TERRITORIAL NEWS NOTES.

A Small Boy Killed by a Horse at Ferron, Emery County.

AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE WORK.

A New Pleasure Boat to be Launched on Utah Lake.—Railroad Extension to Salina.

Logan is at present a kind of a half-way station, or resting place for tramps and disreputable characters, who are heading their way from Butte, Helena, Boise and other cities to the south. The officers are adopting measures to rid the community of their undesirable presence.

A son of John Blanchard, nine years of age and named Thomas, was badly injured yesterday by falling from a horse which he was riding up Third street. He fell on his head and lay unconscious. When Dr. Ormsby examined the head he found that the skull was broken, but at last accounts had not decided that the broken bones were affecting the brain. The boy was beside himself and it is by no means certain that the injury will not prove very dangerous, though all hope for the best.—Logan Journal.

The war department intend removing for re-interment at the Fort Douglas cemetery, the remains of all soldiers or of their wives or children that are interred in the militia cemetery at Fort Cameron, and to that end have requested parties in town to make an estimate of the probable expense of removing and delivery of the remains, suitably boxed up, at the railroad terminus at Milford.—Beaver Citizen.

Hamilton Gregg, charged with swindling George Whitmore out of $800, was arraigned before Justice Brown this morning at Provo. Mr. King asked that the defendant be discharged, as sufficient evidence could not be produced to warrant his being bound over to await the action of the grand jury. Gregg was discharged and was immediately arrested by Marshal Bachman on a charge of assault with intent to do bodily injury to a negro in Salt Lake County.—Enquirer.

While Judge Maginnis was driving along Adams avenue at 9:30 last evening, on his way down town, several men jumped out from the shadows and [illegible]

SPIRITUAL FASTING.

"IF SO BE YE HAVE TASTED THAT THE LORD IS GRACIOUS."

There Is No Logic That Will Replace a Christian Experience—Each Must Have His Own, Each Must Realize It for Himself—The Desires of the Heart.

The term taste, used as a noun or a verb, is in the Bible employed to describe religious experience, and for this purpose it is a very expressive and significant term. If a man has an orange in his hand he cannot tell whether it is sweet or sour by simply looking at it or by handling it. He must actually taste of it, and then the resulting sensation will settle the question of quality. Precisely so is it with religious experience. Such experience is only truly gained by spiritually tasting of religion. Then the experience will come, not as a theory, not as something merely conceived of, but as a heartfelt fact.

The Psalmist, for example, says, "How sweet are thy words to my taste! yea, sweeter than honey to my mouth" (Psalms cxix, 103). This language expresses the spiritual delight and joy, the comfort and hope, of which piety is conscious when in thoughtful contact with the word of God as contained in the Holy Scriptures. Such piety actually tastes the word of God, and knows its qualities and relations to feeling by tasting, as no one can possibly know them without the tasting process.

The difference on this subject between the sneering and scoffing infidel who really knows nothing about what he is sneering at, and the believing and devout student of the Bible, is heaven wide. The latter actually tastes of the power and blessing of that book, and feels the power and blessing in his own heart, and knows what they are by a happy and glorious experience, and is hence a judge of the Bible as the former is not and cannot be so long as he maintains the attitude of a scoffer.

So, also, the Psalmist says again, "O taste and see that the Lord is good; blessed is the man that trusteth in him" (Psalms xxxiv, 8). The Lord is always good and his tender mercies are over all his works, whether we taste or not; yet his goodness becomes a realized fact in our experience and a source of comfort and joy to the heart only as we spiritually taste of it.
