TWO delightfully cool cases before the United States Commissioners made up the usual total of the week in the criminal line yesterday. In the new court building all is silence, and Clerk McMillan and his deputy are having visitors from distant place known for several months. Many prominent attorneys are in the mountains seeking a change of air and scene.

THE following has been received at the Chamber of Commerce from the secretary of the interstate commerce commission at Washington: "The case of the Salt Lake Chamber of Commerce against the Union Pacific railway [illegible] is assigned for hearing July 22nd, at 2 p. m., in the United States district court in Salt Lake City." It will be an important inquiry.

A LETTER has been received from the acting commissioner of the land office at Washington, in reply to one sent by the register of the land office, in this city, in which the commissioner says: "I know no law of Congress which authorizes the leasing of school lands in Utah, and you will define to me clearly any law of congress for the leasing of school lands in Utah, but until this is seen becomes a law, I doubt whether the right exists for such leasing by the Territorial authorities."

Amusement Notes.

Mr. Mansfield achieved another triumph last evening in the impersonation of the eccentric, noble and courtly Beau Brummell. The play is a gem, and a rare one; like the gem to it must be not only seen once or twice, but scrutinized, and that closely, so that the exquisite finish and finesse of execution may be wholly apparent. The character of the title role is the play, the balance of the cast, simply the body supporting Mr. Mansfield as the pinnacle of the tower. His acting from his first entrance until the close of the last act, carried his audience through all the varying moods and circumstances of that strange life, with an intensity rarely witnessed at a play. The company has evidently been selected for the purpose of presenting Beau Brummell rather than a Partisan Romance, nobody being so much more at home in the one than in the other. The stage settings and surroundings were true to the period in which occurred the events narrated. There was only a moderate sized audience in attendance, and whether Mr. Mansfield may say or think of Salt Lake, he has certainly given us in "Beau Brummell" a creation, which will live in the memories of those who have witnessed it.

TROUBLE IN THE JUDICIAL DEPARTMENT.

Attorney Dickson Files His Affidavit in the Elias St. Outer Cases.—Why He Wants a Change of Venue.

The difficulties existing in the city police force are apparently growing more complicated daily, both as to its detective and judicial branches. It has generally been supposed that misunderstandings existed only among the policemen, but this is a mistake.

For some time past Assistant City Attorney Cout has been entirely ignored in the drawing up of a certain class of complaints and the work done by police officers and the work done by police officers and the work done by police officers
