The exercises of the commencement season of the Salt Lake Academy were held last night in Hammond Hall. They took the form of a social, and it was a thoroughly enjoyable affair. Among the chief features of the occasion were the violin playing of Fred Clive, musical selections by Miss Lincoln, Mr. Grant Hampton, Mr. and Mrs. Webber, and Prof. Radcliffe. The last rendered the musical selections by Miss Lincoln, Mr. Falkenburg's fine organ was fully appreciated and Principal Davis' readings were much enjoyed.

Interest was opened and several hundred shares subscribed.

"A Very Quiet Day.

There is scarcely anything moving in legal circles today. The Judges of the Territorial Supreme Court sat this morning as usual, but there was nothing of any consequence before them.

On motion of Attorney W. H. Dickson, Mr. Adrian Collier Ellis, Jr., of California, was admitted to practice at the bar of this court.

The case of the United States vs. M. R. Buford et al, Appellants, was submitted on briefs and taken under advisement.

Clerk McMillan of the Third District Court and Deputy Clerk Lemuel Lewis were up to their ears in work—and dust—removing their books, papers, etc., into the new offices, Dooly Block.

The United States Commissioners are having an easy time.

Governor Thomas at Ogden.

Governor A. L. Thomas, at Ogden last night, presented the diplomas to the graduates of the city schools. It was nearly 11 o'clock, however, when this part of the proceedings was reached, the early portion of the time having been occupied with the reading of essays, addresses and vocal and instrumental music. The governor paid a glowing tribute to Ogden's school system. He reviewed briefly the history of education in the United States and showed how it would seemingly describe the benefits derived through the wise and far-reaching law which gave two sections in each township throughout the republic for the public schools. He did not think the exhibition he had witnessed here tonight had been excelled, if equalled, by any other that he had witnessed in the Territory.

The exercises closed with "The Anvil Chorus" by the pupils of the schools.

THREE WATERSPOUTS.

Yesterday's Storm Did Great Damage to Crops, Etc.

Much excitement was caused yesterday morning shortly before noon by the appearance of three waterspouts in what appeared to be the vicinity of Kaysville. Persons became greatly alarmed and imagined that Utah was about to be visited by a series of cloudbursts, floods, tornadoes and blizzards similar to those which have been devastating the East during the last few weeks.

From the sandridge south the rain descended in torrents. Railroad men and passengers who have come down Weber canyon since the storm report great damage having been done by the several cloudbursts and waterspouts which occurred in the canyon yesterday morning. Large timbers were torn from the trees, bridges were washed away and the track obstructed for considerable distances at a time. The fruit and certain crop of Uintah City, Morgan and Summit counties has been materially damaged, in some cases entire orchards and fields were washed away.

THE STRAIGHT REPUBLICANS.

Their Magnanimity at Minneapolis Arthur Brown's Version.

The following extract is from an interview by a representative of the Herald with Arthur Brown, of this city:

"Nine times out of nine my share of it. Just interviews with nearly all the delegates, saw all of the credential committee except five or six. All interviewed so except Cleveland of Nevada, and possibly Idaho and Montana. Sloop from the first favored the plan of seating both delegations. The convention was not willing to do that. The convention was mad with impatience to hear from the credential committee and only by a majority of one decided in Utah, and it was a very close vote. We had the city organization already and all that Goodwin and Allen could do was to whisper their half vote for Harrison. I had been put on the national committee by the unanimous assent from our side, but at the last moment Goodwin came to me and said that if I was left on he would make a fight. They said I should name any man except Morrill or myself and they would accept any man. I seemed reluctant, I thought as was the best man we had.

"Here and Goodwin got on the committee to work for Arthur.

"Cannon did that when Goodwin was out of the hall. We held out the olive branch all the time, but I thought it a mistake, as they wouldn't accept it in the spirit it was offered.

"But the report that you favored Blaine was against you?

