NOTES FROM FILLMORE.

A Large Dairy Company Organized.—Politics at Work Thereon.

Fillmore has a dairy company organized, with a capital stock of $5000. Judge Velle is president and L. N. Hinckley, Jr., vice president. The company has purchased the old tannery rock building which is well located for dairy purposes, the Millard County Investment company are the chief movers in the concern and bound making it a success.

On Saturday, the 13th, as Mrs. M. A. Y. Greenhalgh was starting out on a tour of the county in the interest of woman suffrage, having the house of a friend, her home suddenly became unmanageable and ran about a block. The light cart struck a large rock at the L. D. S. meeting house corner. The cart was wrecked and the lady thrown to the ground. Now was carried inclosed and bleeding into the house of L. N. Hinckley, Jr., where she still remains. Her many friends will be glad to know that she is able to be up today, although at present she is a pitiable object to look upon. All her appointments are canceled for the present, but nothing short of death can long keep down this indefatigable worker.

Politics are beginning to simmer in this district.

Today was buried Mrs. Lois Hinckley Frampton, a daughter of President Hinckley, whose death last week cast a gloom over the entire community. Sister Lois was held in very high esteem by all, she being a model of a mother, a faithful wife and a most exemplary wife and mother. She has left a broken-hearted husband and five little children to mourn the greatest of all losses. The love she lived one was tenderly borne for two blocks to the meeting house by six sons and virtuous brothers of the dead. This is the second time within six months that the same six brothers have been called upon to gather home to lay in the last resting place the body of a sister, and each have left little ones behind them, to be taught and guided in life by other than a mother's hand. God bless those children and those who minister to their happiness in life.

A Hardened Young Criminal.

In the Third District court on Saturday morning an incorrigible boy of eighteen was brought before Chief Justice Zane, having been returned from the Ogden Reform School as beyond the control of the officers of that institution. The particulars of his case were given in Saturday's NEWS, and it will be remembered that the judge referred the matter to Assistant United States Attorney Stephens for further inquiry.

This morning the youthful miscreant was again taken before his honor, who directed that he be brought into court on Saturday next for punishment. The chances are that a short period in the penitentiary may have a salutary effect upon him, though judging from his general demeanor he possesses a hardened spirit which it will require considerable effort to subdue. His name is Franklin Murray.

He is ably seconded by Lew Dockstader, acknowledged to be America's favorite black-faced comedian, who will be remembered as proprietor of Dockstader's minstrels, New York, for several years.

On Wednesday, June 24th, one night only, "The Dark Days" will be given at the Theatre. It is a musical extravaganza put together by William Mestayer. Fitzpatrick, Misses Lillian Lee, Ella O'Neill, Fanny Cohen and others.

Runaway.

A runaway occurred this afternoon at 3:30 from the hill at the head of Main street. A horse attached to a light spring wagon, belonging to Brown & Eaton, started because of a break in the harness. The exact time of the funeral, together with an extended account of the life and labors of the deceased, will appear in our column hereafter.

Catharine Campbell Steele.

Editor Deseret News:

Yesterday, 17th inst., the remains of Sister Catharine Campbell Steele, wife of Brother John Steele, were brought here for burial from her home at Toquerville, where she died on the 10th inst. The funeral service was conducted by Bishop Charles Adams, of Parowan. Remarks, kind and complimentary to the deceased, and consoling to the husband and children, who were present, were made by a number of speakers.

Sister Catharine Campbell Steele was born November 10th, 1816, in County Tyrone, Ireland. Her forefathers were Scotch Covenanters who fled and settled in Ireland during the persecution. She became a member of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day saints in the year '41 or '42, in Glasgow, Scotland. She emigrated with her husband to Nauvoo, arriving there shortly after the martyrdom of Joseph and Hyrum, the Prophet and the Patriarch of the Church. She was one of the two or three women that accompanied the Prophet's family from Nauvoo to bring a member of that noted company; with her husband she arrived in Salt Lake valley July 28th, 1847 (five days after the Pioneers). They camped on the Temple block, where she gave birth to a daughter, August 9th, 1847, which was the first female child born in Utah. Her daughter, now Mrs. Elizabeth Steele Stapely, now resides at Toquerville, Washington county, Utah, and is the mother of a large family. Brother and Sister Steele were pioneers to Parowan, arriving here with President Geo. A. Smith, January 13th, 1851.

It was Sister Steele's desire that after her death her body should be laid up in the Parowan cemetery, by the side of a married daughter and young son, who died here some years ago. All who had the pleasure of an acquaintance with Sister Steele speak of her as a kind, self-possessed, brave and noble woman. The Scriptures exemplified in the Gospel will be her reward.

Respectfully,

WM. C. MCGREGOR.

A BRONZED SKULL

DUG FROM A LEDGE OF COPPER ORE BY A PROSPECTOR.

(Spokane Review.)

"Perhaps one of the most curious things ever found in this State was unexpectedly picked up by Dan Whipple, an old prospector who knocks around the country between Ruby and the Methow," and Samuel Lindemuth, the banker of Ruby City, yesterday.

"It was an Indian's skull, but that is not all. In the skull was the first and a piece of the shaft of an arrow. The skull was found embedded in a ledge of ore that contained traces of copper, and the curious part of the whole thing is that the skull was perfectly bronzed. The fact that the arrow, which is still in the skull, is petrified, leads to the belief that the Indian must have fallen in battle long ago, for the relic was found several inches from the surface, embedded in the rock. The spot where it was unearthed is on a mound, and the earth had evidently been washed away by rains, exposing parts of the rock that stimulated the prospector to use his pick! He did not find any other bones with it, and in fact I do not suppose he was curious enough to investigate, for he was not looking for human skulls, but pay ore.

"Mr. Whipple made the discovery about two months ago, and carried the skull to Ruby City. The price of the curio was a quart of whisky, and the boys of the saloon had a lot of fun speculating on the past record of the red man's skull that was bronzed by nature, and will remain an emblem of the copper-tinged savage long after the color has faded from his cheek.

"Mr. Darwin, a prominent citizen of Ruby, secured the skull and made it chief of his cabinet of specimens."
