a set purpose to carry out the terms of the guarantee. On fine tools the makers instruct us to warrant, and we replace any tool found imperfect in use.

We have used our best judgment, acquired by a considerable experience, in selecting the following items for our stock and sell them to our customers with an absolute guarantee that if they do not prove to be all that we represent them, we will refund the purchase money in full.

"Jewel" Steel Range. A finished article, perfectly proportioned, made of the best material. Don't fail to see it. It will pay you.

"Quick Meal" No Generator, Evaporating. Light it as you do your gas burner. No smell. No danger. No complication. Every objection to the use of a Gasoline Stove done away with. Think of the discomfort missed in Summer by avoiding the heat of a big Kitchen Range.

"Superior" Cooks and Ranges. Superior as bakers. Superior in economy of fuel. Superior in design. Superior in construction. Superior in everything that goes to make a perfect cooking apparatus.

The "Foote Refrigerators." An Ice saver. A Health promoter. Cellular stone lined. What is that? Investigate it. It will more than repay you.

Our stock of Builders' Hardware, House Furnishings, Garden Hose, Lawn Sprinklers, Lawn Mowers, etc., is complete in every detail.