"As long as I was there I didn't say I was for Blaine or Harrison, either. We went to the Indiana headquarters and they asked me if we were for Harrison. We said that we were from Utah and they said they would help us and they did, as did Maine and Michigan, where I have some special friends. I refused to take any part or period so to the caucus. I was informed that Frank Cannon would vote for Boutelle and Salisbury for Harrison. When it was seen that Harrison could be nominated the two votes of the delegation were cast for him. The only part that Goodwin and Allen had in the convention was to whisper that they voted their half votes for Harrison, and the only possible thing it amounts to is the impression it will leave at home.

"Why did you yield your right to a place on the national committee?

"Because the contrabands abandoned my claim; they had to a separate organization, and I thought that being sure of a man as good as myself was better than taking any risk however slight. I said to unite the party if I could and if I saw in the way said to step down and out."

"What were the general results of the convention?

"They all talked good-naturedly and the anti-Harrison people now their control entirely—they are the men who do their fighting before and in the convention and not after it is over. Well, go into the campaign with a united front with a good show to win."

Did you hear any expressions as to the Democratic candidate?

"Many of the Republicans seemed to think that if we nominated Harrison that the Democrats would don't nominate Cleveland and that if we named Blaine they would. There is, however, a good strong feeling among the Democrats for Cleveland."

As the reporter got up to leave, Mr. Brown with the most jovial emphasis, sound (lies that they had always offered the olive branch to the people who looked and sniffed them, and as they did down there they will do here. "All we ask of them is to come to and help build up the party. They will do it sooner or later and the best of them will before fall. Most of them are hungry look on personal jealousy and hate."

MEXICAN LETTER.

Treatment of the La Accusion Rebels.—Strange and Startling Experiences With a Coyote.

(Correspondence of the DESERET NEWS.)

It was conjectured at the time of the revolt in January last, in our neighboring town of La Accusion, that swift and certain would be the vengeance of the ruling party on the rebels, but all who so expected have seen it delayed for three four months, and now only five of the forty-six arraigned are adjudged not to receive further punishment.

I say further, designedly, for four months in a Mexican prison awaiting trial is a punishment of itself. Considering the magnitude of the offence committed, that of murder connected with a genuine rebellion, the fewness of the culprits who are to pay the penalty occasions some surprise. But the extension of the rebellion was so entire, and the success of the authorities in catching the offenders so complete, that the government could afford to be magnanimous to and time not really guilty of murder. Four of the five were sentenced by the district judge to capital punishment, the other to thirteen years and four months at hard labor; the other forty-one were declared exonerated by their early submission to the State authority. But the sentence must be confirmed by the Supreme Tribunal of Justice of the State before they will be allowed to return to their homes.

The funny part of the whole affair was the catching of the rebels. First a few were apprehended and after preliminary examination were released on their own recognizance. The example of these, together with the proclamation, induced some other to surrender, who were, in like manner, released. Then the large majority mustered courage from the hundred apparently shown, and surrendered in a body. Then those who had been released were gathered up, and the victory was complete.

In a few weeks the great scarcity of provisions in the neighborhood will be at an end, for a tolerably fair harvest of wheat is assured, unless it should rain so much and so continuously as to rain it.

The eldest son of our Bishop, Wm. D. Johnson, Jr., is the sufferer from the strange freak of a coyote. The young man is about twenty-one years of age and being sent to roughing it, like almost all country raised "Mormon" boys, entertaining no fear of the traditional owners of all upwards, the coyote, makes his bed on the ground wherever night overtakes him. On the evening of the 3rd inst., while on a trip out from home on the range, after stock, while sleeping in the same bed with his companions, he was roughly and painfully awakened by the vise-like grip of the jaws of a coyote fastening on his chin, the upper tooth being through his lip. A green man escaped from his his struggle with the brute assaulted his companions, who also obliged, though none of them with bodily young men, to exert all their united strength, which knew the coyote's jaws before they would make it release its hold. With great presence of mind they held in such a way that no blood was drawn on either of the other two, except a very small place on the throat of one of them, until the authority himself set the animal's throat, they never letting their hold on the jaws. This done, the subject fainted, and is at writing, in a precarious condition. The pluck in the animal's bite was so strong that the almost impalable mark on the thumb mentioned above, immediately stiffened it, and it remained so for some hours. One of the young men had the whisper that "Bishop Johnson" offered the best equine schwarzia, by outright. He turned so outward sign of caries in eyes or mouth and absolutely nothing came to his and said that if I was left on he would make a fight. They said I should name any man except Morrill or myself and they would accept any man. I seemed reluctant, I thought as was the best man we had.

