STEVENSON'S TRAVELS

Through New Mexico En Route to Old Mexico.

To the Editor:

DEMING, N. M., Dec. 2, 1895.—Resuming our journey from Holbrook, nothing new is observed except more water has fallen, and that gets lighter until we arrive at Albuquerque, where it is no more. There we change cars and climate too. We arrived at 8:20 p.m. and our car for Rincon, 177 miles, left at 3:45 p.m. next day, Nov. 25. Our hotel, the Bishop, treated us very comfortably, arousing us just on time, and by daybreak the surroundings exhibited that where yesterday we were in ten inches of snow unless breakfast, on this morning we were in a comparatively fair land. The change from 8 or 10 degrees in the midst of snow and cold to a land of cactus and rose, and spring times, is so short a time, does seem like a fairy dream. At a station called Nutt, where is a hand phaton covered with glass, rose, sin, and with a beautiful climate not so warm, the altitude is about 3,000 feet.

Passing Florida some hilly country presents itself economically, but there are millions of mines with scarcely a habitation except stations. On the Rio Grande river, which we have left, some fine rooted Mexican huts, corn fields, and adjacent surroundings exist, and it seems good to see lands between these long and unfamiliar stretches.

We passed near Silver city, to which place a branch road runs from Deming—a very large ranch is set for away; water being piped to it from a spring in the mountains. To find a ranch among here is really noteworthy.

At 11:30 a. m. Deming, N. M., our long-time place was reached. Here we exchange for a journey of one hundred miles overland into Old Mexico. Looking over what I should call a town of wind mills, all of which has large tanks into which is pumped, by the wind mill process, a good supply of what seems to be a very fine quality of pure, cold water, which is drawn up sixty feet by these metal and numerous wind mills.

We learned from Elder Ernest Taylor, who is here from the Mexican colonies in the stock business, shipping them by rail, that on Monday, 2, Deming, transportation will be provided for Elder Lyman and company, to the Mexican colonies, where we expect to spend three weeks visiting. Elder Taylor generously took us to his home for refreshments and made arrangements for a meeting on the closing evening of the last November twenty thousand a chair; twenty-three members of the Church, old and young, assembled in the evening. Only two of that number had ever seen the Prophet Joseph Smith, and thirteen out of that number had never seen the Prophet Brigham Young. Elder Lyman called to see the oldest member in the Church who can remember seeing the Prophet Joseph. Our little meeting of the evening was so much relished, being addressed by Elders Lyman and Stevenson, that an arrangement was made for a Sacrament meeting on Sunday, Dec. 1, was made and enjoyed by an increased number of sixteen males and twenty-three females. Many of the latter are working out and are from the colonies, seemingly the only way to help themselves financially. There is no organized branch here, and it was said by Elder Taylor that he had never known so many to be present at the same time.

The Sacrament was administered by Elders Lyman and Stevenson; seven testimonies were borne and tears of joy was the result of the outpouring of the Spirit of the Lord. This was the first Sacrament meeting in Deming by the Latter-day Saints. Good advice was given to the young girls who are working out, some getting as high as $20 per month.

A late meeting was warm handshaking which is only known to true hearted Latter-day Saints, who are born of God. During all day not one drunk was to be seen on the streets of Deming, nor was there any more quiet outfitting point than this. Apples are sold at 5c per pound, onions 5c and potatoes 2c per pound; everything is sold here by the pound.

In about two hours we are off for Mexico, the land of flowers. Elder A. W. Ivins joined us yesterday and is well, and was sustained by the meeting yesterday as President of the Mexican Stake.

PROVO.

PROVO, UTAH, Dec. 12, 1895.

First District Court.

The case of Salt Lake City et al vs Jas. H. Callaghan et al is still before Judge King and will doubtless take up all the time of the court this week. A. F. Dominic was on the witness stand nearly all day yesterday, explaining the bars and natural obstructions in the Jordan river bed, near its head, and the effects of the work done on these obstructions by the plaintiffs upon the flow of the water from the lake.

Captain William Young was the next witness, and he was again on the stand this morning. The tendency of his testimony was to the effect that if the 22 inches of plank is maintained in the Jordan dam the flow from the lake will not be obstructed to any greater extent than would have been the case had the natural obstructions not been disturbed.

