Jones and Francis Webster; a majority of the High Council and Bishops of the several wards; also Elder David H. Cannon and Bishop Thomas Cottam of St. George, Washington county.

After the usual opening exercises, President Urian T. The various quorums, sacrament and Sunday schools were reported by their representatives. The Bishops reported their wards as being in a fair condition, temporally and spiritually, the brethren generally speaking being alive to their duties, but there was still much to be in improvement.

The speakers seemed to enjoy a the Spirit of the Lord and spoke very plainly upon the following subjects: The divine mission of Joseph Smith, restoration of the Gospel with its different keys and powers, building of temples and endowment work therein, tithing, Word of Wisdom, first principles of the Gospel, duties of the Priesthood, and duties of the Saints generally.

The evening meeting Monday was mainly occupied by Elder David H. Cannon and Bishop Thomas Judd of St. George, in presenting to the Stake the proposed plan for the construction of a railway from Salt Lake City to St. George. The principal object in building the road is to facilitate and to materially aid in the development of the resources of the country.

The greatest and best enthusiasm and list of home missionary work prevailed and carried by acclamation. Some of the Stake President's meeting was held just because participating in the Stake Conference.