"Here and Goodwin got on the committee to work for Arthur.

"Cannon did that when Goodwin was out of the hall. We held out the olive branch all the time, but I thought it a mistake, as they wouldn't accept it in the spirit it was offered.

"Did the report that you favored Blaine work against you?

"As long as I was there I didn't say I was for Blaine or Harrison, either. We went to the Indiana headquarters and they asked me if we were for Harrison. We said that we were from Utah and they said they would help us and they did, as did Maine and Michigan, where I have some special friends. I refused to take any part or period so to the caucus. IN A MERCIFUL MOOD.

Police Justice Rooker Exceedingly Easy on Transgressors This Morning.

Police Justice Rooker is not always in a merry or merciful mood, but this morning was an exception to the rule. He seemed temporarily to have lost the many characteristics of the Tatterers which he is wont to display. Even Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Cool, who has a reputation for conservation that is displeasing to a small degree to the saint political colleagues, was impressed with the spontaneous outburst of good nature, and said: "If I was a transgressor and had to appear for arraignment I would want to be on this morning, as the Judge is shaming mildly jubilant and generous in measuring out mercy to the wrong-doer."

This is how it sounded:

"Mr. A. A. Williams, are you guilty of being drunk?"

"I am, judge."

"Have you any pay?"

"Twenty-five cents."

"Did any relatives?"

"Mother and sister."

"Didn't mean to get full, did you?"

"No, sir."

"Won't do it again?"

"No, I will go to the Rooker this morning if you will let me."

"I will suspend sentence on you as you don't look like a bad fellow."

The offender bowed himself from the court room and scarcely down the street his face wreathed in smiles.

A. Hunsdale, another unfortunate whose every motion and movement showed signs of inebriation, came forward and pleaded guilty to the charge.

"Haven't been here for a long time have you, Mr. Hunsdale?" good-naturedly inquired the court.

"Not for more 'an a year, your honor."

"Then I will suspend sentence until the next case."

"My name is Jack Jackson," said the culprit "and I was drunk, your honor."

"You don't often indulge in this kind of business, do you?"

"First time."

"Will it be the last?"

"I promise."

"Then go and don't let me see your face again."

Another, John Doe, pleaded $20 for committing a nuisance, though it was the general opinion that he would have been at least as better off had he shot him.

G. Driggell acknowledged that he was guilty of the unlawful and dangerous practice of throwing a lum to God and was discharged on payment of $2.

John Fitzgerald will be placed in the dock this afternoon for obstructing the sidewalk. He claims that he was acting the role of peace-maker when taken in tow by Officer Carey.

Joseph Harris, a deaf and dumb person, is turned on the charge of discharging firearms within the city limits.

P. Johnson and Thomas Jefferson are registered as peace disturbers and will be asked to explain their position with reference to the affair.

James Hogg and William Murray are behind the bars on a charge of robbery, the particulars of which the police seemed to be unable to disclose.

We desire to say to our citizens that for years we have been selling Dr King's New Discovery for Consumption, Dr. King's New Life Pills, Bucklen's Arnica Salve and Electric Bitters, and have never handled remedies that sell as well, or that have given such universal satisfaction. We do not hesitate to guarantee them every time, and we stand ready to refund the money paid for them if satisfactory results do not follow their use. These remedies have won their great popularity solely on their merits. A. C. Smith & Co. Druggists. 1ss