Last night a large number of relatives and friends of Sister Eva Wilkins, wife of Alex. Wilkins, or in some way, visited her as a surprise party in honor of her 39th birthday. A good enjoyable evening was spent.

The Temp who made agricultural implements from the Provo Harvest and Iron company Tuesday evening was given thirty days in the county jail, yesterday, by Justice Dewsnup.

The members of I. O. O. F. gave a very pleasant social in their lodge room last evening.

LOGAN.

LOGAN, UTAH, Dec. 11, 1895.

Cache County Sales.

A few years ago Hermon Christiansen, a young carpenter who lives in Providence (pronounced Providence) got his arm caught at a saw mill, and on Monday had to part with another. About a month ago while working at his trade, he had a splinter jab the middle finger of his right hand, at the base of the nail. This wound, although apparently a trifling one, caused him much pain. When he finally received a suspicion he knew blood poisoning had reached as far as knowledge and amputation was resorted to the Monday Dr. Shaw removed the diseased digit at the first joint. The poisonous matter has partially affected the hand, but he believes further use of the knife may be averted.

Logan is today indulging for the first time in the deep if not deadly mysteries of a court martial, the occasion being the trial of Capt. J. M. Wilson, of company D, second infantry, U. N. returning to turn out his company for inspection. The captain is defended by Captain H. P. Jones of the Brigham City company, and Lieut. F. E. Law son of his own company. Whatever the outcome may be, the officers of the general staff detailed to try the case will be the guests of the local officers at a military ball in the Eastes-Howell hall this evening.

Sunday evening meetings for the First and Fourth wards are held in the basement of the tabernacle, and it has been the habit of a number of the fond youths to congregate around the windows and look in, and frequently to make a glimpse at young feminidle. The police arrested five or six of the gamers on Sunday evening, and on Monday they underwent a hearing in the police court. They are bonnie pay, promised to amend and were let off with a fine of $5 costs each and a caution.

The Presbytery of Utah is trying the case of "The Presbyterian Church in the United States vs. E. W. Greene," a former pastor of the church here, for reason unbecoming a Christian minister. Mr. Greene removed to Kansas, having a number of his creditors in the circumstances. It is for the offense of being indebted. Mr. McNiece of Salt Lake, Martin of Manti and Clemmons of Logan are prosecuting the case, and Mr. Greene is being defended by counsel.

A number of pupils from outside districts have been taking advantage of Logan's excellent school facilities, and as a result some of the principal district schools have been overcrowded. The board of education has decided to charge all such students $2.50 per term, which will have a tendency to make them attend the schools within their own districts.

A disease of the eyes appears to have become epidemic here, and it is no longer safe for the young men to look inoffensive things at their best girl. The white of the eyes become badly inflamed and there is a persistent disinclination to the power of sight. It is not accompanied by any particular pain, and disappears in a week or so.

Fifteen minute talks on the feeding of beef steers and milch cows, by Professors Mills and Lindfield of the A. C. of U., and William Toombs of Smithfield, followed by a general discussion on these topics, is the program for the meeting of the Cache County Agricultural Society on Saturday morning.

The ball given by the students of the A. C. of U. last Saturday evening was one of the most successful and pleasant of the season. W. H. McClure ck and other members of the board of trustees, and several members of the B. Y. College family were present.

Mr. John Mack, of Salt Lake City, and Miss May Farrell, of Smithfield, have joined heart and hand, Judge Watson officiating. After remaining here for a few days visiting friends, they will go to their future home in Salt Lake.

Mrs Sloan, widow of one of the unfortunate victims of the Almy mine disaster, will be the beneficiary of a benefit party to be tendered in her behalf by the Y. M. M. I. A. of the Third ward on Friday evening.

The faculty and students of the A. C. of U. are continuing their preparations for the production of the Native slave. The curtain has been ordered and will be of handsome design and large size.

Logan lodge, No. 14, A. O. U. W., has been authorized by the Grand lodge to issue $2,000 beneficiary certificate to Mrs. H. G. Murdock, whose husband died a short time ago of typhoid-pneumonia.

The German Beneficial society will give an opera party on Christmas Eve, the proceeds to be applied to the issue subject the assistance of unfortunate in that community.

Elder Thomas Allen, of Hyrum, returned home on Monday, after having filled a two years' mission in the Northwestern states.

While in a visit to Logan Mrs. Geo. Stoddard, of Baker City, Oregon, called in to a fine sale on Monday morning.

HORSES THAT PAY.

One Kind That Neither Ripple Nor Trotter Can Defeat.

There is a kind of horse that will always be in fashion though every interest of this globe between 3 years of age and 100 years old rides a horse, that is the short carriage horse—the one that stands high and battles the silver dollar. If he is healthy, he can travel moderately well and has several hours at a stretch if necessary, all the better. This kind of horse is found in a cross of American trotting stock with the hackney. The ideal animal is probably a cross between a hackney stallion and a big American mare with trotting blood in her veins.

The animal in the picture was sired by Middleton of Lexington, the famous old hackney. The dam was a Mambrino blood, and a better and more perfect driver has seldom been produced than the spirited creature in the illustration.

In these days it is necessary for breeders to mind every economy and bring it to bear. A young horse is ready to be put upon the market at 3 years old. By that time, if its owner has the sense and management he ought to have, the animal will have paid for its keep and a good interest besides to the work the owner has got out of it on the farm. It is thoroughly broken to harness, trained to be afraid of nothing that meets its eye and to hold up its head and lift its knees with the best. The farmers want to acquaint themselves with the methods of giving a horse the high knee action so fashionable now. The horse should be nearly or quite 16 hands high to bring the best prices, should have been well fed and carefully groomed and curried every day of his life from childhood. A pair of young carriage horses with good blood and such training always will find ready sale, and the price will be anywhere from $300 to $2,000 a pair.

Of the mares that should be selected for breeding, the harness horses Mr. H. T. Riddick says:

They should have substance, plenty of bone, with fair action. The mare should be 16 hands high, with long neck, carrying a good head, with fine ears. The ears should always be in proportion, and of all things the mare should have an intelligent head. Take care in selecting an animal that she has not hooked shoulders. They must be sloping, well laid into the back. The legs should be straight with a bold knee, flat and strong, and an expressed angle from the fetlock joint to the point of the toe of the foot. The withers should be bold and well pronounced. The girth should be deep with flat ribs, and the false ribs should go well up to the lumbar space. The spine should curve a little at the croup, but not drop down. Green rumped horses, or those with dropped croups are cribbed, do not sell well. The croup or haunch should be round, and the thigh should go well down to the hock joint. The hock must be flat, the point behind smooth and round, and the legs should be slightly bent or bowed. This one point should be remembered, the hind legs must never be straight, neither should they be sickle shaped, cow hocked, or out of proportion. The foot should not be flat, but in good proportion.

The Hoe Is King.

When it comes to point of the highest order, the best of all birds beyond competition is the hen. It adds to the wealth of the country every year in eggs alone $125,000,000, or about the combined value of our output of iron and wool. The hen in England is a great institution, and yet that country imported $22,000,000 worth of eggs and poultry last year. Nobody ever complains of an overproduction of eggs, and they are a cash article. But no political economist has ever thought the hen worthy of his scientific consideration.

The world could easily survive the loss of all political economists, but what a sin there would be if the hen should be threatened with extermination.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

UNTOLD MISERY FROM RHEUMATISM

C. H. King, Water Valley, Miss., cured by

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

"For five years I suffered untold misery from acute rheumatism. I tried every known remedy, including the best physicians, visited Hot Springs, Ark., three times, spending many more months thereby, but could obtain only temporary relief. My wife was worried when she had a neighbor only assist from house, my left arm and leg were drawn out of shape, the muscles being twisted up in knots. I was unable to dress myself, except with assistance, and could only hobble about by using a cane. I had no appetite, and was reduced in flesh to a skeleton. I could not lie down, but had to sit in a chair day and night. My friends thought I was a goner. One physician, who is lately dead, I recall pronounced my case of rheumatism incurable, from the nature of my symptoms. I had my cane to hand, and, relying on the word of my friends, I began to take Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Inside of two weeks I was able to hobble without a cane. In three months my limbs began to straighten, and at the middle of a year I was cured. My weight has increased to 200 pounds, and I can do a full day's work on a farm and feel refreshed."
